FRENCH AND GERMANS ENGAGE IN ARTILLERY DUEL

PRESIDENT QUIET ON SUGGESTION HE URGE TRUCE

Not Expected To Advise Europe Unless Confident Of Success

THIRD FOREIGN SUBMARINE IS SEEN IN U. S. WATERS

Its Identity And Manner In Which It Was Sighted Not Disclosed

By Douglas B. Cornell

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 7.—(AP)—While the world looked to this quiet Hudson valley village today for any sign that President Roosevelt might propose an armistice in the European war, the chief executive let reporters know he had no comment—and then went out to look over the trees on his country estate.

He kept in close touch with Washington officials, however, and the result of one telephone conversation was an announcement that a third foreign submarine had been seen in American waters—some 15 miles from Miami, Fla. Its identity and the manner in which it was sighted was not disclosed.

In respect to intervention in Europe's affairs, persons having entry to the temporary White House gained the impression that no doubt existed that news from Berlin—that Adolf Hitler would agree to an armistice if the president suggested one—was officially inspired.

But they received the further impression that Mr. Roosevelt would take no action unless he was confident of success. In that connection, the coolness with which Britain and France received the speech in which Hitler advocated a general European conference to adjust problems of the continent was noted.

William Hassett, a presidential aide, discussed with Mr. Roosevelt the Berlin reports, and then told reporters: "The president has specifically authorized me to say he will not have any comment on the dispatches from Berlin. There is nothing to say."

SENATE WOULD NAME ROOSEVELT PEACEMAKER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—A strong wave of sentiment developed in the senate today for President Roosevelt to step into the role of peacemaker in Europe.

Senators on both sides of the neutrality controversy expressed the opinion that the chief executive should take advantage of any clear opportunity afforded by overtures from Berlin to aid in ending the European war.

Administration quarters, however, remained silent.

At Hyde Park, N. Y., Mr. Roosevelt sent word to reporters that he had nothing to say.

It was pointed out in authoritative circles that this government has consistently taken the position that it was ready and willing to help Europe reach a general understanding on economic and disarmament questions, but had no intention of being drawn into its political disputes. This was the tenor of Mr. Roosevelt's peace appeals to Hitler prior to the beginning of the conflict.

Senate comment on the Berlin dispatches, almost without exception, was to the effect that there was no reason why Mr. Roosevelt should not endeavor to effect a peace and every reason why he should.

Senator Johnson, Democrat, Colorado, who has proposed previously that the chief executive join other neutrals in seeking an armistice, declared that it would be "a great honor for the president to mediate the European war."

He expressed the opinion that Mr. Roosevelt would have an opportunity to obtain an "honorable peace" and predicted the chief executive would take advantage of the opportunity.

OFFICER HELD FOR RESTRAINING PRESS

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 7.—(AP)—United States deputy marshals today arrested Sledge Medicus, a Mobile policeman, on a grand jury capias charging him with conspiracy to interfere with freedom of the press.

Five persons, including Sam B. Powe, political figure, already have been convicted, a sixth is under indictment and one was acquitted in the case.

The grand jury returned the indictment against Medicus in its report to Judge John McDuffie yesterday. It also named Allen E. Cameron, former bartender, for conspiracy to participate in the attack on Henry P. Ewald, former executive editor of the Mobile Press Register. Cameron was arrested yesterday.

The government, through District Attorney Francis H. Inge, charged the conspirators attacked Ewald because of an expose he was directing in the newspapers against gambling here. Inge contends Ewald was lured to a house on a night last February, and there attacked and photographed.

WOMAN IS FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

Leaves Note Saying She Can't Live Without Son Who Died In Spring

Mrs. Connie Davidson, 30, of Hodge, was found dead in her room at Hotel Virginia here yesterday afternoon, and Dr. Irving J. Wolff, Ouachita parish coroner, said she had apparently died of a self-inflicted bullet wound in the left chest.

Mrs. Davidson was said to have registered at the hotel Friday night and her body was found about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Lawrence J. Hulin, assistant manager of the hotel, and a chamber maid. Dr. Wolff said the victim had apparently been dead from 12 to 14 hours.

Dr. Wolff said the body lay on the bed, with a .25-caliber automatic pistol lying near Mrs. Davidson's right hand.

According to reports, the hotel chamber maid had made trips to the woman's room on the third floor on several occasions during the morning and early afternoon, attempting to get in to clean the room. She found the door locked on each occasion, it was reported, and finally informed the assistant manager, who was on duty at the time.

In a report to police and Dr. Wolff, Assistant Manager Hulin was quoted as saying he had gone to the room with the chamber maid and knocked at the door, getting no response. He finally opened the door with the hotel key and discovered the tragedy.

Chief of Police Frank V. Reitzell and Dr. Wolff were immediately summoned to investigate the case.

According to reports, the pistol had

FEDERAL GRAND JURY OPENS NEW INVESTIGATION

Announcement Made After Body Holds Unexpected Session Saturday

CITY DEPARTMENT PAY IN ORLEANS UNDER SCRUTINY

Inquisitors Act On Own Initiative When District Attorney Reluctant

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The federal grand jury here is investigating an alleged "tax assessment reduction racket" that was described in charges made in February, 1939, by Hugh M. Wilkinson, attorney, federal attorneys officially announced today.

The announcement was made after the grand jury unexpectedly held a two-hour Saturday session which District Attorney Rene A. Viosca said was devoted to unfinished business and then adjourned until 9:30 a.m. Monday.

Viosca said that as soon as the jury's probe of the "racket" is completed he would present a large volume of reports from WPA investigators who have been combing the state for three months gathering data on WPA activities and projects under supervision of Paul A. Hansen, agent in charge of the WPA regional investigative unit.

Wilkinson filed charges before the State Bar of Louisiana on the alleged "racket," which he said cost the state and city a large sum of money, and the charges were referred to the district attorney. After an open court hearing it was announced that there was no evidence to substantiate the charges.

Payrolls of city departments are expected to be examined next week by the Orleans parish grand jury after it reconvenes Monday.

Court attaches said Charity hospital "salary sheets" had been furnished to the grand jury before its week-end recess while dock board and sewerage and water board rolls are expected to be turned over next week.

Court reports said some disagreement over procedure had developed due to District Attorney Charles A. Byrne's opposition to an investigation of dual office-holding, and the grand jury ordered the records on its own initiative.

Byrne and other city legal counsel held that in their opinions legislators on the city payrolls were not dual officeholders in violation of the city charter but were city "employes."

Yesterday, after handing down two indictments in the "double move" of a Charity hospital building charging embezzlement against three men, the grand jury conferred with District Judge George P. Platt on procedure.

The judge said the jurors wanted to discuss with him rules of law governing their body. Although there was no official comment on the conference, attended also by Assistant District Attorney Conrad Meyer, Jr., reports said a disagreement had arisen over certain interpretations of the law governing the grand jury's powers.

Federal grand juries here and at Monroe and parish grand juries at Shreveport and Baton Rouge which have been investigating the Louisiana political situation were in adjournment until Monday.

MALONEY, JR., NOT CANDIDATE

Little Chicago Absorbs Monroe And West Monroe

Little Chicago, the mythical municipality that extends eastward into infinity from Five Points, has absorbed the cities of Monroe and West Monroe. Or maybe it was vice versa and the Twin Cities adopted their rip-roaring neighbor.

It wasn't at all clear Saturday and even students of international law were at variance. But that wasn't causing many headaches, for never have students of international law been in accord.

Here's how the question arose: In a bloodless plebiscite Thursday afternoon at Hotel Virginia, with Mayor H. H. Benoit of Monroe and Mayor Harry Williams of West Monroe voting in the affirmative, the Twin Cities, represented by approximately 50 municipal, parochial, business and civic leaders, agreed unanimously to accept, for a couple of days each year, starting this year, the roistering rule of Little Chicago.

Everyone in attendance at the meeting heartily approved the expansion of the annual election and frolic in Little Chicago into a Twin City celebration. Words of praise were heaped upon Little Chicagoans for their past efforts and the assemblage pledged itself to work toward building the yearly parody on democracy into an attraction that will command attention throughout the state, particularly northeast Louisiana.

The motion favoring the expansion of the flamboyant frivolity into a Twin City affair was proposed by J. L. Ewing, advertising director of The News-Star and The World. It was offered by Jack Allen, chairman of the Little Chicago executive committee, and seconded by Mayor Benoit. The vote was unanimously favorable.

Mr. Ewing, who previously had pledged the support of the local daily papers to the proposal to enlarge the celebration, opened the meeting by introducing Mayor Allen Ritter of Little Chicago, who, after taking the

EARL LONG SAYS HE'LL 'BE FAIR'

Declares His Is 'Only Genuine 100 Per Cent Huey Long Ticket'

COUSHATTA, La., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Governor Earl K. Long, campaigning for the governorship here today, promised if elected to "be fair and honest," and said "I am not going to lie. I am going to economize."

He declared his ticket is the "only genuine 100 per cent Huey Long ticket.

"I am not going to sell you out, I will not let you down, I will not vilify the name of Huey," he yelled hoarsely. "If you loved Huey, put your shoulders to the wheel with the one and only ticket pledged to carry out his principles."

Long, in a speech denouncing almost all his principal opponents, and several of the state's leading newspapers, predicted the administration ticket would roll up huge gains in both city and country parishes in the January primaries.

At one point he screamed loudly that he would "knock hell out of Vincent Mosely (an opponent) if he was as big as an earthquake," and said "and I would do the same to any other vilifier of the dead."

"When they prove that I stole a dime, I will get out," Long said. "I have no desire to be rich. I couldn't be happy."

Long said he could not be blamed for crookedness of others, and said his job as lieutenant-governor gave him no control of affairs. "The lieutenant-governor is just a knot on a log," he said.

"No paper can find anything wrong with my record. If they could have, they would have done it long ago. I had no more to do with contracts, construction and shakedowns than the man in the moon." He said that the (New Orleans) Times-Picayune was going "to make me governor in spite of the devil."

Pointing to what he termed the benefits that the "poor people" had received from the present administration he promised, if elected, to improve and double the mileage of the farm-to-market road system, to provide free transportation to all Red River parish students of the State

TAX COLLECTIONS ON TOBACCO CLIMB

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 7.—(AP)—W. A. Cooper, state collector of revenue, said today that tobacco tax collections in Louisiana have maintained a steady increase since the tax was levied in 1932 and in that period has practically doubled.

Collections for September, 1939, amounted to $383,926.93, and the tax for October, 1932, the first normal month under the present tax amounted to $193,303.59, he said. Total collections for 1938 amounted to $4,182,469.25.

With three exceptions, he explained, the tax every month has exceeded the tax for the corresponding month of the previous year.

Cooper attributes the increase in tax to increased consumption of tobacco, particularly by women.

Bryant Long, who is head of the tobacco tax division, Fred A. Blanche, attorney, and I. D. Meredith, Jr., auditor in the division, are in Atlanta attending the sessions of the National Tobacco Tax council.

SHREVEPORT AMENDS PARKING ORDINANCE

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 7.—(AP)—The city council today in special session amended the parking meter ordinance to meet with legal objections raised in recent opinions of District Judge E. P. Mills and City Judge Ruvian D. Hendrick.

The amendments abolished the traffic bureau, reduced the maximum fine for violations to one dollar and eliminated the referendum clause of the original ordinance.

The parking meter heads have been removed and will remain out of operation until after the validity of the revised measure is determined in court, Mayor Sam Caldwell said.

A hearing on the legality of the meters is scheduled for Tuesday before Judge Mills.

VALLEY FAIR IS CLOSING TODAY

Exhibition Proves Complete Success; Plan Broader Scope Next Year

Today will mark the closing of the Ouachita Valley fair of 1939, and with favorable weather conditions existing, a large attendance is anticipated.

The rodeo will be given for the concluding performance at 3 p.m. today. The fair exhibit buildings will be all open and no booths can be removed until Monday, according to the rules regulating the exhibition, stated E. S. Eby, secretary.

Saturday was a big day for the fair, it having been designated as 4-H day and as "kid" day, children being admitted at the gates for five cents or half the regular price. Also rides and concessions were operated at five cents a ride and school children and others from a wide area were in attendance from the time the gates were opened until far into the night.

The attendance for the week was far in excess of that of a year ago when it was estimated that 20,000 visited the fair. Figures for this year were not available last night but it will be possible in excess of 25,000.

All officials of the fair from C. C. Bell, president, John Birdsong, manager, to E. S. Eby, executive secretary, were highly pleased with the exhibition and declared that the encouragement received this year was such as to cause them to plan on a fair for 1940 that will be far wider in scope than any exhibition ever attempted in northeast Louisiana.

VETERAN ORLEANS RIVER PILOT DIES

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Captain Charles H. Cugle, 58, veteran river pilot and authority on navigation, died in Touro infirmary today.

A pilot on the river for 15 years, he wrote several books on navigation. He was a native of Baltimore, Md., but had lived in New Orleans since 1915. He served 14 years on vessels plying between New Orleans and New York and later was assistant inspector of hulls and manager of the sea service bureau of the United States shipping board here.

He is survived by his widow and two sons, Howard E. and Robert F. Cugle. Funeral services will be held Sunday.

DICTATORSHIP TO END, SAYS JONES

Candidate For Governor Promises To Restore 'Home Rule' Government

LAKE CHARLES, La., Oct. 7.—(AP)—A pledge to bring about "the end of dictatorship and the return of power to the sovereign people" was given tonight by Sam H. Jones, candidate for governor, speaking here in the courthouse square of his home town.

The speech was broadcast over a state-wide hookup.

Jones offered proposals to lessen the tax burden and restore "home rule" in local government.

"Under my administration," he said, "the sheriffs, police juries, school boards, towns, cities and municipalities, large or small, with no exception, will receive back their right to rule in their own localities, in their own way, with their own assistants.

"Let these local officials be responsible to their home folks—the people who elected them. This will end autocratic government in its entirety. No more absentee control."

Jones attacked "deadheads" and dual office holding and gave proposals to lessen the tax burden "placed upon the poor by the present administration."

"A just and equable tax system that will shift the weight of government expense from the poor and deserving onto the non-productive drones in our society, this I advocate. And how?

"Abolish the burdensome and unreasonable sales tax which has been placed upon the poor by the present administration, contrary to a campaign pledge, and do away with the token which operates as a burden on almost every necessity of life.

"Wipe out, or lower the nuisance license taxes that strangle every small business.

"Reduce all automobile taxes.

"Have a real homestead exemption, not subject to the tinkerings and wiles of politicians.

MAJOR WATSON STILL MISSING

Four Army Fliers Fail To Find Trace Of Unreported Airman

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Pilots of four army attack planes arrived here late this afternoon from Barksdale Field, Louisiana, to report that a search of the country between here and Shreveport, La., had yielded no clue to the fate of Major D. D. Watson, Randolph Field, Texas, flier.

Watson has been unreported since he took off from the Nashville municipal airport at 10:55 a.m. yesterday on a flight to Memphis.

Aiding the search for the missing flier were two Tennessee national guard pilots, Major J. L. Grisham and Lieutenant H. H. Jones of Tennessee's 105th observation squadron.

Watson's mother, Mrs. Jim Watson, who lives at Paris, Tenn., said there that her son had just been transferred from Randolph Field to duty on the Pacific coast and took off from Nashville intending to eat lunch with his wife in San Antonio and then fly on to Oakland, Calif., for dinner.

Grisham's search today covered an area from Paris, Tenn., 130 miles northeast of Memphis to Memphis and from Memphis to Nashville via Whiteville, Jackson and Jack's Creek. The section over which he flew is fairly thickly populated and one in which any forced landing likely would soon become known. The Hatchie river valley, or "bottom," in west Tennessee, was the only heavily wooded and sparsely populated area in the searched territory.

Officers of the Nashville airport said the search of Grisham and Jones so far had covered a restricted area and that with the four army fliers they would widen their search to cover all southwest and west Tennessee.

Watson was reported to be flying a low-winged, single-motored plane which could be landed in a good-sized

War In Europe Likely To Center In Air And On Sea

By Kirke L. Simpson
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Pending a more definite Franco-British rejoinder to the Hitler "peace move," neutral speculation centers on the extent to which the German leader's reichstag speech may indicate German war plans for the immediate future—if it is to be war.

Military minds found considerable of significance to interest them in Hitler's words. His speech may have furnished a missing factor without which the possibilities or probabilities of early ruthless war in the air in western Europe were not previously clear.

It is not lost upon such trained onlookers that Herr Hitler, in drawing his graphic word picture of what continuation of the "unthinkable" war in the west would mean, talked almost wholly of war of the air.

His picture of long range French and German guns pounding away at enemy towns and cities far behind the front argues against a German plan to attempt to crash through the deeply fortified French Maginot line. Likewise, it spells out German confidence that her own Seigfried line can hold out against any assault.

To the German leader, as to all military folk, it is the air power factor that alters the probable scope and nature of this war from any that the world previously has seen. It was the airways of attack he had in mind.

"Whatever cannot be reached by the long-distance guns will be destroyed from the air," he warned. . . . "And this battle of destruction will not be confined to the land. No, it will reach far out over the sea. Today there are no longer any islands."

There can hardly be a doubt that Hitler was calling up visions not only of German air fleets raining destruction upon the British Isles, but upon British merchant shipping and war craft as well. Submarine sinkings leave some hope that the crews may escape in ships' boats, even if the attack comes without warning. Air at-

HITLER CONFIDENT PEACE PROPOSALS TO BEAR FRUIT

Paris Reports 30,000 Tons Of Merchandise Stopped By Navy In Week

(By Associated Press)

French and German guns boomed along the western front last night in an artillery duel which topped a day of speculation by Europe's diplomats on the Allies' probable answer to Adolf Hitler's peace formula.

The French general staff in its night communique declared the artillery action occurred between the Moselle and Saar rivers, along with patrol activity in the region south of Zweibruecken.

The German communique, issued earlier, referred to the artillery fight as "only a sporadic barrage of fire." The Nazi generals, however, declared local scouting and troop actions of the enemy were repulsed and two French planes were downed.

Yesterday's reactions in Berlin and Paris on Hitler's reichstag speech were represented as varying widely.

The French and English were said in Paris to be playing a waiting game—delaying action on the western front until the blockade of Germany could be made more effective by winter.

Paris sources indicated the Allies were confident that if Germany was forced to go through a winter without sensational land battles to bolster her morale the Nazis would be much weaker with the coming of spring.

In connection with the blockade, the French reported their navy stopped 30,000 tons of merchandise destined for Germany during the first week of October.

In Berlin, the Nazi slogan was "out of the Siegfried line by Christmas."

Adolf Hitler was said to be confident his peace proposals would bear fruit. His leaders declared they saw no reason why the trenches could not be emptied by Christmas if the powers desiring peace acted immediately upon Hitler's formula.

A detailed reply by Prime Minister Chamberlain to Hitler's reichstag speech was expected in the house of commons probably Wednesday.

There was no further word last night from the British admiralty on what it said was an attack by German flying boats on two British minesweepers in the North sea. The announcement, however, said there were no casualties on either side.

Apparently confident that all of their reserve manpower would not be needed in the immediate future, Rumania, Yugoslavia and Hungary have begun partial demobilization of their armies.

A communique by the Rumanian government disclosed that the three nations began decreasing their forces September 30. Diplomats said the step probably pointed to solidification of a Balkan neutrality group.

Rumania was said to have had 500,000 men in her army for the last month, Yugoslavia about 500,000 and Hungary more than 300,000.

In the Baltic area, scene of swift moves by Russia in the last week, Finland announced the calling up of new army reserves while delaying a reply to a Russian bid for a Moscow conference.

Previous invitations to Finland's Baltic neighbors to conferences in Moscow have cost them concessions to Russian power—and northern capitals speculated whether Finland would attempt to stand against that trend.

RIDER OF RUNNING BOARD IS CRUSHED

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Victor Disher, 22, of Harvey, La., riding on the running board of an automobile, was crushed to death yesterday when the automobile sideswiped a truck near Sorrento.

Andrew Pampas and Malcolm Guidry, both of New Orleans, were also on the running board but escaped. The three were hitch-hiking a ride to New Orleans from the CCC camp at Alexandria, of which they were members.

State police said the driver of the automobile, listed as J. E. Baker of Atlanta, Tex., was placed in the Donaldsonville jail. Baker's companions, listed as Bruce Wilkins and Ralph Philby of Sewanee, Okla., and Olive Higgins of Liberty, Miss., were held as witnesses.

pasture. Airmen expressed the belief he could have found places to land safely anywhere between Nashville and Memphis except in the Hatchie "bottom" if he were flying the regular air route. They pointed out, however, that Friday's flying weather was "unrestricted," which they said meant that the flier did not necessarily have to follow the regular route.

Airports in north Alabama were requested to be on the watch after a farmer reported that he saw a plane turn southward Friday near Savannah, Tenn.

Airport officials here said Watson's plane, a basic training ship of the type used for instruction at Randolph field and equipped with a two-way radio, had enough fuel for a nonstop flight to Little Rock or possibly to Barksdale field. He was unreported at either place, although it was explained he could have refueled en route.

The Barksdale field fliers, who left here at noon today, reported they flew over a four-mile front en route here but discovered no sign of the missing plane.

WIFE IS SILENT ON HIS DISAPPEARANCE

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Officials at Randolph field were still without word today concerning Major Dayton D. Watson, Randolph field officer, missing since he took off from Nashville, Tenn., Friday morning for a return flight here.

Major Watson was due at Randolph field last night. The National Guard Aviation unit at Nashville has been requested by airdrome officials here to make an aerial search.

Major Watson left Randolph field Wednesday on a navigation training flight to Nashville. He took off from Nashville Friday at 10:55 a.m. for Memphis on the next leg of his journey, which requires but 1 1-2 hours flying time.

His wife had no comment to make on his disappearance.

members are supposed to do work that has already been done by others, a great saving can be effected. A definite program to retire the huge public debt, saddled on us by those presently in power, can and should be put into force."

The speech was Jones' first as a fully qualified candidate for governor, in which he opposes incumbent Earl K. Long and nine others.

Turning to the present administration, whose leaders he termed "their fraudulencies," Jones asserted:

"The ill-gotten gains of your political plunderers will be restored to the taxpayers. I will root them out and jail those guilty to the last man. Their costly mansions would become public museums to serve as an everlasting warning of the wrath to come to those who would waste the state's tax monies and natural resources."

The Lake Charles candidate in further outlining his program advocated guaranteed representation at the polls for all candidates for office, removal of "martial law at our elections, as practiced in the past," restoration of Louisiana State university to the "high plane upon which it has rested since before the Civil war."

Jones said "I am for, and will retain, free school books, but I am also for free school teachers as well, well-paid but free from political control and interference."

He condemned office holding in the executive branch by members of the legislature, and said "I will seriously consider a better and truer basis of pay for members of the legislature and thus remove them from executive influence."

He promised an end to "deducts" from salaries of state employes, public inspection of public records of state departments, impartial audits in all departments, and conservation laws "to end the waste of oil, gas, sulphur and other minerals."

Jones condemned "mishandling" of the state's oil lands, and said, "I have a plan, founded upon experience, which can easily double and can probably triple or even quadruple, the income of the state of Louisiana from this source. This source alone should be sufficient to supply the needs of many social security projects and benefits the people should have."

The candidate asserted there should be no conflict between capital, labor and industry and upheld peaceful picketing.

WAR IN EUROPE WILL BE IN AIR

tack on merchant craft, with bomb splinters striking down passengers and crew, could be more terrible than unrestricted undersea warfare.

The toll taken by German U-boats of allied shipping is as yet negligible by figures of the British admiralty. But combined air and undersea attack is a phase yet to be tested in actual war. In World war times, even lesser merchant craft afforded fairly stable firing platforms for guns with which to beat off submarines attacking on the surface. Whether they also can be adequately equipped with anti-air craft guns and crews to beat back air bombers remains to be disclosed.

In any event, there is nothing about the Hitler speech to suggest that Germany now contemplates a head-long assault on the allied defenses along the Franco-German border, or even another thrust across Belgium such as the German sweep of 1914. He specifically warned France that bombardment of Saarbruecken from the French-held "balcony" overlooking that German center would mean that "German artillery will in turn lay Mulhouse in ruins."

Out of that and renewed Hitler intimations of no desire to violate Belgian neutrality, military students can build up further the thesis that neither side is grooming its forces for a major attack on the west front before next spring or early summer.

Therefore it is in air and at sea and with war factors still to be tried on a major scale that the war must find its immediate frightfulness, if it is to be carried on now and through the winter months.

Another possible military factor can be glimpsed in Hitler's speech. He made no mention of Russian or Italian military force backing Germany's hand if the allies reject his peace proposals.

Had the German leader been able to count certainly upon his axis mate in Rome, or his new friends in Moscow, for battle aid, it seems likely he would have intimated it in order to darken further the picture he drew of what complete war would spell for all belligerents.

It would have capped his warning, under-scored his peace gesture.

Normal college in Natchitoches, and to give "free, hot lunches to all the undernourished, poor little old pitiful school children."

He said he respected his post as lieutenant-governor and that when he left the post "it was as white as driven snow."

Earle Christenberry, candidate with Long for state treasurer, predicted New Orleans would give Long a 60,000 majority.

He said "north Louisiana had given the state three great governors, Huey, O. K. Allen and now Earl. Down in New Orleans where I come from we want you to send Earl back to us."

Speaking of the old rift between the Longs, Christenberry said "Huey was so big hearted he couldn't see the faults of his friends. Huey could get along without Earl when he was riding high but he would look up Earl and try to make up when he got his back to the wall. Earl is getting more like Huey every day."

He declared Mrs. Huey P. Long was backing the ticket, and that her son, Russell, would start campaigning "with us" later.

The Louisiana political campaign gained momentum today as two bitterly opposed candidates for governor went to the people with vote appeals and a third candidate withdrew.

L. F. Clawson, secretary of the Louisiana Police Jury association and of the Caddo parish police jury, abandoned his bid for the governorship. Injured in an automobile accident, he has been advised against strenuous activities, he said.

Sam Jones, anti-administration candidate, spoke from Lake Charles over a state-wide radio hookup.

Long had another address scheduled later in Olla, LaSalle parish.

Attention centered on the legislative races as administration candidates continued to qualify. Jones' headquarters announced candidates for representative and other offices, as well as ward and precinct leaders, would be designated as soon as possible.

Filing for re-election Saturday were George Reitmeyer, for the state senate from the Fourth and Fifth wards of New Orleans; John A Kennedy, for house from the Eighth ward; Charles B. Anderson, for the house from the Ninth ward; Phil Arras, for the senate from the Eighth and Ninth wards, and James A. Lindsay, for the house from the 12th ward.

Paul H. Maloney, Jr., representative from the 14th ward and son of the national house member from the Second congressional district, said he would not be a candidate to succeed himself. He said "the press of business" caused his withdrawal.

Jones announced the following speaking dates:

Wednesday at Donaldsonville, Thursday at Grant Parish fair in Verda, Friday at DeRidder and Saturday, October 14, in Gueydan before the Catholic church bazaar.

ALLIES HOPE TO CONTINUE DELAY

ler's terms or even negotiation on the basis of them appeared to be ruled out in the light of yesterday's British government statement and sharp newspaper editorials.

A reply more detailed than yesterday's statement was planned by Prime Minister Chamberlain in a house of commons speech, probably next Wednesday in his weekly war report.

Discussion centered mainly tonight, however, on the prospect that Hitler's Reichstag speech would hasten an announcement of the specific war aims of the Allies and the terms upon which they would enter into negotiations with Germany.

Lord Halifax, the foreign secretary, indicated as much in the house of lords Wednesday when he said any peace proposal from Germany would be examined with care and added:

"I certainly do not rule out the suggestion that there might be a possible and desirable opportunity for some reasoned statement of the position adopted by this country before the world."

In general terms, Chamberlain has described the war aims as the removal of "Hitlerism" and the redemption of Europe from "the perpetual threat of German aggression."

Restoration of an independent Poland and Czecho-Slovakia also have been cited as war objectives.

But Allied proposals for creating a new order in Europe have been urged in political quarters and in the press since long before the outbreak of the war.

There was official silence on dispatches from Berlin suggesting that Hitler would agree to an armistice were it proposed by President Roosevelt or the head of any other important neutral power.

The admiralty announced that two British minesweepers were attacked by German flying boats in the North sea this afternoon. The announcement said no casualties were suffered by either side.

FRENCH AND BRITISH PLAY DELAYING GAME

PARIS, Oct. 7.—(AP)—French and British sources indicated today that the Allies were playing a delaying game to prevent the start of major German operations on the western front in order to let winter weather give full effect to the blockade of Germany.

These sources indicated that Allied leaders were convinced that if Germany had to face a winter siege without sensational land battles to bolster the morale, the Nazis would be much weaker when weather cleared again for military operations in the spring.

French military observers set the end of October as the outside limit for the German offensive to start. While there often is "Indian summer" weather in Alsace-Lorraine through October, the weather turns bad with the beginning of November and stays bad through February.

Experienced French military men recalled that during the last war the weather was such that there never were more than two weeks in December and January when it was possible for airplanes to take off, even for reconnaissance flights.

The French and British appeared to be taking full advantage of Adolf Hitler's "peace lull," doing everything possible to prolong it until the end of October.

After that the war probably would settle down to a winter siege with the western front stalemated and the British and French fleets drawing a sea cordon about Germany.

SOUND TRUCKS MAY BE CURBED

Proposed Ordinance Is Approved At Chamber Of Commerce Meeting

A proposed ordinance to regulate the so-called sound truck nuisance, was given approval of members of the civic affairs committee of the Chamber of Commerce and five sound truck operators who attended a special meeting in the rooms of the chamber Friday afternoon. The ordinance would permit sound trucks to operate in the business section from noon to 1 p.m. and from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m.

In the residential section hours in which operation would be permitted are designated as 10 a.m., to 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. The proposed ordinance will be submitted to the commission council of Monroe and to the board of aldermen of West Monroe.

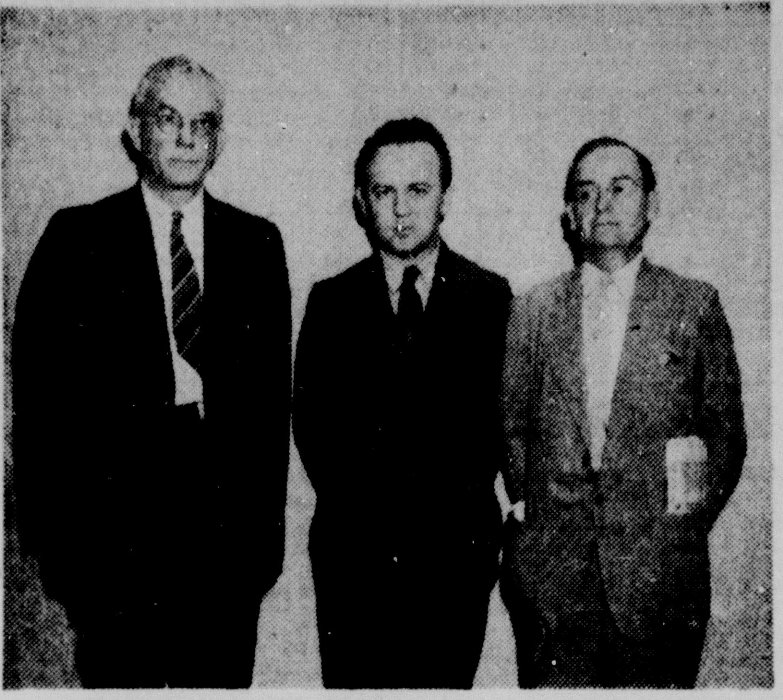
The hours when sound trucks will be permitted in the downtown section are so-called "flat hours" when there is a relaxation from business duties, as they come at a time when many are out for lunch or dinner. In the residence section the hours are selected with the view of causing the least possible disturbance to family routines.

No sound trucks at any time are to be permitted within one block of schools, hospitals or sanitariums.

In the choice of hours, the city of Shreveport was consulted and the time named in which to permit sound trucks is similar to what prevails there and in Waco, Tex. The residential section hours are not copied from any city but are proposed for Monroe and West Monroe as suited to local conditions.

A discussion of the subject was held and all present were given opportunity to express opinions with the result that all agreed on the plan as it was finally outlined.

THREE MAYORS OF ONE MIND



When Mayor H. H. Benoit of Monroe, Mayor Allen Ritter of Little Chicago and Mayor Harry Williams of West Monroe (that's the order in which they appear in the above picture) met at the recent gathering of municipal, parochial, business and civic leaders that unanimously endorsed the expansion of the annual Little Chicago election and frolic into a Twin City celebration, they were thoroughly in accord. They were all of the opinion that the affair could be built into a distinctive occasion each year. During the course of the meeting, Mayors Benoit and Williams agreed to allow their cities to be absorbed by their mythical neighbor, Little Chicago, for a couple of days annually.

PLAN FOR MASS TROOP TRAINING

War Department Makes New Move To Reinforce National Defenses

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—In a new move to reinforce national defenses, the war department today ordered unprecedented mass training this winter for more than 70,000 troops—a procedure intended to weld new army divisions into a mobile fighting force.

At the same time an intention to ask congress to expand the regular army by an additional 53,000 men to its full peacetime strength of 280,000 was indicated by disclosure of plans for additional divisions "when and if" increases are authorized.

Approved by President Roosevelt, the announcement for organization of the fighting force came from Secretary Woodring. It omitted reference to the European war or to earlier defense measures taken since Mr. Roosevelt's proclamation of a limited national emergency.

There was no hint whether the request for further army expansion would await the regular session or would be presented to the special session of congress after conclusion of the neutrality debate.

The extraordinary winter training was described by Woodring as "essential" in view of "the extremely limited numbers available for the defense of the United States as an initial protective force."

In the most extensive war games in army history, some 60,000 or more troops of five new "streamlined" divisions and special units are to be moved in the next few weeks from scattered posts, first to different concentration points in the south and northwest, it was announced.

Then they will be massed late in the winter at a central point—probably at Fort Benning, Ga., officials thought—for training as the first actual American army combat corps organized since the World war.

At the same time two cavalry divisions of about 5,000 men each will be trained at Fort Bliss, El Paso, Tex.

The intensive training in large scale "combat team" tactics will continue for months, officials said.

The body was sent over a morning Illinois Central train Saturday to Mena, Ark., his former home, where interment will take place this morning at 9 o'clock.

MRS. BESSIE B. DICKINSON

OAK GROVE, La., Oct. 7.—(Special)—Mrs. Bessie Bartlett Dickinson, 63, member of one of West Carroll parish's oldest families, died this morning at 10:17 o'clock at the home of a son, Joel B. Dickinson, clerk of court of West Carroll parish.

Mrs. Dickinson has been praised as an example of motherhood. Her husband died early in life and as a young mother she was left with four small children. She continued, however, to operate her small farm and to educate her children. But after the work of rearing her children had been completed, Mrs. Dickinson refused retirement and opened a small lunch room, which she operated in the business district here until failing health finally caused her to retire some time ago.

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Oak Grove cemetery with Rev. E. B. Emmerich, assisted by Rev. Drummonds, officiating. Services will be under the direction of Catron and Golden Funeral home.

Mrs. Dickinson is survived by three sons and one daughter, Joel B. Dickinson, Lee Dickinson, Louis Dickinson and Betty Lou Holt.

At the presiding officer's table with Mayor Ritter were Mayor Benoit, Mayor Williams and Commissioner of Streets and Parks C. R. Tidwell of Monroe. W. D. H. Rodriguez, commissioner of finance and public utilities, was out of the city, but he was represented by Walter Mangham, superintendent of municipal transportation. Present, too, was Frank Reitzell, Monroe police chief.

The parish was represented by D. Y. Smith, police juror from Sterlington; John M. Breard of Monroe, Ward 10 police juror; R. D. Farr, clerk of court; John Atkinson, deputy sheriff representing Sheriff Milton Coverdale, who was unable to be present because of press of business in connection with the current session of the parish grand jury; and Bert Coverdale, chief deputy, representing the assessor's office.

Among the business and civic leaders present were Lucius Hughes, president of the Lions club; S. A. Moss, president of the Monroe Kiwanis club; Lee Hodges, president of the junior board of the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe; Hal Hodges, manager of Sears, Roebuck and company here and an active member of the Chamber of Commerce; Dr. C. C. Colvert, dean of Northeast Junior college of Louisiana State university; A. B. Clarkson, president of the Twin City Community Chest; George Holland, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; P. G. Rowe, local manager of the Sherwin-Williams paint company, and Jimmy Newburn of the Central Trades and Labor council.

Little Chicagoans present in addition to Mayor Ritter and Mr. Allen were John J. Spatafora, Tom Adams, Earl Speights and W. C. Holstein.

Virtually every one present offered words of commendation for the past efforts of Little Chicagoans and pledged their support of a bigger and better celebration. All were of the opinion that the Little Chicago election and frolic has unlimited possibilities as a good will builder for Monroe and West Monroe among the neighboring people of northeast Louisiana. All agreed that there was nothing like a couple of days of comic relief each year for cementing old friendships and creating new ones.

Following the meeting, Mr. Allen announced that the Little Chicago executive committee would immediately draw up tentative plans for this year's celebration and submit them for approval or alteration to an advisory committee of Monroe and West Monroe leaders.

Mr. Allen listed the following on the advisory committee: Mayor Benoit; Mayor Williams; Police Jury President J. L. Warren; A. O. Evans, president of the senior board of the Chamber of Commerce; Lee Hodges, president of the junior board of the Chamber of Commerce; H. R. Saenger, chairman of the retail merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce; Ed C. Apperson, commander of Barkdull Faulk post of the American Legion; J. W. Keene, commander of Rodney J. Hobbs post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Mr. Hughes, president of the Lions club; Mr. Moss, president of the Monroe Kiwanis club; Dr. J. Q. Graves, president of the Rotary club; W. C. Fisher, president of the West Monroe Kiwanis club; H. T. Anders, president of the Y's Men's club; and Mr. Newburn of the Central Trades and Labor council.

Besides Mr. Allen, the Little Chicago executive committee is composed of Mr. Holstein, J. H. Birdsong and Mr. Rowe.

been held at close range, pressed against the chest, when the fatal bullet was fired. The fact that the muzzle of the gun was pressed against her chest when fired also muffled the sound of the shot, it was believed.

A note and the picture of a boy were found in the room with Mrs. Davidson. The picture was said to have been that of a son who had died with infantile paralysis last spring, and a part of the note found with the body was said to have read, "I can't live without my boy."

The body was taken to Davis-Lawhead funeral home here, but later was taken to Jonesboro where funeral services will be held tomorrow. Mrs. Davidson is survived by her husband, her mother and several brothers and sisters.

Lloyd George Wages Peace

Nobody is likely to argue that Prime Minister Chamberlain of the United Kingdom, on his record, is one who is likely to turn heedlessly aside from any honest offer of peace that really promises a civilized Europe. It was Chamberlain who sacrificed so much (that did not belong to England) to the cause of "peace in our time."

So it seems strange indeed to see a figure rising in the house of commons and demanding that Chamberlain give fullest consideration to any offer of peace coming from neutrals. And stranger still that this figure should be that of the stocky little Welshman, David Lloyd George.

It is 20 years ago, true, but the world can scarcely have forgotten that this is the same Lloyd George who was so great a factor in forcing through the Versailles mill the treaty whose failure put the world where it is today.

Was it not this same Lloyd George who went before his electorate just before the peace conference opened, with a program of "hang the Kaiser and make Germany pay the full cost of the war"?

Was it not this same Lloyd George who won his election on that platform and then returned to Versailles in such a position that he could accept little less than his election platform called for?

Was it not this same Lloyd George who, with implacable Clemenceau, jammed through the peace negotiations impossible reparations demands on Germany, and who helped to jettison President Wilson's Fourteen Points?

Was it not this same Lloyd George who pushed aside the advice of the American negotiators when they said that the harshness of the Versailles terms would inevitably lead to the rise of a German leader who would seek to throw off the oppressive treaty?

Yes, it was the same man, and not one whose record would seem to argue that he is best qualified to contribute to the question of a 1939 peace. Such a peace must be better than the peace of 1919, or it will have been scarcely worth making.

Lloyd George wants the United States dealt a hand in any new peace conference "because you have there a great power whose interests are not European interests and which has not been involved in any of these disputes and quarrels."

Whether the United States might have any interest in the making of a general peace in Europe would depend largely on whether it proved to be a mere military armistice or a real settlement going to the root of the economic, colonial, financial and armament problems in a truly international way.

That Woodrow Wilson once envisioned such a world settlement, and what happened to his hopes, and why it happened, no one is in a better position to remember than David Lloyd George. And if there should appear in the United States a certain reluctance to take another hand in that game, especially if there are any deuces wild, again Lloyd George is in the best possible position to understand.

WAR PRICES?

The advance in price of American commodities since the war has been marked, leading some people to talk about "war prices."

But the remarkable thing about the price, say, of wheat, is not that it has risen 20 cents a bushel and more, but that it is still far below not only the war levels of 1918, but even below the 1910-1914 normal. That was figured at $1.16. Wheat closed recently in Kansas City at 82 cents, whereas it was pegged by the Food administration during the World war at $2, and after those restrictions were removed, jumped to $2.76 in 1919.

Up to now, the war in Europe has not meant "profiteering" for the farmer, whose price is still well below the "parity" sought by the agricultural administration, and only a third of real World war prices. If there is going to be any "war bonanza" for American farmers, it isn't in sight yet.

FEEL SHEEPISH?

Are you one of the many people who have tried to woo sleep by counting imaginary sheep jumping successively over an imaginary fence? If so, it's time for you to feel sheepish.

It's the wrong approach to Morpheus, says Dr. Louis J. Karnosh, Cleveland physician. Counting sheep, or any similar dodge, says Dr. Karnosh, simply concentrates the mind on the expedient, thus keeping the insomniac wider awake than ever. Reading in bed, or any sort of mental gymnastics, simply defeats the whole plan.

The real thing to do is to relax as much as possible and then try to avoid thinking about anything in particular, thinks Dr. Karnosh. Trying to concentrate too hard on the sheep simply makes you the goat.

A first offender, jailed for drunkenness, had police write a note to his wife explaining where he had spent the night. He probably wanted her to know he had been keeping out of trouble.

French soldiers send pigs scurrying across batttlefields to set off mines, and, of course, they are blown to pieces. This, with the present high price of pork.

• BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON—At its regular session in January, congress probably will be called on to help the United States take advantage of its new export trade opportunity in South America.

The opportunity is simple enough. Last year Germany sold $283,000,000 worth of goods in South America. Uncle Sam can have most of that trade—and probably a share of British and French trade too—if he can find a way to finance it.

Financing it is apt to be tough. The administration has been studying the problem and has examined several suggestions. A high government official suggests that congress probably will be asked to do one of two things:

Either make more money available for financing the trade through existing machinery, or set up new machinery, with new financing, for handling it in a new way.

The handiest bit of existing machinery is the Export-Import bank. It has loanable resources of $100,000,000, but most of this is already committed. In the spending-lending bill which was introduced last spring, an added $100,000,000 was asked for the bank. The bank didn't get it, and if it is now to finance greatly increased trade with South America it will have to have more money.

U. S. Corporation May Enter Market

If new machinery is to be created, an entirely new method of handling the trade may be indicated. One plan which has been considered is to set up a government corporation to buy surplus South American commodities—coffee, wheat and so on—in much the manner that surplus United States commodities are now handled.

This scheme admittedly would be expensive, and has aroused strong opposition from the ace business advisers in the department of commerce.

A variant of this plan which has been suggested is to make direct loans to the leading South American countries, taking stocks of their raw materials as security.

It should be explained that there is a good deal of feeling in some groups here that none of these proposals would be wise; that the only sound way to handle the problem would be to let the South American nations make the approaches and to let all trade be handled in the normal way.

It is pointed out that the regular buying power of South America probably will be somewhat increased, since England and France may be expected to buy more heavily of South American raw materials, thus making more dollar exchange available; and that, in addition, world commodity prices are up so that the dollar volume of the South American trade will increase.

Artificial Boom Feared By Advisers

But in the main, according to this viewpoint—which is strongly held in the business advisory section of the commerce department—any artificial stimulus to trade, such as a heavy extension of credits, would be likely to bring about an unhealthy boom which would be followed by an abrupt collapse, with Uncle Sam holding a lot of worthless notes.

In the long run, it is argued, South America can take only such United States goods as it is able to pay for; if the United States buys more from South America it can sell more to South America, but if it refuses to buy more it won't sell so very much unless it puts up its own money.

A short time ago a number of American exporting companies discussed a plan for sending their best representatives to South America and putting on a whirl-wind sales drive. They finally abandoned the idea, and the commerce department was just as well pleased, figuring that when the South Americans need increased supplies of American products and have the money to pay for them they will act on their own hook.

Right now, commerce department people point out, the United States has 36 per cent of South America's trade, which is just about its fair percentage. Germany's much talked-of trade drive made its gains mostly at the expense of the British, not the United States.

JIMMIE FIDLER In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 7.—Dear Staff: Not nearly enough has been said about the voluntary, forty per cent salary cut taken by Darryl Zanuck, head man at the Twentieth Century-Fox studio.

For years, the common Hollywood howl has been: "If conditions are so bad, why don't the big officials lop their own incomes? Why must the little fellows always get it in the neck?" Only a few weeks ago, I editorialized by way of radio, about the studio under-pups being the real victims of all economy drives, while top officials continued to collect million-dollar salaries.

But now comes Zanuck to show the rest of the big fellows what it means to play ball with the industry that made him powerful and wealthy. After all, a forty per cent cut in Darryl's salary ain't hay. It's probably close to a quarter of a million dollars, which is a lot of dough for any man to surrender voluntarily. It means that about two hundred lesser studio employes may keep their jobs.

Zanuck's action calls for a spontaneous hurrah. It should land confidence to theater men especially. I know, were I a theater owner, I'd feel mighty safe dealing with a man who had so forcibly proved his loyalty to organization and the industry.

Darryl's move should re-create new confidence on the part of Mr. and Mrs. Public too. When other producers (and stars and directors, too) come down out of the clouds with their salary demands—the movie business will be more soundly stabilized. Better pictures and pleasanter feelings between studios, theater and the public will follow. You mark my words.

JIMMIE FIDLER.

Dear Cheer Leader: While giving Darryl Zanuck that hurrah, shed a pitying tear for poor old Uncle Sam, who is likewise taking a cut—about $125,000 of that quarter of a million comes out of Samuel's anticipated tax revenue.

You can ready another hurrah for it looks like Janet Gaynor will be returning to work pronto. Several years ago, you'll recall she bought the rights of Mildred Cram's novel, "Forever." She is now considering offers from two studios which want both the story and her services as star.

And a footnote to the many stories about Marlene Dietrich's about-face. It's true that she's thrown overboard all her restrictions against interviews and publicity pictures, but one ban still stands. She absolutely refuses to sanction any pictures of her daughter, Maria, ostensibly because she's still worried about kidnappers, but possibly because Maria is now taller than mama, and that might be de-glamourizing.

Here's a bird's-eye view of today's gleanings: Clark Gable has been invited to be king of the Akron, O., "Rubber Ball," to be staged December 2—a news note that gains human interest when you recall that Clark used to do manual labor in one of Akron's tire factories. . . . Jane Wither's mama reports that your item about her sponsoring the screen career of a neighbor girl has buried her under an avalanche of letters from screen struck parents who are offering her everything from a percentage of possible earnings to the profits of the old family farm if she will manage their spring-offs. . . . Don't rule out that reported romance 'twixt Eleanor Powell and roller-skate-maestro Wes Aaronsen, just because he's left Hollywood—he's due back this winter to re-pop question. . . . Bob Benchley is staking his secretary, Jeanette Messeurier, to a course in the American Academy of Dramatic Arts. . . . Standby for something new in the book line—Simon and Shuster have contracted to publish the complete behind-the-scenes story of the production of "Northwest Passage," as recorded by King Vidor in candid camera shots. . . . David O. Selznick was that impressed by Ingrid Bergman's work in "Intermezzo," so he's bought her German-owned contract and will bring her back to Hollywood come spring to star in "The Swan." . . . Boss, you ought to see the beard Errol Flynn is growing for his role in "Virginia City." . . . The Dick Powells, the Eddie Cantors, the Bing Crosbys and Burns and Allen will be honorary sponsors of National Better Parenthood Week, which takes off the 23rd.

This isn't news, but in the light of subsequent events, it's certainly interesting. Conning an old scrapbook one of the boys at Warner Brothers happened on an interview given by Jimmy Cagney in New York, just seven years ago, when he went back to receive the Big Stem's plaudits for his first hit in "Public Enemy." Asked to name the best actress and the best actor in Hollywood, Jimmy shocked the interviewer by naming two unknowns. Their names were Bette Davis and Spencer Tracy. Maybe some studio should hire Cagney to train its talent scouts.

Human Side Of The News

By EDWIN C. HILL

(Copyright, 1939, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

My occasional collaborator, Mr. Hymie Augen, can't get it out of his head that things were a lot better in this town back in the old days. Yes, and no, we would conclude, but it is obvious that any critical appraisal of our times from the frank viewpoint of another day is helpful to us in viewing accurately our own mis en scene. Since Mr. Augen, as a prominent stuss and blackjack dealer, knew many of the leading picaroons of his day, he brings forward fragrant memories of our "Age of Innocence" which such earlier authors as Edith Wharton overlooked. Mr. Augen, will you kindly turn back the clock?

"Speaking of tenors (Editorial note: Nobody had said a word about tenors) there aren't any around here any more. This town needs a few good tenors more than it does that new Sixth avenue subway. I just saw Eddie Murphy on the street the other day. Eddie was the tenor in the Gas House quartette that use to sing in Miner's Bowery theater. It was enough to make you cry the way Eddie would fan up that long swipe at the end. We had nice songs, too, like 'When the Harvest Days are Over, Jessie, Dear,' and not all this moaning, etc.

"But tenors was not mainly what I have on my mind, except it was what made me think that these smart young mugs around town are in many ways just hicks after all. I'm at a show the other night, with a lot of girls and crooning and so on, and one girl is pretty schmalt and a fresh young gazabo just behind me says 'get the hook.'" I look around and this guy is grinning like he thought he was putting over a fast one. And that crack made me homesick for the old days, and I'll tell you why.

"I think it was around 1902 that I was at a show at Miner's Bowery. Anyway, it was Friday night, because this was amateur night, and I and Slip Dugan always used to go on amateur nights. They called him Slip because he was a great cop-dodger—but I should save Slip for a separate yarn. This Friday night there was a singer so bad he jarred your back teeth. We all hollered like we were in pain, which was just how it was, but the more we hollered, the louder he sang and his voice was like a calliope with the croup.

"Charlie Guthinger, the manager, was waving to this pest off the side of the stage, but he couldn't stop him and it got worse and worse. Then Charlie had a great idea. There's a cake-walker on the bill with a strutting act and he has a cane with a crook on it as big around as your leg. Charlie takes the cane and ties it to a long pole which was used by some acrobats.

"We don't see Charlie but this crook catches the big noise right around the neck and jerks him so fast you saw the soles of his feet as he shot into the wings. Everybody was so pleased they yelled their heads off and some visiting cops had to tunk a few heads with their nightsticks before they could go on with the show. One or two acts was pretty good and got a nice hand and then along came another quince.

"It was funny the way everybody in the house got the big idea all in the same second. There was one big roar, 'Get the hook!' And that hook was one of the great inventions of the age, I'm telling you.

"That was how that way of speaking started 37 years ago, and this brat behind me, who is not yet dry behind the ears, thinks he's pulling a nifty, as the old saying is. Take it from me, a lot of these gags of today are old stuff to anybody who has been around as long as I have.

"Things have changed a lot, though, and Slip and I felt pretty lonesome at the show. We kept hoping that some comedian would have a pink wig. But that is all past and done for now. At Miner's we used to enjoy those pink wigs almost as much as anything. And then we missed the bladders. You can build a whole show around a few beef bladders and popping them off right. I was also homesick for the fat man who when he goes into a clinch with his stooge has a balloon under his vest which is punctured and deflates him, etc., with a loud bang.

"Tom Miner used to think up a lot of things like that. There were three or four of those Miner boys back in Big Tim Sullivan's day, and Little Tim's, and we sent one of them to congress to keep the Big Fellow company. I haven't heard if he worked in a few bladders and pink wigs in congress, but it wouldn't have been a bad idea at that."

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

(Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine)

Football is the most hazardous of collegiate sports.

Records during one school year showed that in 22 universities and colleges among 44,000 participants in athletics, there were 694 football injuries; 166 baseball injuries; 130 basketball; 80 wrestling; 74 boxing, and 73 track and field injuries. Football had by far the greater number of injuries, even though there were 9,626 playing basketball as compared with 5,400 in football.

Most important in preparation for any kind of a game, but particularly for football, is a suitable physical examination of the participant. The examiner must find out what diseases the player has had previously.

Certain diseases, like scarlet fever, disturb the kidneys. Repeated infections of the throat are associated not rarely with disturbances of the heart. Tuberculosis in a mild form may not be visible or easy to detect, yet if a person with beginning tuberculosis undertakes to play football, he may bring about damage that may incapacitate him for life or even kill him.

Chief attention is always centered on the heart. There are many simple tests of the efficiency of this organ. The simplest are those which test the rate of the heart when the person is lying down or standing up, and which measure the length of the time that is required for the heart to return to its normal rate after slight exercise.

An increase in the rate of the heart after exercise and a reasonably prompt return to normal after the exercise is stopped indicate that the heart functions fairly well. If there is a long delay in the return to the normal rate, special study must be given to the efficiency of the heart.

Football requires more pre-season training than almost any other sport except long distance running. Wind and endurance are developed only by repeated exercising day after day, the period of exercise being gradually increased as well as its intensity.

Many men lose from 1 1-2 to 3 pounds during a game of golf. It is said that football players may lose from 7 to 10 pounds during a game. A man in good condition tends to regain his weight during 24 hours. If a player fails to regain his weight within a reasonable time and is constantly dropping away from his best weight, he certainly needs a physical examination to determine whether or not he is in condition to participate in such a strenuous game.

A cow spends eight hours of her day grazing, and 16 hours resting and chewing the cud.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

THE NAIL-BITING HABIT

There are children who bite their nails whenever their attention is centered on something that does not force them to use their muscles. This is especially marked when they are reading to themselves. Lost in the story they are completely unaware that they are biting their finger-nails; usually the index finger-end fares the worst. No amount of talking seems to help. The moment the mind is occupied with the book the finger goes to the mouth. The child is scarcely conscious of it, but he feels happier that way.

This is not a pretty habit. It is never pleasing to look at a child gnawing away at his finger-ends in this fashion. It makes one uneasy to see his mind absent and the lesser mind, the one that is not so nice about physical habits, in control. Fingers look better if the nails are well kept. And they do their work better, that way. There are sensitive nerve-ends at the tips of the fingers with which we feel our way about the world. They enable us to make the nice adjustments we need in writing, drawing, sewing, doing any fine work. We need them for feeling our way.

When the nails are broken and bitten off, down to the quick, the protection of the nail is lost and nature grows a thick skin over the finger ends to give this protection. But a thick skin is a dull skin. The fine sensitivity of the thin skin is lost. The touch is dull, the action of the fingers, clumsy. Biting the nails is costly in terms of skill, comfort, and general intelligence. We express our thoughts with our hands, and if they are dulled and clumsy our expressions are like that, too. Good handwork aids the development of a fine intelligence. One cannot have good handwork if the finger-ends are injured by nail-biting.

What can we do to persuade the child to attend to this? To forego the pleasure and comfort of placing his finger in his mouth while he reads or studies? Get him to understand why he should. Then get him to want to stop the practice. It is easier to get a boy to help himself this way than it is to get a girl to want to have good nails so much that she is willing to sacrifice the pleasure for the profit. The boy oftener than the girl, wants to do good work with his hands, and he is more sensitive about the appearance he makes in this respect—finger in mouth appears infantile and stupid—and he responds sooner. Sometimes we can interest the girl in wanting to have pretty hands bad enough to take care of them, a little.

In any case, talk about the need for finely sensitive finger-tips, about the beauty of well-kept hands, about the value of efficient hands. Dwell on the point of use related to intelligence. There is such a thing as "dumb-looking" hands, and no child wants to own them. If he can see his hands in the light of intelligence, he will be led to develop them sooner.

It is wise and kind to teach young people that useful hands are beautiful. Care helps them to be useful. Care coupled with intelligent use makes them beautiful in the eyes of the world. This takes a deal of teaching, but it can be done.

The correction of bad habits will help your youngster, while he is still small, to feel a keener interest in life. Send for Angelo Patri's booklet, "Annoying Habits," enclosing ten cents in coin. Address Angelo Patri, care the Monroe News-Star, Postoffice Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

WASHINGTON—It sounds funny to hear reputable military scholars talk about battles and maneuvers in terms of the psychological effect they will have on one lone man well removed from the battle front, but that is the sort of talk most current in informed spots in Washington.

"Hitler is a mystic," we are told. "He has had phenomenal success with his guesses as to what will work for Germany and what will not. He has consistently outguessed his generals. He has convinced a large part of the German population that he is infallible. Also he has convinced himself, and that makes him vulnerable."

That is a composite quotation from several sources. It represents what certain skilled observers believe to be the basis of French-British strategy. Constant pressure of the blockade, of propaganda among the German population, of fighting on "German soil" on the west front—these and other factors are looked upon as likely to press Hitler into some decision which may turn out badly. The "myth" of infallibility will be shattered. Then might come a reshaping of German policy and an early end of the war.

Right

The thing sounds almost too slick but there is a substantial tracery of fact running through it.

It is generally accepted that Hitler moved into the demilitarized Rhineland four years ago in violation of the advice of his army executives. They thought France would fight. They were wrong. Hitler was right.

The same thing happened in Austria. The generals were wrong again.

Nevile Henderson, British ambassador to Germany, stated in his report of conversations with Hitler that even General Goering, No. 2 Nazi, was surprised and dismayed at the sudden move last spring into the rest of Czecho-Slovakia. Goering and the generals were wrong. Nobody made a fight about it.

Hitler was right again about the speedy success of the drive through Poland. Again, reports here indicate, some of his generals had been mistaken.

Keep It Up

Now informed sources have it that there is real conflict once more between Hitler and some of his generals as to whether a drive against France should be launched in event no peace comes at the end of the Polish conquest. Strategists here say England and France would like nothing better than for Germany to try a break through Belgium.

If such a drive were successful even in the beginning it might give Italy and Russia the incentive they need to come in with Germany for the final kill. In that event, Hitler would be right again and the generals all around would be wrong, both in Germany and in the camps of his enemies.

But if things went wrong on the western front a collapse of the "myth of infallibility" could bring on a quick end to the war.

The whole thing is tenuous but this is a very tenuous war. Even though the troops are arrayed in battle line, it still is a "war of nerves."

Grant's Six-Cent Lawsuit Almost Cost Army Career

A JUDGMENT of six cents won by U. S. Grant might have ended the military career of the brilliant Civil War leader at the battle of Shiloh. And the decision on Grant's future in the Union Army rested with the man who had termed Grant an idle loafer.

It was on a winter night in 1850 that U. S. Grant, then a lieutenant in station at Detroit Barracks, Detroit, Mich., slipped and fell on an icy, paved sidewalk in front of Zachariah Chandler's home. The injury incapacitated Grant for several weeks.

Grant demanded that Chandler, a wealthy merchant, pay his doctor bills. Chandler refused. Grant sued.

Chandler conducted his own case. He was an important figure in Detroit's business and political circles and he argued brilliantly, placing the blame for the accident upon whiskey, which, he alleged, Grant had imbibed too freely. The jury awarded Grant six cents.

Years later Grant was accused of having ruthlessly sacrificed hundreds of lives at Shiloh, relieved of his command. Chandler, now senator, headed the powerful Congressional Committee for the Conduct of the War.

Grant was reinstated to his command. The records fail to show Chandler's action. Probably, being a sincere patriot, he had forgiven Grant, in view of the general's military success.

Grant and Chandler later became close friends, Chandler remaining one of his most loyal supporters during his presidential term.

FIRE PREVENTION STRESSED HERE

Observance Of Week Planned By Ouachita Insurance Exchange

Virtually every means will be utilized by the Ouachita Insurance exchange, composed of almost all of the Monroe and West Monroe fire insurance agencies, in stressing fire prevention during the observance this week of National Fire Prevention Week.

Like other communities throughout the nation, Monroe and West Monroe has mobilized the press, the radio, schools and civic organizations in its fight against fire, the benefactor, but, at the same time, the destroyer of mankind.

Both the news and advertising columns of the World are being used today by the insurance exchange in putting across its message of the needlessness of disastrous fire.

Five-minute talks will be featured on the daily program of station KMLB beginning tomorrow. These addresses are scheduled for 5:30 o'clock each afternoon. The speakers will be: Warren Taylor, Monday; someone to be announced later, Tuesday; C. E. McKenzie, Wednesday; R. Q. Cole, Thursday; R. N. Slator, Friday; and Luther Reed, Sr., Saturday. All of these men are members of the insurance exchange.

Arrangements for these talks were made for the exchange by the fire prevention committee of the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe. This committee is headed by C. P. Brogan and its members are Ed Seymour, Ivy Jordan, Paul Reising, Henry Colbert, Jr., L. J. Hunnicutt, Frank Roddy and Noland McGaughey.

The committee has also arrangements for theme-writing contests in the various high schools of Monroe, for fire drills in all of the schools of this city and West Monroe, talks before students at all the educational institutions of the two communities, talks before the various luncheon clubs of Monroe and West Monroe, and for display of fire prevention placards in the show-windows of stores in the two cities.

The theme-writing contests are being conducted in Neville High school, Ouachita Parish High school, St. Matthew's Parochial school and the Colored High school. The winner at each school will receive a prize of $5 from the insurance exchange.

Speakers before the students at the various schools and before the luncheon clubs will be supplied by the insurance exchange. In connection with the talks at the schools, forms enabling householders to inspect their homes for fire hazards will be distributed to the students.

The officers of the insurance exchange are Ed Seymour, president; George Guerriero, vice-president; and Ward Sykes, secretary-treasurer.

DO'S AND DON'T'S TO PREVENT FIRES

Don't drop lighted matches. At home use deep ash trays and make sure the match is out!

Don't let rags which have been used for oil or paint, accumulate in cellar. Throw them away.

Don't use cheap electrical wiring. Make sure it is approved and safe . . . you'll benefit.

Don't use explosive cleaning fluids. It isn't worth the risk. Explosions are dangerous.

Don't use coins to replace "blown fuses and remember to fix all defective electrical appliances.

Do make sure that your plumbing system has no gas leaks. Do this periodically. Stop fire!

Do the right thing when a fire starts—call the fire department immediately. The Monroe phone is 112-113; West Monroe phone is 200.

Do your part to teach your family or employes the dangers of fire. Start immediately.

Do away with all old fashioned articles that are potential fire hazards.

FIRE PREVENTION IS URGED BY GOV. LONG

A proclamation calling on the people of Louisiana to cooperate in the prevention of fire waste has been issued by Governor Earl K. Long in connection with National Fire Prevention week.

The proclamation follows:

"Whereas, fires in the United States during the past and previous years are responsible for an enormous toll of human life, and direct loss of millions of dollars in property, as well as indirect loss due to disrupted business productivity; and

"Whereas, the continued appalling losses of life and property and economic losses have caused great concern on the part of our people, who have in the past observed a week in each year known as 'Fire Prevention week'; and

"Whereas, the statistical results of the education campaigns conducted during the past Fire Prevention weeks in the United States and the state of Louisiana show an appreciable reduction in the fire waste, conducive to lower cost of fire insurance and improved economic conditions,

"Now, therefore, I, Earl K. Long, governor of the state of Louisiana, do proclaim the week beginning October 8, 1939, Fire Prevention week in Louisiana and ask the active cooperation of all in the prevention of fire waste, with the consequent resulting public and individual benefit."

Proclamation

WHEREAS, in the United States each year fires take an enormous toll of human life and cause direct loss of millions of dollars in property, as well as indirect loss due to disrupted business productivity; and

WHEREAS, such fires can to a large extent be prevented by the exercise of proper care and the putting into effect of fire prevention measures by our citizens; and

WHEREAS, it is highly desirable that every citizen have a full understanding of his individual responsibility in the matter of fire prevention and the curtailment of the needless waste of lives and property;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Harvey H. Benoit, Mayor of the City of Monroe, do proclaim the week beginning October 9th, 1939, as FIRE PREVENTION WEEK in Monroe, and do heartily urge the cooperation of all in eliminating existing fire hazards and in the exercise of proper care, not only during Fire Prevention Week but throughout the year, so that the disastrous consequences of fire may be prevented as far as possible.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the Seal of the City of Monroe at the City Hall in the City of Monroe on this the 7th day of October, A. D., 1939.

How to Safeguard Electric Service In Your Home!

1. NEVER PLACE PENNIES BEHIND FUSES.
2. DO NOT PLACE CORDS IN DOOR JAMB. Squeezing like this breaks the protective covering.
3. CORDS SHOULD NEVER BE RUN OVER RADIATORS OR STEAM PIPES. Insist on approved cords made for use in damp places and where contact with metal is likely to occur.
4. NEVER LEAVE HEATING APPLIANCES CONNECTED WHEN NOT IN USE. Fire is too frequently caused this way.
5. DO NOT DISCONNECT APPLIANCES BY PULLING ON THE CORD. This loosens the connections and is a frequent cause of trouble.
6. CORDS SHOULD NEVER BE USED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR PERMANENT AND PROPERLY INSTALLED WIRING.
7. CORD SHOULD BE EXAMINED REGULARLY. Worn-out cords should be replaced immediately to prevent short circuits.
8. INSIST ON APPROVED LABELED CORD WITH APPLIANCES, LAMPS AND CORD ATTACHMENTS. They wear longer and are safe.
9. BE SURE TO HAVE ALL ELECTRICAL REPAIRS AND WIRING MADE BY A LICENSED ELECTRICAL CONTRACTOR.
10. HAVE ALL WIRING INSPECTED BY AN ELECTRICAL INSPECTOR. This is your assurance that the work is properly installed and will give better service under safe conditions.
11. NEVER RUN CORDS UNDER RUGS. They become worn too quickly.

F. B. I. PROBING SHIP SABOTAGE

Machinery And Water Tanks Of Battleship Arizona Reported Damaged

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 7.—(AP)—J. Edgar Hoover's federal bureau of investigation agents are looking into reported sabotage aboard the United States battleship Arizona. Its machinery and water tanks were rumored damaged during gunnery practice off southern California.

Hoover also said his department is keeping close watch on the steamship Iroquois, en route to New York with American war refugees, because a German official advised that the vessel would be sunk before it reached this country.

The head of the F. B. I. said that what happened aboard the Arizona was "one of those things I can't discuss." One rumor told of damage and another mentioned a "casualty."

Hoover did not say sabotage had been discovered but explained an investigation had been ordered to determine whether there had been any. The Arizona is flagship of Rear Admiral Russell Willson's battleship division one.

Discussing the Iroquois, Hoover said the German report had been given him at Washington and he thought there were good grounds for investigating.

"It is a matter on which we could not afford to take a chance."

The implication of the German message, as announced by the White house, was that the Iroquois would be sunk by Britain or France and the blame placed on Germany.

TWO HAIRLESS PIGS ATTRACT ATTENTION

WINNSBORO, La., Oct. 7.—(Special)—Hairless pigs are attracting quite a bit of attention down on the farm of J. F. Guimbellot southwest of here, and Farmer Guimbellot figures the work at "hog killing time" would be much easier if all porkers were hairless.

Six weeks ago seven little black and white pigs became new additions on the Guimbellot farm, but while five were normal in every respect, two of the little porkies were hairless. Farmers in the area have watched for signs of hair, but the hairless pigs are as devoid of foliage as ever.

FORMER BISHOP GIVEN SENTENCE

Hayward S. Ablewhite Must Serve One To Ten Years In Prison

MARQUETTE, Mich., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Within two hours after he was indicted for embezzlement of church funds, Hayward S. Ablewhite, 51-year-old former bishop of the Episcopal diocese of northern Michigan, was sentenced today to serve one to ten years in prison.

The former dignitary of the church appeared in court shortly after Circuit Judge Herman Dehnke, sitting as a one-man grand jury investigating shortages of diocesan funds estimated at more than $100,000, issued a warrant for his arrest.

Ablewhite has been living in Marquette for the past two weeks since he came from his home on the campus of Kenyon college at Gambier, O., to testify before the grand jury.

Through his counsel he waived preliminary examination and entered a plea of nolo contendere.

Informing the former bishop that this amounted to a plea of guilty, Judge Dehnke asked:

"Have you anything to say as to why sentence should not be passed at this time?"

"I don't think so, judge," Ablewhite replied weakly.

The court then sentenced him and specified confinement at the state branch prison at Marquette. Court attendants took him to the Marquette county jail to await removal to the prison.

The arrest warrant charged specifically that Ablewhite had embezzled $624 from the Pointe Aux Pins mission fund which was turned over to him when the mission, on Bois Blanc island in the Straits of Mackinac, was transferred from the Episcopal diocese of Michigan to the diocese of northern Michigan.

The court said the investigation had disclosed that the bishop had appropriated the money for his personal use.

Judge Dehnke said the grand jury probe "included many other items of much larger sums in addition to the mission fund," but declared that the technical solution was to impose sentence on one specific charge.

First public intimation that the financial affairs of the diocese were not in order came last March, when the standing committee of the Episcopal diocese of northern Michigan announced simultaneously the resignation of Bishop Ablewhite and a shortage in the G. Mott Williams missionary fund, of which the bishop was trustee. Later shortages were reported in other funds and church sources estimated the total at more than $100,000.

FOUR HOME RUNS ENOUGH TO BEAT CINCINNATI CLUB

Keller Hits Pair Of Round Trippers; Gomez, Hadley Are Hurlers

By Sid Feder

CROSLEY FIELD, Cincinnati, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The New York Yankees' powerhouse, after traveling in low gear before masterful pitching for two days, broke loose its home run lightning today to smash the Cincinnati Reds, 7 to 3, for the third straight victory in the 1939 series.

With the pitching giving way to the attack on both sides for the first time in this series, the bombing squad from the Bronx blasted four home runs—two by Rookie Charley Keller—and gave a strongly partisan crowd of 32,723 home-club rooters a display of the dynamite which has made it famous in its last three straight world champion triumphs.

In near mid-summer weather that had every one of the jam-packed stands a mass of shirt-sleeves, the Yankees made only five hits to ten for the National league kings—but they didn't waste a one, as Rookie Junior Thompson served his "boom boom" ball to them in just the right spots in the first five innings.

Keller clouted his first four-baggar after Frankie Crosetti had walked in the opening inning. Then clouting Charley drew a pass with two out in the third, and Joe DiMaggio snapped out his series hitting doldrums with a towering smash that soared high over the 383-foot mark on the center-field fence and into the street beyond.

Red Rolfe singled with one away in the fifth, and was promptly brought around by Keller's second four-bagger, a hard-hit drive that landed about 10 rows back in the right field bleachers. DiMaggio only managed an infield fly in this frame, but Catcher Bill Dickey, up right behind him, crashed a homer deep into the bleachers, some 375 feet away.

That was the end of Junior, the 22-year-old right-hander, who didn't have anything even closely resembling the stuff shown by his pitching mates, Paul Derringer and Bucky Walters, who lost the first two games in New York, despite heroic hurling.

That, too, was the end of the Yankees assault for Lefty Lee Grissom and young Lloyd (Whitey) Moore handcuffed them completely all the way through the last four innings. Not a Yankee reached first base in that time, and only three of them managed to hit balls out of the infield.

On the other hand, the Yankee twirling, although well below the form of Red Ruffing and Monte Pearson in the first two games, was not bad, once it got started. Lefty Gomez, holder of the all-time record of six straight World Series triumphs without defeat, started for the American league rulers, although still suffering somewhat from the injured side which put him into a hospital for several days at the end of the regular season.

But it wasn't Lefty's day. He tossed only one inning, and was promptly tagged for a run when, with two out, Ival Goodman beat out an infield hit, Buck McCormick sliced a single to right, and Ernie Lombardi slashed a grounder through the infield for a run-producing base hit.

Lefty took his turn at bat in the second, and then was "lifted" in favor of Bump Hadley, the right-hand veteran. Bump gave up the Reds' other two runs before he settled down. This

IRISH NOSE OUT GEORGIA TECH IN CLOSE TILT, 17-14

Notre Dame Halts Last-Half Rally To Win Intersectional Game

By Tom Siler

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 7.—(AP)—The Fighting Irish of Notre Dame, squelching a desperate last-quarter rally, squeezed out a 17-to-14 victory today over an underrated Georgia Tech eleven in a brilliant offensive battle before 33,000 spectators.

The inspired southerners scored the first touchdown and the last, but in between the Irish drove to their two scores and a first-period field goal, which gave them a hard-earned decision.

Tech came to life in the final period with the score standing 7-17 against it, the attack being paced by little Johnny Bosch. After Roy Goree had recovered Ben Sheridan's fumble on Tech's 34, Bosch passed and ran the invaders down to Notre Dame's 13-yard line.

Howard Ecter got two at center, then Bosch tossed a 10-yard pass to Bob Ison, who fell over the goal line. Ecter placekicked the point.

The Irish shock troops started the game and drew first blood when Harry Stevenson, Jr., booted a 27-yard field goal midway of the first period. Tech's first touchdown was set up when Bob Aderhelt blocked Bob Saggau's punt on his own 43-yard line. The ball bounded back to the 13-yard line, where Saggau fell on it.

But since the Irish had kicked on fourth down, the ball went to Tech on the Notre Dame 13. Ison got 10 yards on an end around, then Ecter hit the line twice, going over the second time. Goree kicked the point.

The Irish first team began rolling in the second quarter. The Irish took the ball down the field on a 65-yard march, climaxed when Saggau cracked center for the touchdown from the five-yard line. Lou Zontini placekicked the extra point.

Tech gave the Irish the ball on a punt. A 22-yard pass and a driving ground attack carried them to the three-yard line, from which point Joe Thesing carried it across. Again Zontini split the uprights for the extra point.

NORTH CAROLINA EKES OUT WIN OVER TECH

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Jim "Sweet" Lalanne, North Carolina's superb piece of football machinery, provided the punch today which gave the Tarheels a close 13-6 decision over a battling Virginia Tech team.

The Carolina quarterback took quick advantage of two scoring opportunities, counting from the three in the second period to climax a 38-yard drive, and adding another touchdown from the two in the next quarter after a quick spurt from the Tech 34. Harry Dunkle, soph back, made one of two placement tries.

Tech, after playing around in Carolina territory all afternoon finally reached the pay-off stripe 40 seconds before the end of the game when Willard Henderson shot a 16-yard pass to Garrett Taylor. Dunkle in attempting to smack the ball down tipped it into Taylor's arms on the goal line. Phil Demuro's placement attempt went wide.

KAVANAUGH IS BIG STAR IN TIGERS' STARTLING UPSET

Bengals Take Early Lead And Pile Up Big Score At Worcester

By Bill King

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 7.—(AP)—The Holy Cross Crusaders' hopes of becoming a national football power died today when rangy Ken Kavanaugh caught and intercepted four passes that gave his underrated Louisiana State university forces a 26-7 victory before a shocked crowd of 25,000.

Kavanaugh, one of the south's outstanding All-American end threats, is feared in every football quarter as a dexterous deceiver but the Crusaders appeared to ignore him most of the time, probably because Ash Simes, his favorite feeder, had been left behind in Baton Rouge to nurse injuries suffered while L. S. U. was taking a 14-7 setback from Mississippi last week.

That six-foot-three wingman, a 200-pound senior from Little Rock, Ark., made the Crusaders' efforts to maintain their zone passing defense appear childish as he sauntered into their end zone and caught three passes tossed by Leo Bird, understudying for the great Simes, that measured 25, 20 and 5 yards. His fourth touchdown was an 80 yard run back of a desperate pass toss by the befuddled Hank Giardi.

Giardi was trying to score from L. S. U.'s 15 yard line in the third period when he became trapped. He eluded several of the Tigers by zigzagging and then gave the ball an aimless flip, right into Kavanaugh's trap-like hands. Most of the Crusaders stood dumbfounded as he whizzed down their center lane to add an extra flourish to his scoring feats.

Holy Cross, caught unawares by an early quick-kick that Bird rolled to its one-foot line, was unable to recover its poise and power thereafter. It was unable to provide Ronnie Cahill, its passing ace, with the protection he required from the storming Tigers and its only touchdown was made when its substitutes went into action in the final quarter.

Frank Gaziano, a spare guard, recovered a fumble on L. S. U.'s 12-yard line to spark the Crusaders into their belated spurt and Bruno Malinowski, then spelling Giardi, finishing it by plunging a yard for the counter.

Shortly before that small measure of success fell to the Crusaders. Several of them nullified a 55 yard scoring pass, from Alex Nahigian to Johnny Kelley, by pushing and holding opponents.

Center To Meet Strong Ouachita Eleven Friday

Indians Travel To Arkadelphia To Battle Arkansas Baptists

The Northeast Center of L. S. U. Indians, who gave the highly-touted Louisiana State university freshmen such a hard battle here Friday night, will go to Arkadelphia, Ark., next Friday night to meet Coach Bill Walton's Ouachita college Tigers.

Malone-coached Northeast Center teams have beaten Ouachita teams only once in three games played. All battles with the Arkansans have been close and another hard-fought game is expected.

In the last appearance against the Tigers, in 1936, the Indians were beaten 12 to 7. The locals also lost to Ouachita, 7 to 0, in 1934.

The lone victory over the Ouachita college team was chalked up in 1935 when the Tribe produced its first undefeated eleven. In that year Ouachita had been undefeated and unscored on until Charles Lemak got loose on a fake kick on the second play of the ball game to score the touchdown that kept the Tribe's season record unblemished, yet shattered the Bengals' dreams of an undefeated year.

The Tribe, however, faces the possibility of being in a weakened condition to meet the Arkansas.

Don Short, veteran backfield ace, suffered a broken finger and a side injury in the battle with the Baby Bengals, Coach Jim Malone reported yesterday, and he will probably be lost to the Indians this week. It is possible, however, that Short will be used on some "specialty" play should the occasion arise, Coach Malone said. That "specialty" won't be punting, however.

Others to come out of the L. S. U. Frosh battle with minor injuries were John Evans and Hal Hanson, tackles; "Red" Barnes, end; and Bill Singleton, blocking back. They are expected to be ready for action against Ouachita.

During the absence of Short from the line-up, Roe "Rowboat" Wroten, who turned in the sensational touchdown run against the Baby Bengals, will probably work in his place. Wroten will run with the backfield combination that includes Guy Bryson, Max Hutchins and Singleton. Although Singleton is expected to play against Ouachita, his place in the line-up this week will probably be held by Robert May who has been doing some exceptional blocking lately.

The backfield combination of Harry Morton, "Tuffy" Westerman, "Preacher" Blackwell and Ben Starrett, that started against the Baby Bengals will be intact this week, having escaped last week's battle with only the usual amount of bruises.

DELTA TEACHERS BEAT LOUISIANA COLLEGE, 7 TO 0

ALEXANDRIA, La., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Delta Teachers of Cleveland, Miss., defeated the Louisiana College Wildcats tonight, 7 to 0, although the Wildcats outgained the visitors from scrimmage, 123 yards net to 6 for the Mississippians, and made eleven first downs to Delta's one.

Delta took advantage of a break in the first quarter when Captain Earl Thompson grabbed a fumble in the air, ran 40 yards with it and then tossed the ball to Earl Buckley who lugged it 17 more yards to the Cats' 3 where he was brought down by Don Poole.

Billy Ballard on four tries at the line scored the touchdown and Joe Thomas kicked the point.

The score was made with the Louisiana B team on the field after the Wildcats had made a first down on the Mississippi 9 yard line. An intercepted pass stopped this drive.

The Cats reached the Delta 18 with a minute to play but another pass interception on the goal line staved off the final threat.

Louisiana college made 101 yards in the air on 37 passes, completing 13. Four were intercepted. Delta picked up 16 yards on one pass out of three attempted.

TRICK-SHOT GOLF ACE HERE TODAY

Ashton To Show Wares And Play Match With Other Professionals

Art Ashton, magician of the golf links, will appear here this afternoon for an exhibition over the Municipal course and then conclude his program in a match with professionals of this area.

Ashton, of Los Angeles, Calif., is considered a master of trick-shot golfing, and comes here with a bag of deviltry that will prove helpful and entertaining to local golfers.

"Some of my hardest tricks look the easiest and some of the easiest seem the most difficult," Ashton stated. The genial sharpshooter moved in Friday and has already played several rounds over the Muny course in preparation for today's show.

As an added feature of the program, Ashton will team with Jean Shirah, Muny professional, in a match against Jimmy Fossick, Tallulah pro, and Winnie Cole, former Lakeside club pro of Monroe, who is now connected with the Vicksburg, Miss., club.

The trick-shot show gets under way at 1:30 p.m., and the match will follow immediately after.

The West Coast golfer who does miracles with a golf ball reputedly includes in his golfing repertoire more sensational and more difficult tricks than any other man in the business. Some rate Ashton as being even better than that "king of trick shot artists," Joe Kirkwood.

Besides his bag of tricks Ashton is the possessor of a well rounded game and holds several records on world famous courses. He includes in his collection of tricks more than 100 odd feats.

A small gallery fee will be charged.

OREGON DOWNS STANFORD

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Oregon defeated Stanford, 10 to 0, in a Pacific Coast conference game today before 20,000 fans. Duplicating their feat of last Saturday against U. S. C., the Webfoots scored in the last minute of the first half on a long pass from Smith to Graybeal. In the last quarter Graybeal kicked a field goal from the 15-yard line after a penalty had shoved the Webfoots back from the three-yard marker.

KENTUCKY TEAM UPSETS VANDY IN WILD TILT, 21-13

Wildcats Chalk Up First Victory Over Commodores In 43 Years

By Kenneth Gregory

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 7.—(AP)—After waiting 43 long, lean years Kentucky's Wildcats rose up in all their power today to achieve the first victory in history over Vanderbilt's Commodores, a 21 to 13 triumph that left no doubt as to superiority.

Thoroughly outclassing the Commodores in all the statistics, the Wildcats of the Blue Grass struck with passes and a well-coordinated running attack to overwhelm Vanderbilt for the first time in 18 games the teams have played.

Some 10,000 spectators saw the Wildcats achieve a well deserved Southeastern conference verdict in blistering heat.

Sophomore Ermal Allen of Morristown, Tenn., sparked the Wildcat attack with passing and running. The Kentucky team outgained Vanderbilt 211 yards to 40 carrying the ball and was out in front on first downs 18 to 6.

"Vanderbilt put on a marvelous passing attack which looked for a while as if we couldn't stop," said Ab Kirwan, the former Kentucky captain who now coaches the Wildcats, and added he was "thrilled" to be the first pilot to defeat the Commodores.

Ray Morrison, the former Vanderbilt star and Commodore coach said: "We lost and there's not much else to say."

The Vanderbilt skipper started his second team and quickly Mickey Flanigan tossed a 28-yard payoff pass to Ralph Hinton.

Kentucky came back to tie the count when Allen handed the ball on a reverse to Junior Jones, who raced 14 yards.

After the intermission Kentucky's captain, quarterback Joe Shepherd, intercepted a Vanderbilt pass at his 30 and dashed unmolested 70 yards for a touchdown. In the fourth period

OTTO LUDWIG AND DICK SAMPSON IN MAIN MAT EVENT

Yaqui Joe, Indian, Will Meet Frankie Hill In Semi-Final At Arena

Dick Sampson of Toledo, O., who surprised fans in his first appearance here last week by defeating the tough "Sailor" Moran, will be matched Tuesday night against Otto Ludwig of Germany in the main event at Gus Kallio's wrestling arena.

In the semi-final, Yaqui Joe, Sonora, Mexico, Indian, will meet Frankie Hill of Waxahatchie, Tex.

Kallio believes that with these grapplers he has again succeeded in lining up an attractive program for this week.

Ludwig, an exceedingly durable German, is an old hand at the grappling game and hard for any light heavyweight wrestler to beat. He is said to be much on the type of Carl von Bromberg, who is also from Germany and who has appeared in mat matches here more times than any other wrestler since Kallio has been promoting, because of the fact that he always puts forth plenty of wrestling and the fans are pleased with his showmanship and confidence. Kallio says he thinks Ludwig is fully the equal of Bromberg.

This will be the first time Ludwig has appeared before a Monroe crowd but he wrestled in Arcadia several times a few years ago and Kallio has had an opportunity to judge his ability. Doubtless some Monroe fans also saw him at that time, as a number from Monroe formerly attended the Arcadia matches.

Both Yaqui Joe and Frankie Hill are well known here and both are well liked, as each prefers the clean style and devotes his time to wrestling instead of cuffing the other fellow around. Yaqui Joe, whose legs are insured for $10,000, has demonstrated many times that they are his most powerful asset.

The cup to be awarded to the most popular wrestler again will be on display.

TULANE ROLLS UP 12-0 SCORE AGAINST AUBURN

WAVE TALLIES IN FIRST AND LAST QUARTERS TO WIN

ellogg Has Big Part In Breaking Scoreless Ties Since 1934

By Mortimer Kreeger

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 7.—(AP)— lane's powerful Green Wave de- ated Auburn 12 to 0 here today with o long touchdown marches in a me ending three years of score- s ties.

t was the first time the Greenies d scored on Auburn since their 13-0 tory in 1934. Twenty-eight thou- nd persons saw a greatly developed lane team crush Auburn's aerial reat.

The touchdown drives came in the st and last periods and covered 82 d 54 yards respectively.

Fullback Fred Gloden made the st score with a plunge over the burn goal after he and Halfbacks b Kellogg and Buddy Banker had eadily advanced the ball to the one rd line on a dozen running plays.

The second score came on a pass m Harry Hays, sub for Kellogg, to ptain Paul Kreuger for 15 yards.

Auburn's great halfback Dick Mc- owen was a hero in defeat. His nts kept Tulane frequently deep in own territory, and his passes and nning were a constant threat.

He got away late in the game for 21-yard left end run from punt rmation for Auburn's only first wn on running plays.

The first downs, 11 to 3 in favor Tulane and the advantage in ound gained, 211 to 116, told the dif- ence between the teams.

The first quarter was half over en Tulane took the ball after Mc- wen's punt had gone out of bounds its 18-yard line and started its first chdown march.

Gloden pierced the Auburn line ce for the game's first down, and llogg got loose for spurts of 13, 10 l 13 yards.

Banker carried the ball to the 18, and Gloden ran it to the 6, and in ee stabs Gloden went over. Kellogg ssed the extra point, something e for him. The second scoring drive rted after Kellogg returned a punt m his 35 to the 46 as the third quar- ended.

Banker and his substitute, Fred ssibry, made a first down into Au- rn territory and Harry Hays, in for llogg, went off tackle for 13. Cassi- y made a first down in four plays the 16 and, after three plays found Greenies almost in the same spot, ys threw to Kreuger, who took an Nyhan's place at quarter.

Kreuger was wide open and went er standing up. St. John Smith went and missed a place kick for the ra point.

Auburn threatened three times. dway in the second quarter a beau- l pass from McGowen to sub end dy Faulk gained 19 yards to put ball on Tulane's 27. A fumble, an omplete pass and Tulane's line ded the threat on the 18.

ater in the same quarter McGow- s 22-yard punt return and a long s from McGowen to George Wolft t the ball on Tulane's 23 but two omplete passes and one which euger broke up ended the drive.

n the third period Kellogg fum- d as he was tackled returning a nt and Gordon MacEachern of Au- rn recovered on Tulane's 25. But han intercepted a pass on his five

MIZE CAPTURES BATTING HONORS

St. Louis Slugger Finishes With Unofficial Average Of .349

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Unless the statisticians find, some time next winter, that they have been making a tremendous mistake, Johnny Mize of St. Louis is the 1939 batting champion of the National league.

The final semi-official batting records, released today, served only to confirm what had been known since the end of the season last Sunday—that Johnny finished with a .349 average for 152 games. There were only four players with higher marks, but the only one who came near a regular's rating was another Cardinal, Don Padgett. He had a .399 mark, but played in only 92 games and had only 233 official times at bat to 564 for Mize.

These figures won't be official, of course, until a final recheck is made, but that seldom, if ever, makes an important difference.

Second place among the regulars is shared by Frank (Buck) McCormick of Cincinnati, another first baseman, and the Cards' Joe Medwick, with .332 averages. Behind them come Paul Waner, Pittsburgh, .325; Morrie Arnovich, Philadelphia, and Ival Goodman, Cincinnati, .324; Enos Slaughter, St. Louis, and Zeke Bonura, New York, .319; Harry Danning, New York, .314; and Hank Leiber, Chicago, and Buddy Hassett, Boston, .309.

The season's only hitting records were made June 6, when the Giants went on a home run spree against the Reds. They hit seven homers, five in one inning and three in a row. They totaled 15 extra bases in that inning. That made two new one-inning records, while the three straight equaled a record. They duplicated that and the seven-homer total against the Phillies August 13.

The highest pitching honors went to the pair mainly responsible for putting Cincinnati's Reds into the World Series. Paul Derringer, with 25 victories and 7 defeats for a .781 average, topped the league's pitchers for the second time. Bucky Walters pitched 319 innings—31 complete games and 27 victories—all high marks for the season. Derringer also had the longest winning streak on the mound, 10 straight.

Other leaders included Bill Werber, Cincinnati, 115 runs; McCormick, 209 hits and 128 runs batted in; Hassett, 162 singles; Slaughter, 52 doubles; Billy Herman, Chicago, 18 triples; Mize, 28 home runs; Lee Handley, Pittsburgh, 18 stolen bases; Claude Passeau, Philadelphia and Chicago, 137 strikeouts.

U. C. L. A. TRIMS WASHINGTON

SEATTLE, Oct. 7. — (AP) — Coming from behind, the University of California at Los Angeles Bruins scored two second-half touchdowns to defeat the University of Washington Huskies 14 to 7 before a crowd of 16,000 today. Steele's end sweep scored for Washington in the first period. U. C. L. A. tied the count in the third quarter with Kenny Washington going over. Gilmore caught a pass and rambled five yards for the winning counter late in the fourth period.

OKLAHOMA WINS FROM WILDCATS

Sooners Trim Favored Northwestern Eleven, 23 To 0, In Upset

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Oklahoma's Sooners, the boss team of the Big Six conference last year, did everything right today to fashion a staggering 23 to 0 upset triumph over Northwestern, in spite of some brilliant operations by Bill Decorrevont.

The biggest opening day turnout in Northwestern's gridiron history, numbering 45,000 spectators, saw the game.

Decorrevont went into action late in the first period and lost 13 yards on two plays, but he came back late in the third period to return a kickoff 40 yards, race 13 yards around an end, and give a dazzling exhibition of footwork in slipping through the right side of the Oklahoma line for a 28 yard gain. A fumble nullified his gains.

Oklahoma scored its first touchdown in the first period when Ollie Hahnenstein, Wildcat back, fumbled as he attempted to kick. John Shirk, Sooner end, recovered on the Wildcat six, and after Jack Jacobs, the Sooners' Indian halfback, took it to the one Fullback Bob Seymour rammed it over.

Beryl Clark led another advance a few minutes later and when Northwestern braced on its 15, Quarterback Dick Favor kicked a 24 yard field goal from placement.

Hahnenstein's second fumble on his own four yard line in the third period, led to the second touchdown. Clifton Speegle, Oklahoma's clever junior center, recovered and Seymour crashed over again. The final touchdown came as Northwestern staged a desperate aerial attack in the last session. The heaves had been clicking but John Martin snatched a toss from Chambers and skipped 53 yards across the goal line.

MISSISSIPPI STATE TRIMS FLORIDA, 14-0

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Mississippi State's up-and-coming football team jumped into the Southeastern conference championship race here tonight with a 14 to 0 decision over Florida.

A pair of fast-moving State backs—Jack Nix and Frank Chambers—gave the visitors the edge over an aroused 'Gator eleven which stayed in the fight all the way.

The 12,000 spectators were kept on edge throughout by long runs, fumbles and intercepted passes.

State—conquerors of Howard and Arkansas—pushed over its first touchdown in the second period, cashing in on a pass from Billy Jefferson to Nix. The play was good for 30 yards. Nix sent his place-kick squarely between the uprights.

Scoring stopped then until the final period, when Toxie Tullos went over from the one-yard line to end a 52-yard march started in the third period by the reserve backfield.

The point was place-kicked by Chambers.

PLACEMENT AFTER TOUCHDOWN WINS FOR 'BAMA TEAM

Sanford's Kick Is Margin; Tide Outplays New York Eleven

By Bill Boni

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Hayward (Sandy) Sanford, who specializes in making good on vital place-kicks, came through as advertised this afternoon to boot Alabama's big red elephants into a 7-6 victory over what had been rated a highly-promising Fordham football team.

While Sanford lived up to his promise in adding the extra point to Sophomore Jimmy Nelson's first-period touchdown, Fordham fell far short of the mark it was expected to reach.

In full view of 41,454 customers at the Polo Grounds, the Rams showed a passing attack as antiquated as the Wright brothers' flying machine. They connected for one aerial that gained 28 yards in midfield but they threw 11 others that were far wide of their receivers.

Alabama, on the other hand, moving impressively along the ground, tried only four passes, completed two, and used only one on the way to its touchdown.

This came in the early minutes of the first quarter. Checked after moving 25 yards from the opening kickoff, the Tide came right back from an exchange of punts to go 40 yards for its score. The biggest gain and the scoring one was Nelson's 18-yard sprint around Fordham's right end. Charley Boswell first faked the ball to Fullback John Hanson, then fed it to the speedster.

As Nelson cut across the goal line, Sanford already was off the bench and on his way into the ball game. He stepped into position and kicked a placement.

From then until the final quarter, when it capitalized on a blocked quick kick to go 17 yards for its score, Fordham made only two threats. One fizzled out in the air in the first quarter, after a neat three-man punt return had covered 61 yards and given the Rams first down on Alabama's 19, and the other was stopped by an end zone pass interception after Fordham had recovered a 'Bama fumble on the southerners' 21-yard line.

That interception, by Herky Mosley, gave Alabama the ball on its 20. Held by the Ram line, the Tide tried a quick kick. Fordham Tackle Joe Ungerer broke through to block it and Fordham Guard Tom Bennett recovered the ball. In five plays the Rams went over, with Dominick Principe, regular fullback who was hurt in the first quarter, bucking through from the two-foot line. Alex Yudikaitis missed the try for extra point.

Otherwise, the game was all Alabama, which made nine first downs to the Rams' four, outrushed Fordham 152 yards to 79, and was helped enormously by the fine punting of Mosley and Boswell.

OLE MISS WALLOPS SOUTHWESTERN, 41-0

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Ole Miss uncorked a brilliant running and aerial attack here today to drub Southwestern 41-0 before about 12,000 spectators.

The Rebels, using three teams and sparked by fleet Jimmy Tillman and Les Dodson, swept through the Southwestern forward wall almost at will, scoring in each quarter.

With Dodson spearheading the offense, Ole Miss moved to the Southwestern 10-yard line early in the first quarter. Chick Gladding, 195-pound wingman from West Chicago, Ill., took the ball on a end-around play and dashed across the Southwestern goal line for the first score. Erm Smith's placement was good.

Rebel kickers kept the Lynx in hot water most of the afternoon, booting out of bounds several times near the Southwestern five-yard stripe.

Southwestern moved into Mississippi territory for the first time in the final period when little Icky Orenstein took the kickoff and raced to the 48. Jack Conn skirted right end for 21 yards, then moved to Mississippi's 9 on a pass from Orenstein. The Lynx attack bogged down when Smith intercepted a pass and returned the ball to his own 44.

Western Kentucky Team Trounces Techmen, 20-7

Louisiana Bulldogs Drop Lopsided Decision In Final Period

BOWLING GREEN, Ky., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Opening a powerful running attack in the final period, Western Kentucky Teachers scored twice to break a 7-all deadlock and take a 20-7 decision from Louisiana Tech of Ruston before 4,500 homecoming fans today.

Both teams repulsed opposition threats in a sluggish first half. A "break" aided Western in starting scoring fireworks in the third period.

After recovering a Western punt that struck a Louisiana player on the 26 yard line, the Hilltoppers made a touchdown on a 20-yard dash by Red Oliver and an end run over the goal line by Vernon Dulaney. Tom Zoretic kicked the extra point.

Tech capitalized on a break to tie the score 7-all in the fourth period. The Louisianians recovered a Western fumble on the Hilltopper five, and W. H. Hinkle carried the ball over on fourth down. Fred Michael's kick was good.

Western went back into the lead when Zoretic ripped off 28 yards for a touchdown, and John Magda gave the locals their final counter on a five-yard end run after he had set the stage with a 25-yard dash.

Western made 14 first downs, Louisiana Tech three.

Blue Devils Show Surprising Power In Walloping New Yorkers

DURHAM, N. C., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Duke university's Blue Devils showed versatility and deception today to surprise a crowd of 18,000 with a 37-to-0 football victory over Colgate.

George McAfee and his brother, Wes, and Frank Killian, sub for George, led the offensive play and either scored or helped set up a field goal and four touchdowns.

Duke had to be content with a field goal in the first quarter, booted from placement at the 12-yard line by Tony Ruffa after George McAfee had run 30 to Colgate's eight.

In the next period George passed to Bill Bailey for 26 to Colgate's eight and Steve Lach crashed the line three times, scoring on a half-yard smash at guard.

After the half Wesley McAfee passed to his brother for 39 and a touchdown, and a 34-yard flip by Wes McAfee to Roger Robinson, set Robinson up to hit right tackle for a yard and touchdown.

Killian broke away on a very deceptive Duke reverse to run 57 yards to score in the last quarter. Earlier he had returned a punt 38 yards to Colgate's 11. Duke couldn't crack the Red Raider line and Ruffa missed a try for field goal from the 14. George McAfee held the ball for Ruffa's goal and his miss.

Duke's other tally came when Carl Deane of the Devils spotted a sleeping end of Colgate's in the last minute of play, raced across the field in the nick of time, intercepted the pass and raced 30 yards to score untouched.

CUBS WHIP CHISOX

After years of mediocrity, Syracuse expects to rise to eastern football heights this season and much of Big Orange hopes are built on Dick Banger, triple-threat junior halfback from Chicago.

NEVILLE TO PLAY FARMERVILLE '11'

Tigers Meet Farmers For First Time Since 1932 In Class A Tilt

The Farmerville High school Farmers, returning to the Neville High school football schedule for the first time since 1932, will tangle with Coach Percy Brown's Bengals here next Thursday night at 8 o'clock at Brown field.

It will be a Class A conference battle, the second of the season for the Tigers who scored their initial conference victory over Mangham's Dragons here last Thursday night, 45 to 7.

Neville started the season with an inexperienced eleven that lost two games, each by three touchdowns, to non-conference foes, but they worked smoothly against an even more inexperienced Mangham team the past week and should have almost as good success against the Farmers. The Farmers, however, held the strong Jonesboro-Hodge aggregation to a 20-to-0 victory recently.

The Tigers, with good blocking, should not have to worry about ball carrying with R. C. Rivers and Guy Miller on the job. Neville should be able to polish off the Farmers and do likewise with the Winnsboro Wildcats here on October 19. The hardest conference battle for the locals is expected to be the Ruston game on October 26, and if Neville can get past that club they can almost be assured of a place in the Class A playoffs.

The only casualty of the Mangham game was the injury of Gus Petterson, tackle, who suffered a dislocated shoulder. Petterson will get light workouts the early part of this week, and it is probable that he will be able to play some in the Farmerville game.

MICHIGAN WINS, 26-13

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Fighting off a furious last-half assault, Michigan's powerhouse conquered Michigan State, 26 to 13, today to open the 1939 campaign. A howling throng of 68,618 alternately gasped and cheered as the Wolverines, apparently on their way to a smashing victory with a 26-0 lead at half time, had to fight every inch of the way to win.

OUACHITA MEETS VIVIAN ELEVEN

Parish Lions Seek First Victory Of Season Friday Night

The Ouachita Parish High school Lions go into action here again Friday night, when they face the Vivian High school Warriors at Brown field at 8 o'clock. The Lions experienced an open date the past week.

The Warriors, who were rated as a Class AA team last year, are campaigning in the Class A division this year, and as a result, win or lose, the game will not affect Ouachita's double A chances.

Vivian hasn't been experiencing such a good season this year, having already lost to Bossier City and Oil City, but the Lions also are seeking their initial victory of the season and a good game may be in store.

Coach "Lefty" Haynes has indicated that there may be quite a few changes in his Lion lineup this week.

Bruce Gregg, quarterback, will probably be moved to a halfback post, Coach Haynes said, and either Herbert Pace or H. B. Kimball will take over the duties in Gregg's old position. Clayton Brown will remain in the backfield but "Cotton" Hall, who looked like such a promising piece of material last year, has dropped below expectations and will be dropped from the first team.

Changes in the forward wall have also been promised. "Sonny" Foreman and Sam McInnis, second stringers, played such a good game with the Lion "B" team this week against the Dubach Plungers that Coach Haynes has about decided to work one or the other of them into Howard Griffith's place at right tackle. Griffith is not expected to leave the lineup, however. He was a regular guard last year and it is probable that he will oust either Bill Haynes or Bill Edgar for a guard job.

One of the fastest developing performers in the Lion lineup has been Bill Eason, center, who plays tackle on the defense. Eason didn't look so good at the beginning of the season but he has progressed at such a rate that he is now one of the best in the forward wall.

Coach Haynes said his charges would open up with everything they had against Vivian and even try some "razzle-dazzle" by way of preparation for Haynesville on October 27.

TECH FRESHMEN PLAY CENTENARY

Bullpups On Edge For Annual Battle At Shreveport Monday Night

RUSTON, La., Oct. 7.—(Special)—Having drilled hard all week, the Louisiana Tech freshman gridders are on edge for the annual battle with the Centenary Junior Gents, to be played in Shreveport Monday night at 8 o'clock.

Except for an early game with the Louisiana State university yearlings at Baton Rouge, which the Bullpups lost, 21-0, the Tech frosh have served for the most part as cannon fodder for the Tech varsity squad in practice sessions and are anxious to perform again for their own glory.

George (Blue) Hogg, serving his sixth year as mentor of the Tech beginners, said he would leave Ruston Monday afternoon for Shreveport, with all abe-bodied Pups aboard the bus. The squad includes 27 men.

Indications are that a large crowd, as usual, will follow the Techlings from Ruston to Shreveport for the game.

Although the Bullpups suffered defeat at Baton Rouge, they made a creditable showing against the heavier and stronger L. S. U. boys, observers reported, and the Tech freshmen hope from now on to live up to reputations of past Tech frosh elevens. In 1934, Coach Hogg turned out an undefeated and untied yearling team. Last year, the Tech Pups were unbeaten but tied once, having defeated Centenary's Juniors, 12-6; Millsaps, 23-7; Mississippi college, 23-12, and having tied the Normal Imps, 7-7.

RICE OWLS BEAT CENTENARY, 13-0

Passing Attack Downs Gents Who Fail To Follow Up Opportunities

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 7.—(AP)—The passing combination of Ernie Lain to Speedy Moore, a halfback, gained Rice a 13-0 victory over Centenary tonight. Centenary had two splendid opportunities but could not follow them up.

In the second period Lain shot a long shaft to Moore, usually a substitute for Olie Cordill, who is reputedly the fanciest catcher on the club, and the halfback made a fine leaping stab to nail the ball. He scampered across with a 30-yard gain racked up.

In the fourth period Rice backs bulled their way from the Centenary 45 to the 24, and then two swift passes to Moore—one for 20 yards, the other for the remaining four, brought the second score.

The game was largely in the Rice direction, but Weenie Bynum, Centenary's hall of fame performer, gave the Owls a headache which should last them some time, and only the great play of Lain and Moore kept Rice ahead.

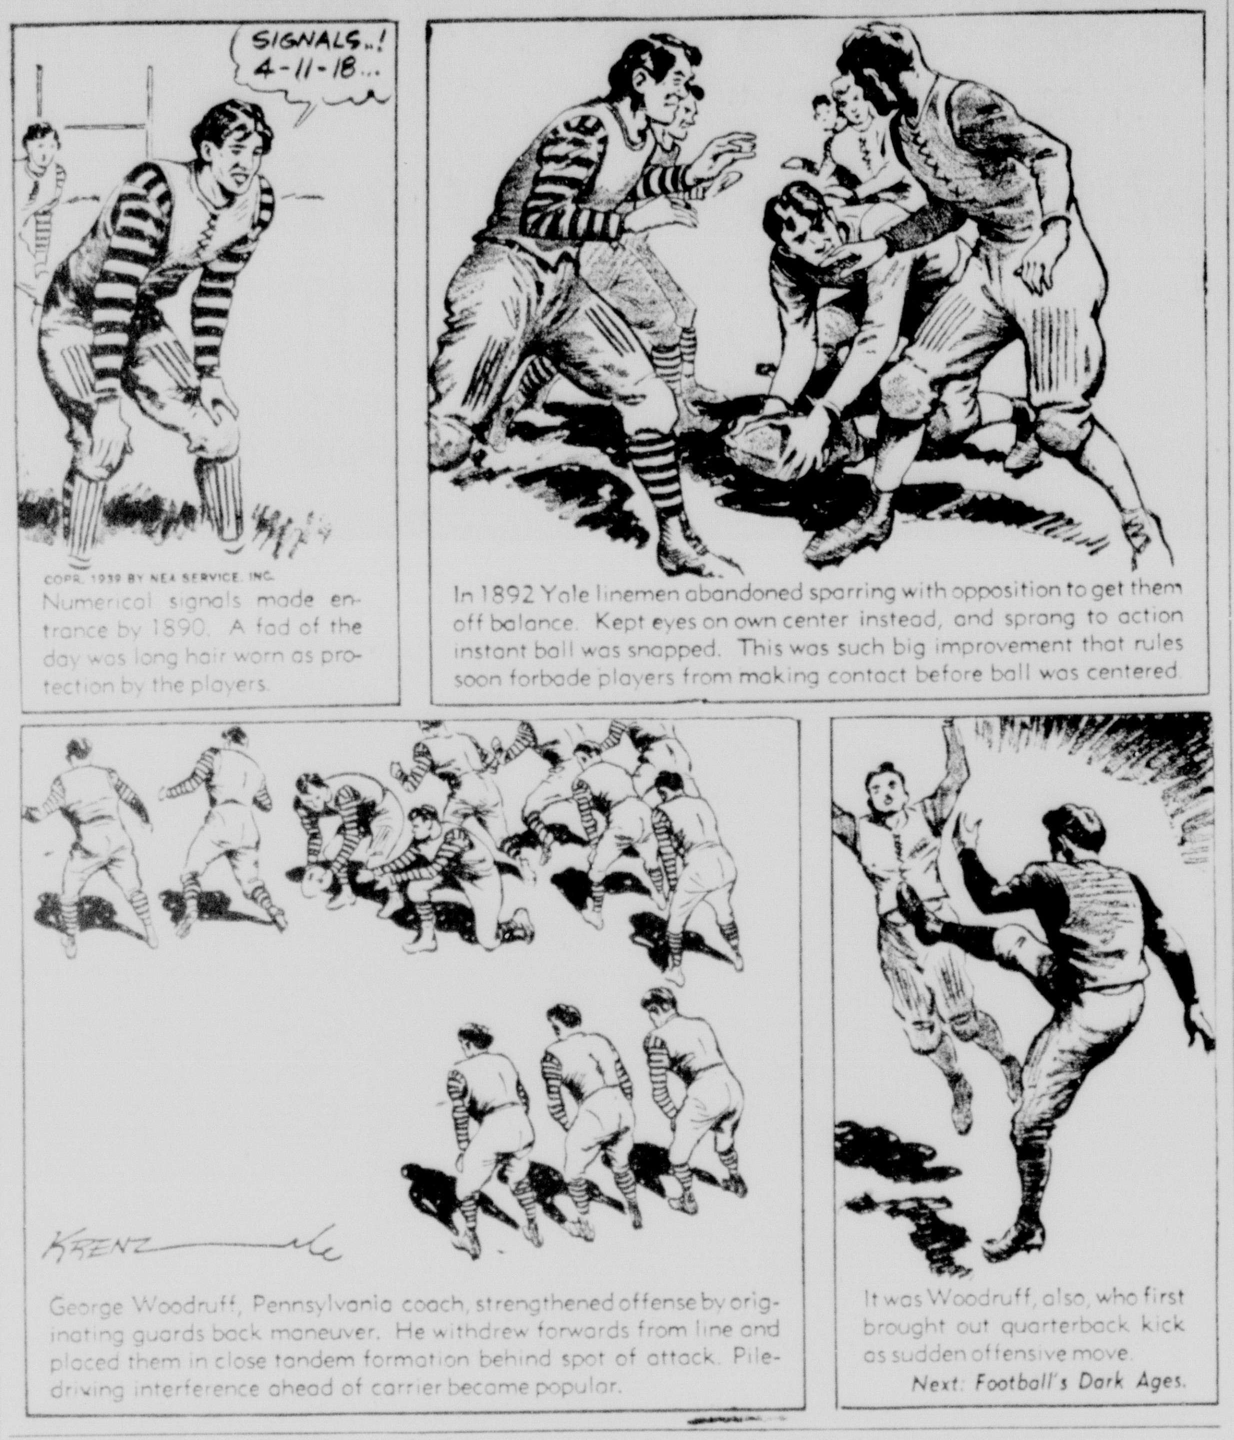
PIGSKIN PARADE

Guards Back Era



COPR. 1939 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

Numerical signals made entrance by 1890. A fad of the day was long hair worn as protection by the players.

In 1892 Yale linemen abandoned sparring with opposition to get them off balance. Kept eyes on own center instead, and sprang to action instant ball was snapped. This was such big improvement that rules soon forbade players from making contact before ball was centered.

George Woodruff, Pennsylvania coach, strengthened offense by originating guards back maneuver. He withdrew forwards from line and placed them in close tandem formation behind spot of attack. Pile-driving interference ahead of carrier became popular.

It was Woodruff, also, who first brought out quarterback kick as sudden offensive move.

TENNESSEE WHIPS SEWANEE, 40 TO 0

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Displaying flashes of the power and brilliance that swept them undefeated through 1938, Tennessee's Volunteers steamrollered little Sewanee, 40 to 0, today before 12,000 sun-baked spectators.

Major Bob Neyland used 42 men in trampling the Tigers, who gained a total of 10 yards in rushing the ball.

George (Bad News) Cafego steered the Vols to their first tally before the game was two minutes old, sparking a 60-yard march climaxed by his 12-yard pass to Halfback Bob Foxx for the score.

Sewanee's resistance stiffened, behind the play of Captain Arthur Whittington, and thrust the Vol No. 1 team back three successive times before the No. 2 team came in and reeled off three touchdowns in quick order in the second period.

Sophomore Johnny Butler, in for Cafego, personally conducted Tennessee to two of the three scores in less than four minutes. The first came after a 36-yard drive with Butler passing 16 yards to End Billy Barnes who romped over from the five.

Then Butler gobbled in George Glover's kick on the Vols' 37 and galloped 63 yards for the touchdown, assisted by some beautiful down-field blocking.

Fullback Joe Wallen's 32-yard power plunge through center put the Vols out in front 27-0 at the half and Cafego and Foxx ended the scoring parade by notching two more markers in as many plays at the outset of the third stanza.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

CINCINNATI, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Scooparade: Frankie Frisch and Bill Terry are buddying. . . . Give Frank Leahy and his Boston college gridders till November 1, then hold fast to everything. . . . Cincinnati papers now say they're beginning to believe some of the things they read about the Yanks. . . . One of them just the same says the Reds haven't got a chance. . . . What's this about Dr. Ray Sermon going out as athletic director at North Carolina State? . . . One of the series specials they ran out here was called the "Stan Bordagaray Limited."

Greek bearing gifts?

Clarence Rowland, chief Cub scout, says Bill Terry drafted Paul Dean on the recommendation of the astute Branch Rickey. . . . Ain't he the same astute Branch Rickey who recommended brother Dizzy to the Cubs (for $185,000)?

Today's laff! Ned Irish, the demon press agent trying to sell Pittsburgh the idea that the football Giants fear the Pirates in tomorrow's tussle. . . . Mayor LaGuardia came west to help root the Yanks in. . . . So did Dorothy Arnold, Joe DiMaggio's sugar. . . . And she didn't like it much when a Cincinnati doll dragged Joseph out in front of the hotel for a candid camera shot. . . . Ohio State, which is figuring to take Cornell in stride, should get wise to itself in a hurry. . . . The Reds and Indianapolis Indians of the American association have signed a new working agreement for 1940.

Today's guest star.

Joe Cashman, Boston American: "The Florida Grapefruit league did all right this year. . . . It turned out the one, two, three clubs in the National league and the winner and runner-up in the American."

Frank Winchell, famed Florida hotel man, known to every ball player and newspaper man who goes south each spring, married Miss Janie Case of Cleveland here last night. . . . Paul Derringer was best man. . . . They planned to wed in New York but the 72-hour law would have stymied them for today's series game. . . . The Rev. Harold J. Martin, president of the Canadian-American league, is rated one of the finest baseball executives in the country. . . . Some of the game's higherups are worrying about reports that Father Martin's bishop will ask him to give up his baseball activities.

Mabbe, mebbe.

A sign on a filling station near Hamilton, O., reads: "25 miles to the World's Series park here." . . . To which the Cincinnati Times-Star quips "that ought to be a safe enough distance from the expected DiMagginot line drive."

One-minute interview.

Leo Durocher: "As long as I've been in the National league I've never seen Derringer pitch a better game than he did Wednesday. . . . If the Reds can't win with that sort of pitching, when are they going to win? I'm asking you."

Saturday was the 14th anniversary of the death of Christy Mathewson.

FOUR HOME RUNS ENOUGH TO WIN

rally by the Rhinelanders in the second gave them a momentary lead.

It began with one out, when Billy Myers shot a single through short. After the umpires settled a lengthy argument that Thompson's foul-tip third strike had not been caught by Dickey's glove, the young hurler looped a single to short left, sending Myers to second. Werber then drove a line-single to center and Myers came home as the roar of the crowd rocked the stands.

Thompson was retired at the plate on Lonnie Frey's grounder, but Ival Goodman made up for it with a base hit down the right field line scoring Werber, and ending the Reds' run-making for the afternoon.

Altogether, Goodman was the Reds' hitting hero for the day, with three singles, two of them figuring in the Cincinnati scoring.

By the end of the second, Hadley had hit his stride, and for the last seven innings he gave up only three hits. In that stretch only two of the Rhinelanders reached third base, one of them, oddly enough on Hadley's wild throw of Lombardi's grounder in the seventh, for the first error of the series by either club.

The victory was Hadley's second in World Series competition. He won a game for the Yanks against the Giants in 1936, and two years ago was on the losing end, although going only an inning and a third.

With three straight decisions already locked up in his safe, Manager Joe McCarthy decided to give another of his "second string" hurling corps a chance in tomorrow's fourth game, so he will trot out Oral Hildebrand, 22-year-old right-hander who was rescued from the lowly St. Louis Browns last year.

Manager Bill McKechnie of the downcast National leaguers will shoot with Paul Derringer, his tall right-hander who hurled a brilliant game in dropping a 2-1 decision in the first tilt of the series.

With his fearful flailing today, young Keller established himself alongside of Babe Dahlgren, the Yanks' "weak sister" hitting first baseman, as the surprise batting stars of the series. Dahlgren hit for eight bases in the first two games, but was unable to connect today. Keller had preceded his two homers today with a three-bagger that started the winning rally in the opening clash.

By his double four-bagger job, this Ex-University of Maryland student, a short, dark, hairy-armed slugger, went into the record books at the first crack out of the box. Although Babe Ruth holds the all-time high mark, with three round-trippers on one afternoon—against the Cardinals in 1926—Keller today became one of seven men to hit two in a game in all World Series history.

In addition, the four runs he drove in—two with each of his power drives—came within one of the record for that particular assignment.

Although the whipping was tougher to take than the others, the Reds were a different ball club today before the home folks, who packed this park, even to sitting in the aisles, for the return of their favorite sons. Dejected and listless before Pearson's curves and fast ones Wednesday, they showed up today, after the Friday rest, as full of fight and "zing" as when they opened the series. And they went down fighting.

The victory today was the eighth straight World Series triumph for the New Yorkers starting with the last game of the '37 set. They broke into their clubhouse after the game singing, shouting and banging each other on the back, but the celebration soon died down, for this winning of series games is getting to be a habit with the Yanks.

TEXAS SCORES 17 TO 7 UPSET OVER WISCONSIN

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 7.—(AP)—A hard charging Texas university football team which took advantage of every opening handed the Wisconsin Badgers a stunning 17 to 7 defeat before a crowd of 25,000 here today.

After a scoreless first half the Texas Longhorns smashed through the jittery Badgers for a pair of touchdowns and a safety in the third period to take a 15 to 0 lead. They added two points on another safety in the final quarter. Wisconsin scored three minutes before the game ended.

Susa, near the Persian gulf, is considered to have the longest continuous existence of any city known to history, having flourished from 4,000 B.C. to A.D. 650.

ARKANSAS BEATS T. C. U., 14 TO 13

Porkers Stage Great Comeback To Down Favored Horned Frogs

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Battered Arkansas came back with a magnificent drive today for a 14-13 triumph in its Southwest conference opener with Texas Christian.

Mad passing kept Texas Christian in the ball game, both touchdowns coming from aerial gains of 50 and 75 yards.

Tied 7-7 near the end of the third period, Texas Christian's second string pulled an incredible 75-yard sky gain, little Rusty Cowart heaving a 20-yard pass to Halfback Logan Ware. Ware caught it and gained 50 more down to the Arkansas 15 where Aubrey Neal sent him sprawling.

The ball skidded to the one where Spud Taylor recovered for T. C. U., and Sophomore Frank Kring dived it across. Earl Clarke's kick was low.

Starting from their 40 after a short kickoff, the Porkers, with Kay Eakin passing, scurried down to the T. C. U. 16 on passing and Walt Hamberg's sweeps.

Eakin shot a pass to Sophomore O'Neil Adams on the six. Adams swept around from his end post and scored on an end around.

Jack Odle's return kick in the first quarter was wafted out of bounds on the T. C. U. 27. Southerland picked up one pass for a first down at the 17, and Adams grabbed the ball from Eakin on an end around and outsprinted the Christian secondary across the goal line. Simington converted.

The Christians scored on a beautiful pass play in the second quarter, Odle letting one fly for 25 yards down the middle that Durwood Horner picked up on the dead run and carried 25 more, unmolested, across the line.

Halfback Earle Clarke's conversion wobbled crazily but barely scraped over the bar for the extra point.

KENTUCKY TEAM DEFEATS VANDY

Kentucky counted again when halfback Dave Zoeller went over from the 3. Minutes later the Commodores' Roy Huggins quick-kicked 72 yards to set the stage for another tally. With the ball at Kentucky's 49, Huggins dropped a pass into the arms of end Ed Heistand and no one got close to him.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Leaders backed away in the stock market today, dropping fractions to around two points or more.

After a fairly fast opening dealings lagged. Transfers approximated 600,000 shares.

Most traders, it was asserted, refrained from taking positions pending official declarations by the French and British governments on Reichsfuehrer Hitler's peace proposals.

In the meantime the "war infant" shares were more or less neglected although most of the day's activity centered on the steels, and these, along with the chemicals, took the worst falls.

The Amsterdam bourse, only important market open in Europe, was irregular.

Off in the curb were Aluminum, Ltd., preferred, Bell Aircraft, Colt Firearms and Niles-Bement-Pond.

In the course of the morning Wall Street was informed the British purchasing mission, now in Canada, would visit the United States after the close of the debate on the neutrality bill.

Should the arms embargo be repealed, it was expected heavy war material purchases would be made, and if not contracts for other goods would be let.

Carloading of several railroads for a few days of last week were said to be fully as heavy as in the similar period of the week ended September 30, which showed a 1939 peak for all the carriers.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Wheat prices tumbled about a cent a bushel at the opening today, wiping away what was left of the extreme advance registered yesterday after the Hitler speech.

Lower security prices and a forecast of scattered showers for most of the grain belt caused selling here.

Opening 1-4 to 1 cent lower, December 82 3-8to 82, May 82 1-2 to 82, wheat later held near this range. Corn started 3-8 to 5-8 down, December 49 3-4 to 5-8, May 52 3-8 to 1-4.

Although rallying slightly from the season's lows, wheat closed 1 5-8 to 1 7-8 lower than yesterday, December 81 1-8 to 1-4, May 81 to 81 1-8; corn 1 1-8 to 1 1-2 down, December 48 3-4, May 51 1-2 to 5-8; oats 5-8 to 1 lower.

PARKER OUT FOR REPRESENTATIVE

Young Attorney Announces Platform For Race In January Primary

Hillyer S. (Dooley) Parker announced yesterday that he would seek nomination as state representative from Ouachita parish in the January primary. He issued the following statement:

"In announcing my candidacy for the state legislature I do so believing that in the administration of the affairs of our state the principles of honesty, efficiency and economy are more important than political experience. I pledge myself to a course of honest effort and fair dealing to everyone. Should I fall short of this policy, I will merit only the righteous indignation of the people of my parish.

"I presented myself to the voters of Ouachita parish in 1936 as an independent candidate for this office, and wish to take this opportunity to express my appreciation for the expression of confidence accorded me at that time by the citizens. At this time I again tender my candidacy as an independent candidate for the lower house of the state legislature from Ouachita parish, being firmly convinced that I can cooperate more effectively with the state and parish officials chosen by the people by virtue of being non-partisan and not being identified with any political party or faction.

"If elected to this high office I will cooperate with local officials and all citizens of Ouachita parish to the end that the interests and welfare of my people will at all times be fairly, honestly and unselfishly represented, and will devote my energies toward seeing that full value is received for every dollar of the taxpayers money expended.

"I will advocate and work towards the end that all state business be prorated equally among all merchants and business men fairly and impartially.

"In my humble way I have at all times championed the cause of organized labor and, if elected, I will work unceasingly towards the end that the laboring man in Louisiana will receive a fair and just compensation for his labor.

"I firmly believe that the school funds of this state are and should forever be sacred, in that they are dedicated for the training and education of our children who are to be our leaders and citizens of tomorrow. If elected I will ever fight to see that none of these funds are diverted to or expended for any other purpose whatsoever.

"To the farmers of Ouachita parish I promise my unceasing efforts to secure for them the much-needed farm to market roads that will enable them to dispose of their produce economically during all seasons of the year. To them I pledge myself to foster and vote for all laws in the interest of fair advancement to agriculture.

"I feel that deserving young men and women should be given an opportunity to share in the governmental service of our state. In them, rather than in the politician, lies the hope of permanent, peaceable progress among our people.

"I have no particular accomplishment to point to as a reason to solicit your support. I am a young man and realize that any degree of success that I may attain in the future depends upon the sincere and honest performance of my duty.

"I expect to make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of everyone."

Mr. Parker was born in Ouachita parish on April 16, 1905, and received his early education in the city schools. After leaving high school he entered Louisiana State university where he graduated in 1928 with an A. B. degree. He remained out of school until 1930 when he returned to Tulane university law school, graduating in 1933, and was admitted to the bar August 14, 1933. He has been engaged in the practice of law in Monroe since that time.

He is the son of the late John P. Parker, Sr., and Mrs. Parker, and a brother of the late Jack Parker, former sheriff of Ouachita parish.

He entered the race for representative in 1936, receiving 4,137 votes. He withdrew from the run-off election.

He is married.

Parole Report Criticizes System Used In Louisiana

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 7.—(Special)—Sharp criticism of the parole system of Louisiana for its "serious inadequacies" is contained in a recently published book entitled "Parole With Honor," written by Wilbur La Roe, Jr., a member of the board of parole of the District of Columbia.

The author, an advocate of independent and expert boards of parole, says in the book that "employment of board members on a part-time basis is not desirable." "The only thing to be said in favor of the Louisiana system is the segregation of the parole system from executive parole." The most serious fault found is the absence of field agents and the inability of the single parole officer presently available to supervise 300 parolees scattered throughout the state. The author says that not only is such supervision inadequate but it endangers the general public by allowing parolees a freedom which their release subject to the restrictions and safeguards of the parole system was intended to curb. A large number of failures of paroled men to make good is ascribed to inadequate supervision. It is urged that parolees be personally supervised by an adequate staff trained for the work. The author also recommends that provision be made for more adequate preparole studies.

The highest ranking states in the field of parole administration are, according to La Roe, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Wisconsin, Minnesota, California and North Carolina. Michigan and Georgia are also given high ratings. At the bottom of the list are Virginia, Florida and Mississippi, which have no parole laws. The author is extremely critical of "gubernatorial parole" as it exists in Montana, Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Alabama, and other states.

According to the author, the parole system affords the most modern and intelligent method of releasing prisoners who, in most cases, must eventually be released whether released on parole or otherwise. He says that society is best protected and the prisoner assisted to rehabilitate himself if a parole plan is provided for him including a home and job. This is contrasted with the old practice of handing a prisoner "ten dollars" and admonishing him to obey the law in the future.

Louisiana's jails are found to impose a serious handicap on the successful rehabilitation of prisoners. Of 67 jails inspected by officials of the federal bureau of prisons, 54 were given an efficiency under 50 per cent, 12 a rating not in excess of 59 per cent, and one jai lan efficiency rating between one jail an efficiency rating between

The author characterizes the sentencing of prisoners by judges as "largely guess work" and "based on hunches." He strongly favors general adoption of the indeterminate sentence procedure under which a prisoner is released when, and only when, an adequate parole plan is ready for him and he is ready for it.

CORN-TOP BREAD IS REINTRODUCED HERE

To add to the enjoyment of the present generation, City bakery, 320 North Fourth street, maker of Mel-O-Toast bread, has reintroduced a loaf of bread for which it was famous some 35 or 40 years ago.

Because it is made and baked in conformity with a formula that has been in the McCarthy family for 150 years, the proprietors of the bakery, Lawrence and John McCarthy, have named it Mrs. McCarthy's old-fashioned corn-top loaf. They decided to reinstate the bread because of the insistent demand of older residents of Monroe and West Monroe.

Before production of the loaf was launched Friday, the bakery went to considerable trouble to obtain baking pans exactly the size and shape of those used when the bread was in such demand a couple of generations ago. The loaf gets the name corn-top from the fact that it is baked with a coating of corn meal on the top.

The crust of the bread is thick but tender and the texture is open and light. Rich honey, instead of sugar, is the sweetening used in the loaf.

The loaf is now available at groceries and food stores throughout Monroe and its trade territory.

Numerous Charming Little Parties Claim Interest Of Society In Monroe

Hales Entertained By Hillyer Parkers

Biedenharn Home Scene Of Gracious Hospitality During Visit of Guests From England

By Eve Bradford

ALL society burst out of the summer doldrums last week. In their smartest togs they went to and fro nibbling at the special brand of hospitality reserved by hosts and hostesses for the first cool day. At the Hillyer Parkers there were caviar and cordials, and Frances Hale, until a week ago, Frances Germany, the toast of a gay crowd in wine colored velvet and a flock of roses on her shoulder. Lealis was hovering nearby, naturally, as he is the happy bridegroom. There were silver trays of canapes and delicious pastries and a variety of vintages rare enough to satisfy the most exacting connoisseur.

At the Joseph Biedenharn home there was tea—specially blended to meet the approval of Emma Louise, who, having spent the greater part of the past seven years in England, has become an inveterate tea drinker. There was a charming company of guests in the comfortable drawing rooms sipping tea and enjoying the spirited conversation which revolved around England as Emma Louise's house guest, Marian Faser, is a lovely English woman who finds the friendly shores of America much to her liking now that her own country is at war. Another guest in the Biedenharn home, Josephine Kincaid of San Antonio, was named guest of honor at this time.

This serving of tea is a most delightful custom. It dates back to the days of Confucius who said: "Be good and courteous to all, even to the stranger from afar. If he say he thirsteth, give unto him a cup of warm tea."

Hot tea is one thing and flaming coffee is quite another. Blanche Oliver excels in the preparing of a cafe brulot. It is a special concoction she mixes when one or two friends are gathered together in her home on late autumn afternoons. This is the way she prepares it: In a bowl place two lumps of sugar, two cloves, two pieces of lemon peel, a stick of cinnamon, and half a glass of brandy. Set a match to it and let it burn for half a minute, stirring constantly. Add two-thirds of a demi-tasse of coffee.

At the G. B. Cooley home, decked in southern smilax and golden hued asters, a lovely person, Mrs. R. H. Frost, was introduced to the wives of Monroe's doctors last week. Mrs. Cooley was wearing a blue lace gown and Mrs. Frost was wearing a black chiffon gown embroidered in white disks. One thing in particular we noted about Mrs. Frost, a distinct acquisition by the way, to the social and cultural life of Monroe, is her unusual speaking voice. It is low and musical and altogether delightful to the ear. We have Loren Carroll's word for it that a woman's voice and speech are the greatest weapon she possesses in her skirmish with the world. He says, "By speech we attract, repel, win or woo. A softly modulated voice such as Mrs. Frost possesses, is heard all too seldom.

We had a few words with Mrs. Tisdale Wednesday night as she was hurrying across the lobby of the Frances hotel with the Town Hall speaker, Upton Close. He was sartorially perfect in evening clothes and white boutonniere. Lita looked perfectly stunning in a black satin tailleur with heavy gold chain around her neck and a tall, close-fitting black hat. Mr. Close's talk at Northeast Junior college was most intriguing. In the Far East, while on the staff of Wu-Pei-Fau, he told of suffering from an attack of dengue fever and being picked up, unconscious on the streets of Hongkong and then of being nursed back to health in one of China's most luxurious "houses of joy."

Beauteous Lily Glenn, who passed from lovely girlhood to handsome womanhood in this city, has departed with friend husband for a new home away from cherished friends and members of one of the most devoted families in Monroe. Before she left she was presented with a beautiful vanity—a gift from a little coterie of friends who meet each week for cards. Lily, still affectionately remembered among old friends as Lily Marx, is one of five sisters, all of whom were born and reared in Monroe and constant companions until two of them met with tragic deaths last year. The three sisters who were left found carrying on without them rather a difficult business, but, courageous souls, all of them, they manage somehow and seem to be drawn even closer, one to the other.

Today is the day all the small fry come into their own. All the youngsters who own a horse or even ride one will be featured in the show in front of the grandstand at the Ouachita Valley fair this afternoon. Two of the enthusiastic riders in the field will be Harold and Lena May Woods' two youngsters, Wayne and Harold, Jr. They own their own horses and have been riding religiously for the past year.

By the way, wasn't the rodeo thrilling Wednesday night? Especially when Merrill Bush, Mary Black, Paula Steele, Rosabelle McDonald, Wilda Benson and Mrs. Jack Tyler galloped by the grandstand on their handsome mounts. Imogene Maish and Lena May Woods weakened at the last minute and decided not to ride. They both are accomplished horsewomen but feared their fractious mounts would shy at the unfamiliar blare of music and the applauding crowds. On country bridle paths their horses step high, wide and handsome but in the narrow enclosure surrounded by cheering people they were not to be depended upon.

Irene Reid hurried home from the fair the other night to watch her night blooming serus unfold. Sure enough, promptly at 12 o'clock the petals opened and the sweetest perfume imaginable scented midnight air. Irene was so intrigued with Mrs. E. S. Harper's blossoms last year—24 in number and all opening at the same time—she begged a root and was rewarded for her constant care by seeing one of the most beautiful flowers she ever gazed upon open before her eyes.

Miss Bradley And Oren Atkins Wed

Sincere interest is centered in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Alma Juanita Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Bradley, Coleman avenue, West Monroe, and Mr. Oren Atkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Atkins of Jonesboro, which was impressively solemnized on Saturday, September 16, in Bastrop with Rev. H. M. Bennett, pastor of the Baptist church, performing the ceremony in the presence of a few relatives and friends, at the pastorium.

The bride was exceptionally lovely in an advanced fall model of dewberry crepe with accessories of the same shade. A shoulder knot of white carnations completed the ensemble.

Mrs. D. Warrington, cousin of the bride, was her attendant, and wore a becoming black tailleur.

Mrs. Atkins was graduated from Ouachita Parish High school and Monroe Commercial school. Mr. Atkins is a graduate of Jonesboro High school and Ruston Tech.

The young couple are now at home to their friends on Pine street.

Mrs. R. H. Frost Guest Of Honor

Among the crowded hours of last week was the charming interlude in the home of Mrs. G. B. Cooley, who introduced Mrs. R. H. Frost to the wives of prominent Monroe physicians.

The Cooley home, ideally suited to entertaining, was adorned with pink and blue asters overflowing from floor urns against a background of palms and southern smilax.

Mrs. Cooley in blue lace semi-evening gown and Mrs. Frost in black chiffon embroidered in white coin dots, stood in the vestible to receive the guests.

Courtesies were extended by Mrs. William Rodriguez, Mrs. Nelson Abell, Mrs. Julius Kugler, Mrs. DeWitt Milam, Mrs. A. G. McHenry and Mrs. C. P. Gray, Sr.

Katherine Kugler and Nan Drew, lovely young members of the younger set, assisted Mrs Cooley in serving small sandwiches, pastries and other confections in the palm-banked dining room. Frosted frappe and coffee was also served.

Current Literature Club Holds Meeting

Mrs. R. L. Conway, Jr., was hostess to the Current Literature club members and their guests when they met at her home Wednesday afternoon.

The club was privileged to have Miss Sue Hefley, a gifted speaker, address them on the subject of "Personality." It was a most refreshing talk on her conception of personality and delighted her audience.

Constructively given to the club by Mrs. G. D. Holland was "My Memoir," by Edith Bolling Wilson (Mrs. Woodrow Wilson). This book is the only autobiography written by the wife of a president. She does not write, Mrs. Holland stated, with the idea of revealing official secrets, instead it reveals the character of President Wilson and gives descriptions of social life in the White House.

Mr. Wilson, who is presented by the person who knew him best, was described as being warm-hearted, affectionate and playful. He was loyal, devoted, tender and generous. He depended upon Mrs. Wilson emotionally and intellectually. He shared with her his political problems; read to her his state papers and relied upon her advice.

The introduction of the book is over-sentimental. Over one-half is devoted to post-war years, the peace conference, the league campaign and the long illness.

Members who enjoyed Mrs. Conway's courtesies were Mesdames V. S. Garnett, G. M. Heidenreich, G. D. Holland, Mike John, Jr., R. G. John, Philip Benedict, William Whitfield. Guests were Miss Sue Hefley and Mrs. J. L. Ivy.

Miss Sandifer Weds Robert L. Moore

The bride wore a handsome tailleur of rust color with black accessories and a corsage of bride's roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Thelma Sandifer. Mr. Earnest Thornhill served as best man.

Mrs. Moore is a graduate of the Ouachita Parish High school.

Mr. Moore is the son of Mr. Robert Moore of West Monroe.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore are now at home to their friends at 813 Cypress street, West Monroe.

Review Club Holds Meeting

The Review club met in the home of Mrs. Henry Colbert on Monday afternoon. After a business session, presided over by Mrs. C. B. Braun, president, the afternoon's program was presented.

The topic of discussion was "Renovating Human Environment," and included a resume of Lewis Mumford's "The Culture of Cities." In presenting this book, Mrs. Henry Colbert and Mrs. D. M. Moore told of the author's criticism of the modern city life, his questioning of the validity of the city, his analysis of the manifold problems which confront a typical city, and his plan for abolishing the hideousness and human waste of metropolitan giants.

Members present were Mesdames C. B. Braun, Walter Rhodes, A. R. Holloway, C. V. McGimsey, D. M. Moore, W. T. Davis, Reese Major, Sr., B. W. Leigh, Ben Breard, W. J. Veazey, Fred Fudickar, E. P. Cudd, Roy Hale, Henry Colbert, C. A. Nenney and Dr. W. H. Henry.

Business And Professional Women's Clubs Will Observe Century Of Progress

Monroe Group Will Hold Own Program

Several Interesting Events Planned During Present Week As Part Of Local Observance

One hundred years of progress will be observed by Business and Professional Women's clubs in every section of this country during the coming week.

In Monroe elaborate plans have been made for the local club's participation. Today the week's program will be inaugurated with a boating party on board the "Weto." Later in the evening the entire aggregation will motor to the home of Mrs. R. N. Slator where they will listen to the radio address delivered by the national president, Dr. Minnie L. Maffett of Dallas, Tex.

Dr. Maffett insists that women must be alert to the daily need of free speech, freedom of religion, and all the other important factors of democracy. Dr. Maffett's speech will be broadcast over the Columbia network, station WABC, at 6 o'clock, central standard time.

On Monday there will be a radio address by the local president, Bernice Wright, at 5:30 o'clock. She will talk on the subject of "100 Years of Women's Progress" and problems confronting the local community.

On Tuesday a radio address by Miss Sue Hefley, dramatics teacher at Northeast Junior college, will be heard at 5:30 o'clock. Her theme will be "Pioneer Women of Yesterday."

Wednesday's radio address will be presented by Miss Kate Perkins of the Ouachita Parish school faculty, at 5:30 o'clock. Her theme will be "Pioneer Women of Today." All of these addresses will be most interesting and instructive.

The highlight of the week's social activities will be the banquet at the Virginia hotel Thursday night at 8 o'clock with Mrs. Dorothy Lomax Lyon of Ruston the principal speaker. She has selected "Louisiana Business and Professional Women" as her subject. This was the subject of her thesis when she received her M. A. degree from Louisiana Tech this past year.

The club is particularly interested in this address, as Mrs. Lyon was awarded a scholarship by the Louisiana Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs to pursue graduate work and write this thesis. She was born in Ruston, received her elementary and secondary education at the teacher training school of Louisiana Polytechnic institute, graduating from that college with an A. B. degree in 1932.

She served for two years as a high school teacher in Franklin parish, resigning in 1934 to enter L. S. U. as a graduate student.

Mrs. Lyon was a member of the editorial staff of the Ruston Daily Leader at the time she received the scholarship award. She enrolled at L. S. U. in September, 1938, as a graduate student in the school of government and public affairs, and in the summer of 1939 completed the requirements for the master of arts degree.

Mrs. Lyon is a member of the Ruston Business and Professional Women's club. She is also a member of Pi Sigma Alpha, national honorary government fraternity, the American Political Science association, Sigma Tau Delta, national professional English fraternity, and Kappa Delta, national social sorority.

The Monroe club feels honored and privileged to have Mrs. Lyon as guest speaker on this occasion.

On Friday the club will go in a body to the Jewish synagogue, where Rabbi Hirsch will deliver an address fitting for this occasion. The club members are looking forward to this event, as it is always a pleasure to hear Rabbi Hirsch deliver one of his stirring addresses.

The local stores will cooperate this week with displays featuring clothes for the business woman, both of "yesterday" and "today," together with posters depicting the "woman of yesterday" and the "woman of today."

Mayor H. H. Benoit, who is deeply interested in the programs, on behalf of the city of Monroe, submitted the following open letter addressed to Miss Bernice Wright, president of the Business and Professional Women's club:

"Dear Miss Wright: It would seem to me that rarely in the past has national business women's week held as much significance as it does this year. The past century has seen American women step out more and more into the economic and social realms of life. As our nation evolved from a primarily agricultural country into one with a highly industrialized, economic system, women have moved into new roles in business and in the professions.

"Very few of the 25,000 occupations now listed in the United States census statistics do not have some women engaged in some of them. I have been informed that the 1930 census even discovered a woman railroad engineer. Through their imaginations and their skill, women have thus made many major contributions to our economic life.

"It would seem that as you mark 'One Hundred Years of Women's Progress' you might well give thought to increasing obligations and responsibilities placed upon women outside of business life. In the realm of political thinking, for instance, they can play a progressive and liberal role so that we can continue the progress made along many lines.

"As mayor of the city and in behalf of the municipality, I extend the heartiest greetings and good wishes to you all as you round out another important milestone of progress."

Miss Wilder Will Wed Fred Workman

Claiming the interest of friends today is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Lee H. Wilder of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Eselee Coats Wilder, to Mr. Fred L. Workman. The wedding will take place the latter part of October at the Clarkspring Baptist church, Eros.

Miss Wilder is a graduate of the Okaloosa High school and attended Northeast Junior college and Louisiana Tech.

Mr. Workman is a graduate of the Ouachita Parish High school and attended business college at Corpus Christi, Tex. He is now associated with the Texas Oil company with headquarters in Convencion, Columbia, South America.

Friends will learn with regret that Miss Wilder and Mr. Workman will leave immediately following their marriage for their new home in South America.

Altrusa Club Meets With Mrs. Taylor

Mrs. Hattye Taylor, newly elected president of the Altrusa club, entertained the members in her suite at the Frances hotel Thursday night.

Delegates to the Altrusa conference to be held in Little Rock October 20, 21, were named at this time as follows: Mrs. Hattye Taylor, delegate; Mrs. Mrs. Evelyn Rheims, alternate; Dr. Julia Hunter, district representative; Mrs. Edith Townes, representative.

It was announced at this time that Dr. Isabella Wilson, head of the home economics department of the University of Arkansas, will be the guest speaker at the conference banquet. She will talk on the subject of "Personality Problems of Business Women."

LEADER IN Y. W. C. A. AFFAIRS

Miss Ivo Wilson, secretary of the Y. W. C. A., is seen in characteristic pose at her desk at the "Y." Miss Wilson since coming to Monroe has identified herself with various women's clubs and has become a prominent figure in cultural circles. Life at the "Y" has taken on a colorful note since she has taken over the reins of leadership.

Monroe Literary Club Holds Meeting

The Monroe Literary club met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. A. B. Colmer at her home on Pine street.

The president, Mrs. R. L. Ross, presided over the business session and introduced the officers as follows: Mrs. P. F. Massey, vice-president; Mrs. A. M. Allbritton, secretary; Mrs. D. N. Barron, treasurer; Mrs. A. B. Colmer, reporter; Mrs. Carl Couch, parliamentarian.

Leaders of various committees were called upon for brief reports. Plans were formulated for the customary programs, which give outstanding significance during the year.

The guest speaker, Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, Fifth district federation president of the L. F. W. C., who was introduced by Mrs. A. B. Colmer, praised members of the Monroe Literary club on their selection of "These United States" for the subject of this year's study.

Mrs. Tisdale has worked among literary minded women for four years, inspiring them toward a higher standard of living, and is thoroughly acquainted with the subject of club work. She said in part:

"The value of federation to an individual and what a club woman has done for the community is the history of America today. The general federation is a keystone in bettering health conditions, public welfare and have a great deal to do with forming laws that not only help women but others as well, and that adult education is responsible for 80 per cent of all libraries."

Mrs. Tisdale told of the first anniversary of the club women which was held in New York City in 1889 with 67 clubs participating.

Calhoun Study Club Holds Meeting

Heath, Jr., explained the provisions of and opinions concerning the neutrality act. The members argued these happenings pro and con in a general round table discussion.

The hostess, Mrs. H. D. Hale, served refreshments to the following members: Mrs. J. E. Bryan, Mrs. J. L. Heath, Jr., Mrs. Berlin Heck, Mrs. Clara B. Hodge, Mrs. N. D. Morgan, Mrs. E. M. Mouser, Mrs. C. Z. Roberts, Mrs. Pat Wright, and Misses Addie Fuller, Suzanne McCook, and Madie Mills.

Mrs. Hausherr Discusses Pottery

Members of the Monroe Art association feel that they are greatly benefitted by the splendid talks various members contribute to the semi-monthly meetings.

Especially interesting was Mrs. M. R. Hausherr's talk on "Pottery" at the last meeting. She said in part:

"The making of pottery is oldest of the arts known to man. In fact, when prehistoric man learned to mold crude vessels of clay and bake them hard in the fire he put savagery behind him and rose one long step in the slow advance to civilization. It was not until the historic age, however, that there is evidence that the potter's wheel was used alike by Mexicans, Peruvians, Egyptians, Greeks, Assyrians, Romans, Gauls, and Teutons. Much of our knowledge of the ancient people has come down to us through their clay work that has been preserved.

"After the barbarian invasion the fine arts died in Rome and Greece. The ceramic work that was done in the Middle Ages was very crude, except that of the Moors in Spain. In the rebirth of pottery, Italy led. Among the most beautiful Italian wares was Majolica, a decorated enameled pottery. It is one of the most beautifully decorated potteries that was ever extensively made during the Christian era.

"It was learned long ago that if clay is baked at a sufficiently high temperature it becomes almost as hard as rock, and men soon learned to mold the bake pottery to hold their food and drink. From primitive uses have developed many others, and today clay plays a big part in modern life. All our pottery, from the heaviest mixing bowls in the kitchen to the most fragile and delicate porcelain tea service, is made of clay. Everybody knows you can make mud pies and roll marbles out of clay. But how often do we think of the wide range of manufactured articles for which we have reason to be grateful to this dust of Mother Earth?

"Our schools are giving great prominence to the study of pottery and its value—likewise women's clubs are devoting a great deal of time and study to the delightful study of art pottery. Pottery is no longer a cherished luxury for the wealthy few. It is considered a cultural necessity for the many—for those even of moderate means.

"In Colorado Springs, the mecca for all cultured travelers, there is no more sought-out spot than the home of the world-famous Van Briggle pottery. Throughout the season, the rooms of the pottery fairly buzz with the throngs of people who have, like Jeremiah of old, come down 'to the potter's house.' And after all these years, people today are just as amazed as was Jeremiah when he exclaimed 'and behold he (the potter) was making a work on the wheels.'"

Miss Ellen Kent Millsaps and brother Fred Millsaps, Jr., and Percy Sandel returned home last week from a two weeks' motor trip in the east. While attending the world's fair in New York City they were the guests of Mrs. Fitzpatrick, formerly Miss Adelia Sandel of this city.

Friends will regret to learn of the illness of Mrs. J. A. Perry of Perryville, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. E. McKenzie, on St. John street.

Music Guild Meets At Poag Residence

'Romantic Era In Germany' Is Topic Of Discussion; Mrs. Coon Gives Vocal Solo

Music Guild members were extended gracious courtesies by the president, Mrs. P. A. Poag, at her home on Speed drive, on Wednesday afternoon. Glowing autumn flowers graced the reception suite, providing a particularly colorful atmosphere for the subject of the afternoon's program on the "Romantic Era in Germany."

Representative of the composer, Jensen, was the vocal solo, "Press Thy Cheek Against Mine Own," rendered by Mrs. J. Norman Coon, with sympathetic treatment of composition. Mrs. E. Everett Lawson served as piano accompanist.

Members gleaned much educational value from Mrs. P. A. Poag's highly informative discourse on "Romantic and Modern Germany." She said in part:

"The romantic school of Germany found its first expression in opera, dealing with it in strong, original fashion, and basing much of its force on the treatment of legendary folk lore. Humble peasant life, pompous chivalry of court life, and supernatural tradition of the nation—all added their luster to its brightness.

"Carl von Weber, though not the originator of romantic opera, is considered its founder, being active, also, in a wide range of musical forms.

"Ludwig Spohr (1784-1859) was Germany's greatest violinist and composer of note, and regarded by many as the founder of the romantic school. His significance in this movement was in being an intermediary between the late classical period and the modern music drama.

"Felix Mendelssohn (1809-1847) and Robert Schumann (1810-1856) were exponents in different ways, of the romantic movement in instrumental music. Mendelssohn's music shows elegance and grace of a nature sensitive to beauty. Schumann represents the deeper and more emotional side of the art, his music has great imaginative richness.

"Richard Wagner (1813-1883) has long been the world's acknowledged master in opera, though modern radicals have assailed him as being noisy, meaningless, and rating him too low. These radicals are apt to mistake simplicity for weakness. The greatness of his works lies in their own inate beauty.

"The chief apostle of strict symphonic form in later days, has been Johannes Brahms (1835-1890) and it is the consummate mastery of figure treatment in sonatas and symphonies that made writers of his day speak of the three great B's in music—Bach, Beethoven and Brahms.

"Each new generation recognizes the great contribution of these men to musical advance. Thus the romantic school in particular, had a strong influence in the development of this romantic and imaginative trend of music, and this impulse is far from being exhausted at the present day."

Mrs. Raymond Spence and Mrs. Willys Hopkins gave a colorful interpretation of the piano duet, "Symphony in A Minor" (Scotch) by Mendelssohn.

Mrs. Ralph Marineaux, with Mrs. F. C. Holden as accompanist, sang expressively an effective arrangement of the melodious "Lullaby," by Brahms.

The customary social hour succeeding chorus practice permitted an interchange of pleasantries among members. At this time the hostess, assisted by Mrs. James Cox of Thibodaux, served a delicious salad course to Mrs. Louise Averett, Mrs. Duncan Cook, Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Mrs. R. W. Cretney, Mrs. C. S. Gaushell, Mrs. Dallas Goss, Mrs. Jefferson S. Henderson, Mrs. F. C. Holden, Mrs. Willys Hopkins, Mrs. H. M. James, Mrs. E. Everett Lawson, Mrs. Ralph Marineaux, Mrs. B. B. Martin, Mrs. Paul Newman, Mrs. P. A. Poag, Mrs. Raymond Spence.

Mrs. Duncan Smith was a guest.

All departments and classes of the Sunday school will meet at the usual time and in their usual places, but the worship services wil be held in the church auditorium. Additional seats have been placed, new carpet laid in the aisles and on the speaker's platform and other touches given to it that will make it more like a place of worship than the place in which we have been meeting for some time. The only question is, will we be able to seat the crowds? We will do our best. Mr. E. H. Murrell will have extra ushers to facilitate the seating and look after the comfort of the congregation. At the close of the morning service the Lord's Supper will be observed; and the ordinance of baptism will be administered at the close of the evening service. The Baptist Training Union and Brotherhoods will meet at 6:15 in their usual places and the evening worship begins at 7:30. Hear the pastor both hours Sunday.

The STORY OF Sam Jones

FATHER AND SON: Sam Jones with his baby son, Robert, age 4 months.

FAMILY GROUP: Mr. and Mrs. Jones in their Lake Charles home with their daughter, Carolyn Jelks Jones, baby Robert Gambrell Jones, and Mr. Jones' step-sons, Jimmy Boyer, 10 (left), and Billy Boyer, 8.

THE CAMPAIGNER: ". . . we must return old fashioned, piney woods honesty to the State government at Baton Rouge . . ."

Calcasieu Candidate For Governor Worked Way While at L.S.U.

Born in Log Cabin, Lake Charles Attorney Served in World War, Spent Nine Months as Prosecutor, Was Head of Louisiana American Legion; Is Known as Able, Courageous Citizen-Leader

By DON EWING

THE STORY OF SAM JONES of Lake Charles, candidate for governor, is as simple from birth to manhood as the name itself.

Birth came in a two-room cabin—actually one main room and a lean-to—on a piney-woods farm in Beauregard parish, near Merryville, which his ancestors settled 90 years ago. He went to the DeRidder public school—grade and high—stood well in his classes, won debating medals in winters and worked on the farm in summers. He waited on tables at Louisiana State university to pay his way there for a little less than two years, quitting to enter the army in the World War. His youth ended with 17 months in service at Camp Beauregard and he returned to civilian life just after he reached the age of manhood—21.

Everybody knows him simply as Sam Jones, but the story of his life after manhood began is best typified by his full name—Sam Houston Jones—for it is a fighting name and his career has been a fighting career.

"As I look back," his younger sister, Phoebe Jones, said a few days ago in DeRidder, where she now lives, "Sam was always doing one of two things as a boy: fighting with someone or reading a book."

He has kept on doing both. He educated himself and he keeps on pursuing his education now. He studied law day and night without benefit of college after the war ended and was admitted to the bar in 1922. While studying law he worked in the office of his father, court clerk at DeRidder at the time, but now dead, and later he served an unexpired term as city judge there. He practiced law in DeRidder and then for nine years he was assistant prosecutor at Lake Charles for a judicial district made up of five southwest parishes.

During that period, Sam Jones also became state commander of the American Legion and devoted much time to establishing a policy of keeping the Legion out of state, partisan politics. He doesn't intend to change that policy now and he has flatly refused to permit publication for campaign purposes of any picture showing him in a Legion activity or in a Legion uniform.

"During the years I watched him from the bench, and when he was prosecuting," former District Judge Thomas F. Porter, Jr., told me, "he never quit fighting to convict a guilty man, but he always made sure that every defendant got every legal right and break to which he was entitled under the law. I never saw him take a note in a courtroom, yet I never saw him overlook any point in a case in summing up. His memory was amazing."

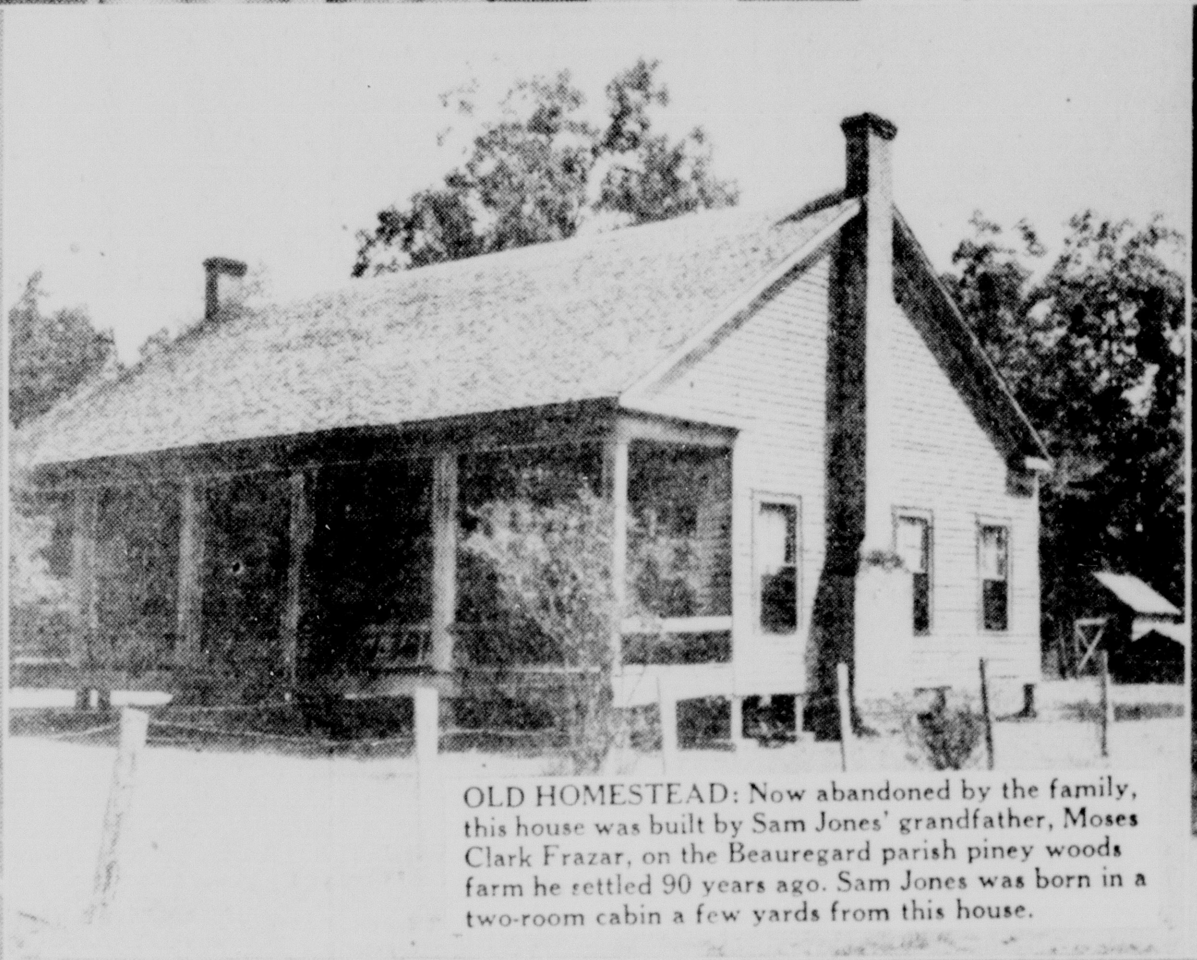
Sam Jones has fought many battles for poor people without pay, and he's given his own money to help those who needed funds. He's not a rich man, but he could be if he kept out of this campaign. There are law cases in the offing which would mean good fees—but he turned them down. The houses in which he has lived have improved progressively from the two-room cabin of his birth. His present abode in Lake Charles has a good mortgage on it, which he is paying off regularly. He hasn't hesitated to go against his own personal or financial interests to campaign for a cause he thought was right—and he hasn't let danger to his own life interfere with that.

A few years ago he campaigned in a local election in Southwest Louisiana for a friend—and a cause—against the state machine. He was given word that if he went to DeQuincy to make a speech he would be killed—that he'd have to keep out of the campaign. He fixed up as hot a speech as he could concoct and went to DeQuincy and made it. Friends say an effort to take his life was made once. He won't talk about it.

"SAM JONES has been a constant crusader for causes in which he believed, but always without being a mere "anti" or a mere reformer. He's a powerful speaker without being an oratorical phrase-maker. A fast thinker, he prefers a give-and-take extemporaneous debate to making a prepared speech. He doesn't have to swing to "tough" language, but he never turns to fancy phrases, over the heads of his listeners.

During several days in Southwest Louisiana I several times overheard him privately tell friends of his intention to keep his campaign for governor on a high plane of issues,

WORLD WAR: After 17 months service as private, corporal and sergeant at Camp Beauregard.



OLD HOMESTEAD: Now abandoned by the family, this house was built by Sam Jones' grandfather, Moses Clark Frazar, on the Beauregard parish piney woods farm he settled 90 years ago. Sam Jones was born in a two-room cabin a few yards from this house.

BIRTHPLACE: Dr. F. R. ("Uncle Bob") Frazar of Merryville, his uncle, and Sam Jones talk things over on the spot where once stood the two-room log cabin in which the candidate was born. Taken a few days ago.

YOUTHFUL ATTORNEY
At De Ridder in 1922, age 25.

THE JONES FAMILY: An old family album group picture of Sam Jones (right), his parents (center), now dead; his brother, John Paul Jones (left), and three sisters.

PUBLIC SCHOOL: High school graduate, ready for college—and working his way.

DEBATER: Age 15, winner of state high school debating medal.

"I'M 9,000 PER CENT SAM JONES": So said Ed Kilman as he and Sam Jones met at De Ridder for campaign discussion.

COURT CLERK: In Beauregard parish, as a youth, 1921; romping with a neighbor's child.

and to avoid personalities. These friends said afterward that he means it 100 per cent—but, that if anyone wants to get "dirty" with Sam Jones they're in for plenty of trouble.

One of his gubernatorial opponents referred to him a few days ago as "the best campaigner, the best stump speaker, the state of Louisiana ever has known."

Yet never until this campaign has Sam Jones sought a political office. He's always been fighting for someone else. Now, in a campaign in his own behalf for the first time in his life, he's still fighting for someone else—"for honest, clean government for the people of Louisiana"—to use his own words.

In 1934 Sam Jones quit as assistant prosecutor at Lake Charles to enter a private law firm there as junior partner. In the same year he married Louise Gambrell Boyer, whom he had known as a girl in DeRidder. Her father used to have a store there. He is now a city councilman in Tucson, Ariz. She had been married before and had two children—Jimmy, 10, and Billy, 8. Now there are four children in the family, the additions being Carolyn Jelks Jones, two and one-half years old, and Robert Gambrell Jones, four months old. The four children and Mrs. Jones form a home background that is exactly what it seems to be—one of happiness, comradeship and love. Someone recently suggested that Sam Jones was inclined to spoil the children a bit.

"Why shouldn't I?" he replied. "I've waited 40 years for them."

TRAVELING through many of the southern parishes, it seemed that Sam Jones must have at least 1,000 volunteer campaign managers, all at work even before the ink on the statement announcing his candidacy was dry. At almost every crossroads, in almost every small village, inquiries for this person or that person brought such replies as:

"Well, he's out campaigning for Sam Jones," or "He went over to see someone about Sam Jones." It was amazing the way people in all walks of life, of every religious belief, were going into his campaign voluntarily—without even consulting him or waiting to be asked. It brought back a simple phrase in his opening campaign radio speech:

"In every parish, in almost every community, there is someone who knows me personally and who calls me Sam."

He gave this multitude as his "references"—"people you can ask about me," he said. But, few of them seem to be waiting to be asked.

Simple Wishes For Success

Simple wishes of luck and success in the campaign have come from high churchmen, from small and large business men, from a man he sent to the penitentiary as prosecutor (but who thought the prosecutor "on the level") and from a patient in the state leprosarium whom he once befriended.

As these high spots in the life of a candidate for governor were gathered from friends, from mere acquaintances; and from political enemies, too, two other statements were made public, one from Gov. Earl K. Long and one from State Rep. N. Smith Huffpauir, both terming Sam Jones "a corporation lawyer." The implication obviously intended by the phrase didn't seem to fit with the story of the man, so on a later day while driving through pine woods with him to his birthplace, this question was asked him:

"What about the corporation lawyer business — what corporations have you represented?"

"Perhaps those shouting 'corporation lawyer' don't know it," he said quickly. "But, they happen to be the same corporations Alvin O. King represented and King was made governor of Louisiana with the approval and consent of Huey P. Long."

Leaves Firm to Campaign

"A law fim," Mr. Jones said later, "is about like any other business firm. It sells its ability, its services, its mares. Our law firm had about every conceivable client. You might as well call a grocery store a "corporation grocery' because some of its customers are corporation people."

One of the stipulations made when Mr. Jones joined the law firm was that he would not at any time, while a member of it, engage in politics. He resigned from it to enter this campaign.

The corporations whose legal business was handled by the law firm in which Sam Jones formerly was a junior partner are mostly insurance companies. There a few oil concerns, chiefly the smaller and independent type; none of the well known, nationally and internationally active oil corporations. They are the type of corporations which most any law partnership of repute anywhere has among a varied clientele.

Wins Victory For Farms

THE biggest court victory in Sam Jones' career in his own opinion—was persuading the State Supreme Court virtually to reverse a previous decision in favor of corporations and render one in favor of small, taxpaying farmers. That was in 1925 when he launched a legal drive against lumber corporations to put an end to a land assessment system in southwest parishes that favored the corporations and tended to make unfair assessments of pine woods farmers. He won that fight and he thinks more of it than of any other victory because it directly saved money for almost every pine woods farmer in southwest Louisiana.

Perhaps the second most important victory, in Sam Jones' own mind, came only a few days ago. The so-called "corporation lawyer" was counsel for rice farmers of southern Louisiana against a milling corporation which retained State Senator Percy T. Ogden of the state political organization in defense of charges by farmers that it violated a price contract with the farmers. Jones won the case and it meant 98 cents a bag more for rice for the farmers involved than the corporation had been willing to pay.

Born at Old Homestead

Sam Jones' maternal grandfather, Moses Cook Frazar, settled the Beauregard parish pine woods farm on which the candidate was born near Merryville. It now is owned by Dr. F. R. Frazar of Merryville, a country doctor, whose practice extends up and down southwest Louisiana and into Texas. He is the brother of Sam Jones' mother. When the mother who was born in Sugartown, Beauregard parish, married Robert Jones, they went to live in the two room cabin, now destroyed, where Sam and other children were born. Robert Jones kept a store and taught school and later was clerk of court for Beauregard parish. There were seven children, with five now living and Sam the oldest of the living five.

After becoming clerk of court, Robert Jones lived in De Ridder, where he also was mayor at one time. The De Ridder home, somewhat remodeled, now is occupied by Miss Phoebe Jones and John Paul Jones, sister and brother of Sam. Two other sisters are married — Mrs. Sam W. Wallace and Mrs. Edward F. Heyne, both of Houston. The house built on the place by Moses Cook Frazar 90 years ago burned about 50 years ago. The one which replaced it still stands, but has been abandoned by the family. Within the past year, both the mother and the father of Sam Jones died—within a short time of each other.

SAM Jones was born in the old cabin on the Merryville farm on July 15, 1897. He was only three years old when his father and mother took their family to De Ridder and he finished high school there in the spring of 1915. That fall he went to L. S. U. and got a job waiting on tables to help pay his way, for times were rather hard with his father, Robert Jones, trying to rear a big family. He left L. S. U. to go into the army. After the war, during which he served 17 months in the ranks he became deputy court clerk at De Ridder he was elected delegate to the state constitutional convention — the youngest delegate in that body. He was 23 years old at the time. He left De Ridder for Lake Charles in December, 1924, and has lived there since.

That covers the chronology, and some of the high spots in the life of Sam Jones. What it does not cover is that he has always been a liberal in politics — sincere one—even when liberalism was not as popular as it is now.

An Early Liberal

It was as a very young man back in 1921 that Sam Jones in a public statement — a matter of record — advocated a "mothers' pension" which was the forerunner of the present old age security system. It was a year before that event that he advocated exemption of homes for taxation. During that same period he advocated election law changes to increase the number of citizens entitled to vote. Many things which Sam Jones advocated as a young man since have been put into effect with great acclaim and pronouncement of being something "new" and "liberal." He has always been friendly and sympathetic with labor, has been invited to address labor conventions and has in turn brought about invitation to labor leaders to address other organizations.

His interest in the state's school system is intense, for all of his "school learning" came in state institutions and his father was a teacher in them. He has a similar deep understanding of farmers and their problems, particularly the piney woods farms, for there is little pine land settled over 90 years ago by Sam Jones' grandfather and on which he was born. He knows what it is to "break ground" and the farming which he watched and took part in as a boy was that of the small farmer on poor land.

Has Broad Legal Training

His training as assistant district prosecutor has given him long practice in sifting complex problems to the bottom, in absorbing and understanding details and the need to consider every angle in any problem, large or small. His private law practice has given him a close view of business and its interests.

In his first address of the campaign he gave some inkling of what some individual planks in his platform, to be announced later, may be. He told of broken sales tax promises, saying he had always consistently opposed that tax. He told of pensions, of imposition of 27 new state taxes by the present administration and of promises of relief for big and small business which have not been carried out.

IT IS ridiculous," he told me, "for anyone to think that I, as governor, would seek to take away from the people such things as homestead exemption, old age pension, free school books for I publicly advocated such things either specifically or as general propositions up to 20 years ago and long before those now in power ever thought of them.

"What I do mean to do is this: I mean to see that every single cent of public money dedicated to some specific purpose goes to that purpose — and not into the pockets of the 'big shots' who have permeated our state government with stealing, thievery, crookedness and corruption until they have given us an administration not surpassed by any in the union for rottenness and graft."

Is Preparing Platform

Sam Jones knows what he's up against in a gubernatorial campaign. He's not the type that sits back and "knows" — but says nothing about it. He came right out into the open the past week in a speech to farmers at Jonesboro when he told them:

"You've been trying to get some roads here a long time. Now — and I know all about it — you've recently been given some promises of roads if you vote right. Well, you take those roads—take every one of them, for you've waited a long time. But when you get in that voting booth, you vote your conscience! And, I'm pretty sure you'll remember they promised you $30,000,000 worth of farm-market roads years ago and you haven't gotten them yet."

Shortly, a complete platform will be announced by Sam Jones. He's going over it carefully, for he means it to be specific, affirmative and aggressive. He doesn't intend to duck anything. With it will come announcement of complete campaign organization — in every parish. The state chairman of his campaign is Francis Whitehead of Port Allen, former state senator, a sugar farmer and a man whose living is made primarily from Louisiana soil. As co-chairman is Vance Plauche, Lake Charles attorney, of full French descent.

He's Aware of the Issues

It was easy to see after talking with Sam Jones that there is hardly a conceivable issue likely to arise on the campaign on which he has not clearly thought out his stand—or on which he will fail to state his stand in plain, simple words. He talks freely of all of the state's problems, of how they can be faced and how he will face them.

HE SPENT a long time deciding whether he'd be a candidate—when friends from all parts of the state began urging him to put his hat into an election contest for the first time in his life. He was not certain what his answer would be even when a committee came to his home to get the final answer, which he had postponed for days. As they came into the yard the telephone rang. It was one of Sam Jones' oldest friends, a man whose opinion he respects above all others.

"Don't give your answer until you've seen me again," this man said over the telephone.

A Time For Sacrifice

Sam Jones went out the back door as the committee members came to the front door and they were left waiting while he went to his friend's home. The latter, an older man, talked briefly and simply, as if to a son. The tenor of his talk, as he related it to me privately later, was that no man justly can be asked to sacrifice a newly-developed law business, to give up income and possibly his future, to risk unjust attack on himself and family—all merely for what glory might come in being governor of a state.

"But," the older man went on, "There are times when all must be risked and every sacrifice must be made. This is one of them. I have thought about it a lot, too, before being willing to urge you. I urge you now — you must run."

To Drive The Crooks Out

Sam Jones went back and told the committee he would make the race. The decision was made in a friend's home, as other friends waited at Sam Jones' own home for the answer. Within a matter of hours, almost, he had resigned from his law firm, had told another close friend to "get your business fixed up so you won't need to be at your office until the middle of January because you're going to be with me all the time," was attending to organization preliminaries and going over in his mind what he's going to say and do the campaign. He plans to speak everywhere, and to speak as often and as fast as dates can be arranged. About a dozen already have been set for the first part of October and there'll be that many a day later." He will speak at the State Fair in Shreveport.

"What," I asked him at the end, "is your fundamental objective in seeking the governorship; what is your fundamental plan if you are elected?"

"To drive ALL the crooks out," he said. "To bring back honesty. That's the main thing."

The Leaders to Blame

After a moment, he continued slowly:

"Don't get the idea that because a person works for the state there is something wrong with that person. It isn't the state employees that are to blame for our present conditions. Many of them, most of them, are honest and conscientious. They are flocking now to my support. I need them and want them. It's the bosses the rascals, whether they're big bosses at the top or just underlings, that must go. ALL of that group have got to go and they can be ousted only by ousting the machine which makes them what they are.

"Honesty—plain, common, piney woods honesty of the kind of our ancestors who broke poor ground in order to make even a poor subsistence; that's what is needed and that is what I promise above all. This campaign is one of honesty versus dishonesty, of clean government versus unclean government."

The highest compliment ever paid him in southwest Louisiana, perhaps, came from a newspaper publisher down there whose paper is not politically partisan. It was, in effect:

'Whatever Sam Jones promises to do — he'll DO!"

HARVEST DAY IS TO AID ORPHANS

All Methodist Churches Will Contribute To Ruston Institution

Today will be "Harvest day" in all Methodist churches of Louisiana when special offerings will be received for the support of the Methodist orphanage in Ruston, the only institution of the kind in the state. This orphanage secures its entire financial assistance from donations that are made in all churches of the denomination twice yearly, at Easter and on "Harvest day" in October.

Rev. C. B. White, orphanage superintendent, stated Saturday:

"We all realize, I'm sure, just what we are face to face with. From the appearance of things now the coming winter months will be severe in every way. With prices constantly advancing and the cost of living higher day by day, what shall become of the 175 homeless and helpless children if we do not receive the best offering at this time we have ever received?

"Our children have been in good health during the year, and have enjoyed a happy summer. School began this week. We have 54 in high school, nine in the seventh grade and 90 in our own school through the sixth grade; we have 10 in Louisiana Tech. Besides these there is a group too small to attend.

"The European war will not be a brief one. Such a war is sure to reach out its evil power and influence our country in many ways. Already we are realizing this in higher prices for foodstuff. Under normal conditions it is hard for the orphanage to operate on its income, and unless each of us does his best, and unless those who have been blessed with riches, give bountifully, we cannot possibly carry on. May every church and church school endeavor to receive the best offering in years."

J. L. HENRY ESTABLISHES LIFE INSURANCE AGENCY

Mr. Henry came to Monroe as a young man and worked in a local department store for 14 years before moving to Shreveport. There, for 10 years, he was associated with the Prudential Insurance company.

Services will be held at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., and white persons are invited to attend the night sermon, Rev. Hayward said. A special choir program will be rendered in connection with the night service.

'The Man In The Iron Mask' Opens At Paramount Today

Bennett And Hayward Top Film's Cast

Romantic Drama Of Reign Of Louis XIV Makes Thrilling Picture

LOVELY JOAN BENNETT and handsome Louis Hayward are romantically teamed for the first time in the tense and thrilling story of "The Man in the Iron Mask," the new Edward Small romantic drama of the reign of Louis XIV of France which is scheduled for its initial showing at the Paramount theater today, when it begins a three-day run. Directed by James Whale, this new production features in its supporting cast such top-notch players as Warren William, Joseph Schildkraut, Alan Hale, Miles Mander, Bert Roach, Walter Kingsford, Marian Martin, Montagu Love and Doris Kenyon.

The story of "The Man in the Iron Mask" is based on the novel by Alexander Dumas and dramatizes the enmity and hatred between King Louis XIV of France and his twin brother Philippe. Until he is about to execute his own brother for treason, the cruel monarch is unaware that he has a twin. Learning the news, he fears that a plot to dethrone him in his brother's favor may bear fruit and he decides to put Philippe out of the way for good. He has him encased in the monstrous iron mask, one of the grimmest forms of torture used in those gory days.

The film brings back to the screen the swashbuckling, fearless Musketeers and introduces several scenes of fencing and swordplay. Portraying the Musketeers are Warren William, Alan Hale and Miles Mander, while Louis' crafty minister is portrayed by Joseph Schildkraut. Miss Bennett, still a beauteous brunette, plays the role of Maria Theresa of Spain, who is engaged to marry the arrogant Louis.

James Whale directed "The Man in the Iron Mask" from a screen play written by George Bruce. John DuCasse Schulze created the settings for the film, and he was assisted by Casey Roberts in gathering the instruments of torture for the chambers of the Bastille. To meet the extraordinary demands for this setting, they hed to call upon prop houses, museums and private collectors.

The romantic star of "Wuthering Heights," Laurence Olivier, is co-starred with Valerie Hobson in this scene from the picture "Clouds Over Europe," playing Thursday only at the Capitol theater. It's a romantic drama of war on spies.

Louis Hayward, who portrays both Louis XIV and his twin brother Philippe, makes fervent love to Joan Bennett, playing Maria Theresa of Spain in "The Man With the Iron Mask," playing today, Monday and Tuesday at the Paramount. It's the flaming romance that made Alexander Dumas the master story creator!

William Powell buttles his best, despite bottles and battle axes in the comedy romance, "My Man Godfrey," playing today only at the Capitol theater. Also starred are Carole Lombard, Alice Brady, Gail Patrick and Jean Dixon.

The Lone Wolf is at it again! Fiction's fighting man of mystery! Chasing down the most dramatic crime in London legend! Shock-charged drama . . . with a peppery bit of love on the side, you'll laugh, shiver and thrill to "The Saint in London," starring George Sanders and Sally Grey, playing Tuesday only at the Capitol theater.

Powell And Lombard In Capitol Hit

'My Man Godfrey' Is Hilarious Comedy Boasting All-Star Cast

WILLIAM POWELL attains the distinction of being a butler for the nuttiest family in the whole country, in the Universal romantic comedy, "My Man Godfrey," which plays at the Capitol theater today. The charming, talented Carole Lombard is co-starred with him in the screen offering, which was taken from Eric Hatch's sparkling, mirth-stirring novel of the same name.

The gay, laugh spangled quality of the story was preserved by having Eric Hatch transpose his own book into the screen play. This he did with Morrie Ryskind, noted writer of many screen hits which include "A Night at the Opera." Ryskind is also remembered as the co-author of "Of Thee I Sing."

The screen narrative reveals Powell as a "forgotten man," being brought to a very ritzy party by Carole Lombard, so that she may win first prize in a scavenger hunt. Then she engages Powell as the butler and the fun takes on a madder pace.

This balmy family, generally known as "the batty Bullocks," includes: One baffled husband who has been thoroughly gaffed by a slightly daffy wife. He is laughed at by society's riffraff for permitting her to pamper a "protege of the rich" and for giving him the freedom of the parlor. The husband is further snaffled by the wild expenditures and tall doings of his dizzy daughters. When his fortune is lost in the raffle of the stock market, he is saved by the butler who finally falls for the sweet blandishments of the dizzier daughter.

YOUNG MEN ENLIST IN ARMY PAST WEEK

Several young men of Monroe and adjacent areas have been enlisted in the army, stated Sergeant Harold B. McNemar Saturday.

Several vacancies for the air corps at Barksdale field still exist and those desiring information are asked to write or interview Sergeant McNemar. He is located at 301 Postoffice building.

INFANT BEARD

Funeral services for the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Beard, Route 1, West Monroe, who died shortly after birth at a local hospital at 10 a.m. yesterday, were held Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Mt. Vernon cemetery. Dixie Funeral home of Monroe had charge of funeral arrangements.

It's the greatest adventure romance of them all! "Beau Geste," starring Gary Cooper, Ray Milland and Robert Preston, playing as the gala midnight show attraction Saturday, October 14, at the Paramount theater.

PRE-SCHOOL AGE KIDDIES HAVE WPA CLASS FORMED

Mrs. C. F. Landreaux, WPA district supervisor, has announced for West Monroe a pre-school for children between the ages of three and six years at the Assembly of God church, Cypress street, that city. Mrs. Rosa A. Sanford, WPA leader, will be the instructor.

Mothers who have children in the pre-school age have formed a club, with Mrs. R. L. Mitchell as president and Mrs. Grady Branch, secretary-treasurer, who will sponsor the work and aid Mrs. Sanford in carrying out the work.

A total of 24 children were enrolled the past week, and still more are expected to enter.

During the last 60 years, the number of birds in the United States has decreased 75 per cent.

CHAPTER XIII

Marian slept until noon on Sunday. It was a troubled, restless sleep. She kept rousing to wonder what had been wrong with her anniversary dinner. On the surface it had been a success. It had proved a contested point, that a simple party could still be enjoyed even by sophisticated guests. Doubtless Randy Means was quite accustomed to attending gay parties, but his enjoyment had been evident.

Yes, the party had been all right. What was it then? She slept again, only to awaken half stupefied. She moved listlessly. Perhaps a cup of coffee would set her up.

"Dan!" she called.

There was no answer, no sound in the apartment. Marian frowned. Very likely he was wiping Dolly's dishes. There was something innately domestic about Dan. He liked to fuss around the house, he was actually a good cook. If Dan's talents had lain in another direction he might have accomplished something.

There, she had it, the cause of her unrest. In spite of herself, she had compared Dan with Randy and Bill and he had suffered by the comparison. Randy had made half a million in the advertising game. Even Dan admitted that he had started on a shoestring.

And Bill had succeeded in the face of terrific odds. Not for a moment did Marian concede that Amy Ellen's fortitude had been a large factor in his achievement. She stuck to her point. If a man had the necessary spark, he made good; if not, he was one of the Dans of the world, kindly, patient, uncomplaining.

In her low mood, it irked Marian that Randy had been attracted to Dolly. She had hoped that he might be the answer to Carma's immediate problem.

Randy and Dolly and Carma, however, were among her minor worries. Dan had somehow escaped her, she could not reach him. It was as if his spirit had gone away, leaving his familiar person behind. Never putting it into actual words, she had considered him as putty in her hands. All of a sudden the putty had gone hard and unmanageable. A sensation of helplessness and futility added to her feeling of abject defeatism.

A dreadful lethargy weighted her limbs, a wish to sink and sink and never rise again caused weak tears to gather behind her heavy eyelids.

"I'm sick," she thought. "I'm really sick. Where is Dan? Why doesn't he come?" Aloud, she called, "Dan—Dan!"

Suddenly she threw the covers back and sprang from bed so quickly that her head swam and she pressed both hands to her temples, swaying. Sick? She wasn't sick—she couldn't be sick. The party had been a strain, it had been almost morning before she slept. That was it—she needed rest—she'd rest all day—be fine tomorrow.

She washed her face in cold water, brushed her hair until it lay in a soft swirl of curls on her neck. Touching her pale cheeks with rouge, she smiled into the mirror.

"You ought to wear your hair that way," she said, addressing her reflection. "It takes 10 years from your age."

Stepping into the velvet robe, she zipped it up the front. A flat little collar suited the curling locks. Slipping her feet into mules she went to the living room. A flat, dead smell of cigaret smoke made her close her eyes. She put one hand quickly to her throat. She needed coffee, needed it badly. Opening a window, she leaned out, drawing a long breath.

She looked between apartment buildings at a narrow strip of Lake Michigan. That view of the lake made the apartment more expensive than it should have been. The lake was blue green, a stiff wind whipped the waves to lacey foam. The wind was chill and she drew back, shivering.

"October," she mused. "The beginning of the end for this year, a last snatch at beauty, glorious beauty, before the end. A dying year."

A strange sorrow fell across her heart. Lives could be likened to a year. You were born, you looked ahead to sunshine and flowers and warmth, unafraid. You danced through youth, the springtime of your life, you lived the summer carelessly. And then youth was gone, summer was gone, you tried to turn back but there was no turning back. You tried to recapture summer, building it up. It was autumn and it lasted a little while. But winter came, cold and drab and gray, and you were old.

Marian shook herself. Of all the sentimental fools— Starting for the door, sure of finding Dan in Dolly's apartment, she stopped and picked up a slip of paper which had been torn from the telephone pad. It was a hastily scribbled note from Dan.

"Have gone golfing with Bill. We arranged it last night. Forgot to tell you. Be home sometime."

Absent-mindedly, Marian tore the paper into shreds and dropped them in an ash tray. In 12 years of married life Dan had never left her on a Sunday. In the first happy days, Sunday had been his only holiday, it had meant something special. Their own day, they had called it. Marian had been glad that someone had thought of Sundays, she had been glad that only six days intervened between them, six days when she must be separated from Dan. Marian had been glad about so many things in those days.

Gradually Sundays had become intervals of rest, times when Marian could catch up with her sleep, when she could dawdle over small tasks connected with her appearances. She had often said that it was a one woman's job to keep another woman's clothes in shape. She had often sighed over the happy state of women whose clothes were taken care of by a maid.

On the lazy Sundays Dan had always been there, reading, talking when she wished to talk, suggesting a movie or a ride or a walk in the park. Suggesting, but never insisting. Movies bored Marian, she hated to ride in the Sunday traffic, and especially in Dan's rattly car; a walk seldom appealed to her.

"Be back sometime." What had Dan meant by that? It was too casual, too prophetic that he had got away from her. But wasn't he always casual and indifferent these days? Suddenly the apartment was desolately empty, echoing with Dan's voice, his laugh. A suffocating loneliness drove her across the hall to Dolly's open door. She went in and dropped into a chair, groaning.

Dolly said, "Good morning. What have we here—a faded flower or something?"

"I feel like the last few days of a misspent life, Dolly. Have you a cup of coffee to spare?"

"No, but I can make some in about a minute and a half," Dolly smiled cheerfully. "Where's Dan?"

"Golfing with Bill Sands. They made arrangements last night."

"That's fine." Dolly's voice came from the tiny kitchen. "It'll be good for him to play around with other men. Contacts, you know. They tell me that more business is transacted on the golf links than in the offices."

Marian brightened. Dolly always said the right thing. It just might be a turning point for Dan—it just might.

You just can't keep a good baby down, and that's Sandy, starred with Bing Crosby, Joan Blondell and Mischa Auer in "East Side of Heaven," which plays Wednesday only at the Capitol theater. It's a comedy romance with music, and that spells entertainment deluxe.

GORDON SURGUINE IN CLERK'S RACE

Native Of Monroe Announces He Will Seek Clerk Of Court Nomination

Gordon Surguine, a native of Monroe, announced yesterday that he would seek nomination for clerk of court of Ouachita parish in the January primary.

Mr. Surguine, a member of a well known family here, was born in Monroe in 1901. He received his education in the public schools of the city. He married Miss Ruth McCormick in 1923 and they have two children.

After finishing school, Mr. Surguine was employed by the Central Savings Bank and Trust company as bookkeeper and teller for five years. He resigned his position with the bank to become a deputy in the office of Sheriff Milton Coverdale. Mr. Surguine remained in the sheriff's office for more than ten years as office deputy.

For the past several years Mr. Surguine has been associated with a Monroe automobile agency.

In announcing his candidacy, Mr Surguine said he would make the race as an independent and sponsored by no political faction.

"I hope to meet every citizen of the parish during the campaign," Mr. Surguine said. "I know most of them through my previous public service and I look forward to the renewal of the many friendships which were made at that time."

BIG GIFTS RATING COMMITTEE ACTIVE

The large gifts rating committee of the Twin City Community Chest, of which H. K. Touchstone is chairman, has completed organization and is now busy with its phase of the preliminary work in connection with the second annual chest campaign, according to C Alston Prophit, campaign director.

The campaign is scheduled to start October 23.

It is the task of the committee to determine the size of gifts large donors will be asked to make to the chest. It is composed, besides Mr. Touchstone, of Ben Downing, John M. Breard, Sam Smith, Courtney Oliver, Sam Davis, Wheeler Mitchell, T. C. Drew, W. R. Hatchell, H. A. McDonald, E. Jack Selig, Sr., Abe Blumenthal, Joe Marx, Sr., and J. G. Hicks.

The committee evaluates the financial capability of large donors in designating what it considers they should give to the chest. When such donors are approached during the campaign, they can rest assured that the size of their gifts has been arrived at after mature deliberation by a group of representative Twin City financial and business leaders.

Thor usually rides with great dignity on the back seat of Miss Busby's Chevrolet, while Bressy proudly perches with his back feet on the front seat and his front paws on the open door of the glove compartment. The Chevrolet dealer here in Monroe is Lee-Rogers Chevrolet company, 223 Walnut street.

Lane Wilson Seed Company Place To Get Your Bulbs

The finest and largest selection of bulbs it has ever had is now being displayed by Lane Wilson Seed company, 113-115 North Grand street. They include both domestic and imported varieties.

As a result of the European war, the United States got the cream of this year's crop of bulbs from Holland and France. There was no market for them in Europe. Everybody was preparing for the conflict.

Now is the opportune time to buy imported bulbs. What with all land being utilized for food crops throughout Europe, bulbs will be scarce next year—even if the war lasts only a few months longer. If the conflict extends into years, the cost of shipping will become prohibitive.

Considering the quality of the bulbs, the prices asked by Lane Wilson are extremely moderate. Visit the store and be convinced.

The Bulbs include daffodils, the King Alfred and 13 other varities; hyacinths, Dutch, Roman and grape; 16 varieties of tulips; Iris, Spanish and Dutch; scilla; lilies, madonna and creole; ranunculus; anemone; and crocus.

Lane Wilson Seed company suggests bone meal as the best fertilizer for bulbs. You can get it at the firm in any quantity desired. Moreover, it has ideal pottery for bulbs.

Incidentally, now is the time to plant bulbs—this and next month.

England today is spending less money on groceries and more on meat, including poultry and rabbit.

DICK TRACY
by Chester Gould
AFTER FINALLY LOCATING THE FUR THIEVES' CAR, DICK TRACY WATCHES PATIENTLY TO FIND OUT WHERE THE THIEVES ARE SELLING THE STOLEN PELTS.
AUTO LICENSES
NO, PAT, WE DON'T WANT TO PINCH THE DRIVER OF THE CAR—YET.
I SEE. YOU WANT TO FIND OUT WHO IS BUYING THE STUFF, EH?
YOU SEE THIS GIBBONS FOX FARM BRANDS A TINY "G" RIGHT INTO THE ANIMAL'S HIDE—IT NEVER DISAPPEARS.
G
AFTER WE LOCATED THE FUR THIEVES' CAR WE SAW THEM PULL UP TO THIS OLD WAREHOUSE AT 5TH AND OAK STREETS AND TAKE A BUNDLE OF FURS INSIDE. I'M GOING THERE TODAY AND GET ONE OF THOSE PELTS.
IMPOSSIBLE! WHY, IF THAT'S HOT STUFF, THEY'LL HAVE THE PLACE GUARDED BY A DOZEN GORILLAS.
I THINK I'LL MANAGE OKAY, PATRICK.
HALF-HOUR LATER.
WHAT DO YOU MEAN, YOU'RE GOING INSIDE?
MY NAME'S WOLLEF. I DO A LITTLE FUR JOBBING. A FELLOW NAMED JOE TOLD ME TO COME HERE.
YEAH? WE DON'T KNOW ANY JOE—AND I NEVER SAW YOU BEFORE.
I'VE GOT A BIG CONNECTION DOWN EAST—AND IF YOU'VE GOT WHAT I WANT, I CAN HANDLE ABOUT FIFTY GRAND WORTH OF FUR.
HUH! WELL—SHOW HIM AROUND, NICK, BUT KEEP YOUR EYES ON HIM.
HAVE A STICK OF GUM?
NAW, NEVER USE IT.
BRRR..R.! IT'S A LITTLE COOL IN HERE.
YEAH... GOTTA KEEP IT REFRIGERATED. THIS IS ALL FOX IN THIS ROOM.
YEAH—THAT'S NICE STUFF—BUT I'M REALLY INTERESTED RIGHT NOW IN SOME NICE MINK.
REMOVING THE WAD OF CHEWING GUM FROM HIS MOUTH, TRACY PRESSES IT FIRMLY INTO THE BACK OF HIS COAT.
CHEWING GUM-
PRETENDING TO STUMBLE HE FALLS HEAVILY AGAINST THE STOCK OF FOX SKINS.
WHAT THE—! ....ANKLE MUST HAVE TURNED ON ME!
THE GUM IMBEDS ITSELF IN THE FUR
LOOKING FOR MINK, EH?
BRR-R-R.. THIS PLACE IS TOO COLD...I'D BETTER PUT THIS TOP COAT ON.
10-8-39
TELL YOU WHAT I CAN DO. I CAN HAVE SOME MINK IN HERE FOR YOU BY TOMORROW MORNING. HOW'S THAT?
GREAT! I'LL BE IN THEN—ABOUT TEN O'CLOCK.
SO—WITH THE FIRST BIT OF EVIDENCE STUCK TO HIS BACK, TRACY DIGS INTO THIS BATTLE AGAINST THE FUR THIEVES.

THE VILLAIN'S CHANCE

AS HE PICKED UP MATEA'S TRAIL, TARZAN SAW THAT A MAN'S FOOTPRINTS WERE MINGLED WITH HERS.
AN HOUR LATER, HE AND GROOT CARLUS OVERTOOK THE PAIR. CARLUS WAS OVERJOYED; TARZAN WAS PUZZLED.
THE APE-MAN GAZED SEARCHINGLY AT THE STRANGER "WHO ARE YOU?" HE DEMANDED.
"THIS IS MYNHEER VANGER," MATEA ANSWERED PROUDLY. "HE SAVED ME FROM THE SAVAGES."
"YES," VANGER BOASTED, "I WAS TRAVELING NEARBY WHEN I SAW HER BROUGHT IN A CAPTIVE."
"IS IT YOUR CUSTOM TO TRAVEL THE JUNGLE AT NIGHT?" TARZAN ASKED COLDLY. THE MAN BEGAN TO STUTTER.
MATEA BROKE IN ANGRILY. "WHY MUST A HERO BE CROSS-EXAMINED LIKE A CRIMINAL?"
TARZAN DID NOT ANSWER, FOR HIS KEEN NOSTRILS HAD CAUGHT THE SCENT OF SUDDEN DANGER.
AT THE NEXT MOMENT A LEOPARD BROKE FROM THE UNDERBRUSH, CHARGING STRAIGHT AT THE LITTLE GROUP.
HOGARTH
"RUN!" TARZAN CALLED TO THE OTHERS AS HE DASHED FORWARD TO MEET THE CHARGE. BUT VANGER STOOD HIS GROUND. HERE WAS HIS CHANCE TO KILL HIS FOE, WHILE SEEMING TO AIM AT THE LEOPARD.
THE BEAST SPRANG AT TARZAN. VANGER FIRED---AT TARZAN!

THE GUMPS
IF YOU AND BIM THINK I FAKED THE WHOLE YARN, HOW DO YOU ACCOUNT FOR THESE CODE MESSAGES?
ANDY, DEAR, THEY DO LOOK LIKE YOUR HANDWRITING
ANDY, BACK HOME AFTER HIS STRANGE UNDERWORLD ADVENTURE, IS IN POSSESSION OF A PACKET OF MYSTERIOUS RECORDS WRITTEN IN CODE - THOUGH NEITHER BIM NOR MIN WILL TAKE HIM SERIOUSLY, ANDY HOLDS FIRMLY TO HIS HUNCH THAT RUFUS CHAPEL IS SOMEHOW MIXED UP IN THE CHAIN OF EVENTS!
GUS EDSON
MR. CHAPEL, I'M REALLY GETTING WORRIED ABOUT MY NEPHEW - THAT WILD STORY OF HIS ABOUT SOMEONE HE REFERS TO AS "THE UPTOWN BIG SHOT" - AND THOSE CODED PAPERS -
HM - HAS HE BEEN UNDER SOME RECENT MENTAL STRAIN? PEOPLE'S MINDS HAVE BEEN KNOWN TO SNAP UNDER SUCH CONDITIONS, YOU KNOW -
THAT'S EXACTLY WHAT I WAS THINKING -
AT FIRST I THOUGHT HE WAS JUST FABRICATING THE WHOLE STORY IN ORDER TO ATTRACT ATTENTION - YOU KNOW - IN A CHILDISH SORT OF WAY - BUT NOW THE AFFAIR HAS GONE SO FAR THAT I'M AFRAID IT'S HIS MIND - THOSE - ER - CODE PAPERS - HAS HE GONE TO AN EXPERT TO HAVE THEM DECODED?
NO - I DON'T BELIEVE SO -
PERHAPS THERE IS SOMETHING TO HIS STORY, AFTER ALL - I HAVE - ER - HAD SOME EXPERIENCE WITH VARIOUS CODES - IF YOU COULD BRING THE PAPERS TO ME, I MIGHT - ER -
THAT WOULD BE IMPOSSIBLE, MY FRIEND - I'M SURE HE WOULD NOT LET THEM OUT OF HIS SIGHT -
THAT'S TRUE, OF COURSE - THOUGHTLESS OF ME -
HA! SINCE HE SETS SO MUCH STORE BY THOSE PAPERS, I'LL BET HE KEEPS THEM IN SOME BANK DEPOSIT BOX - HEH - HEH - AND THEN SLEEPLESSLY WORRIES ALL NIGHT ABOUT THEIR SAFETY!
NO - STRANGELY ENOUGH - I UNDERSTAND HE KEEPS THEM RIGHT AT HOME -
- SAYS HE KEEPS THEM INSIDE THE LINING OF AN OLD HAT BECAUSE, SINCE HE FOUND THEM THAT WAY, IT WOULD BE THE LEAST LIKELY PLACE FOR THE ORIGINAL OWNERS TO LOOK FOR THEM - BUT I MUST RUN ALONG - IT'S ALMOST DINNER TIME - LATER THAT NIGHT - - -
GOOD GRIEF, ANDY! AREN'T YOU EVER GOING TO BED TONIGHT? IT'S ONE A.M.
OK - IN A FEW MINUTES - I THOUGHT I HAD A CLUE TO THIS CODE - BUT IT DIDN'T PAN OUT - I'LL START ON IT FIRST THING IN THE MORNING -
ANDY! ANDY! WAKE UP!! BURGLARS! THEY FORCED THE LIVING ROOM WINDOW DURING THE NIGHT! THE HOUSE IS RANSACKED!
BURGLARS? ANYTHING MISSING?
NO - THAT'S THE STRANGE PART OF IT - THE ONLY THINGS MISSING ARE - - - YOUR HATS - EVERY ONE OF THEM - - !!
WHAT?

PRESIDENT QUIET ON SUGGESTION HE URGE TRUCE

Not Expected To Advise Europe Unless Confident Of Success

THIRD FOREIGN SUBMARINE IS SEEN IN U. S. WATERS

Its Identity And Manner In Which It Was Sighted Not Disclosed

By Douglas B. Cornell

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 7—(AP)—While the world looked to this quiet Hudson valley village today for any sign that President Roosevelt might propose an armistice in the European war, the chief executive let reporters know he had no comment and then went out to look over the trees on his country estate.

He kept in close touch with Washington officials, however, and the result of one telephone conversation was an announcement that a third foreign submarine had been seen in American waters—some 15 miles from Miami, Fla. Its identity and the manner in which it was sighted was not disclosed.

In respect to intervention in Europe's affairs, persons having entry to the temporary White House gained the impression that no doubt existed that news from Berlin—that Adolf Hitler would agree to an armistice if the president suggested one—was officially inspired.

But they received the further impression that Mr. Roosevelt would take no action unless he was confident of success. In this connection the coolness with which Britain and France received the speech in which Hitler advocated a general European conference to adjust problems of the continent was noted.

William Hassett, a presidential aide, discussed with Mr. Roosevelt the Berlin reports and then told reporters:

"The president has specifically authorized me to say he will not have any comment on the dispatches from Berlin. There is nothing to say."

SENATE WOULD NAME ROOSEVELT PEACEMAKER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7—(AP)—A strong wave of sentiment developed in the senate today for President Roosevelt to step into the role of peacemaker in Europe.

Senators on both sides of the neutrality controversy expressed the opinion that the chief executive should take advantage of any clear opportunity afforded by overtures from Berlin to aid in ending the European war.

Administration quarters, however, remained silent.

At Hyde Park, N. Y., Mr. Roosevelt sent word to reporters that he had nothing to say.

It was pointed out in authoritative circles that this government has consistently taken the position that it was ready and willing to help Europe reach a general understanding on economic and disarmament questions, but had no intention of being drawn into its political disputes. This was the tenor of Mr. Roosevelt's peace appeals to Hitler prior to the beginning of the conflict.

Senate comment on the Berlin dispatches, almost without exception, was to the effect that there was no reason why Mr. Roosevelt should not endeavor to effect a peace and every reason why he should.

Senator Johnson, Democrat, Colorado, who has proposed previously that the chief executive join other neutrals in seeking an armistice, declared that it would be "a great honor for the president to mediate the European war."

He expressed the opinion that Mr. Roosevelt would have an opportunity to obtain an "honorable peace" and predicted the chief executive would take advantage of the opportunity.

OFFICER HELD FOR RESTRAINING PRESS

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 7—(AP)—United States deputy marshals today arrested Sledge Medicus, a Mobile policeman, on a grand jury capias charging him with conspiracy to interfere with freedom of the press.

Five persons, including Sam B. Powe, political figure, already have been convicted, a sixth is under indictment and one was acquitted in the case.

The grand jury returned the indictment against Medicus in its report to Judge John McDuffie yesterday. It also named Allen E. Cameron, former bartender, for conspiracy to participate in the attack on Henry P. Ewald, former executive editor of the Mobile Press Register. Cameron was arrested yesterday.

The government, through District Attorney Francis H. Inge, charged the conspirators attacked Ewald because of an expose he was directing in the newspapers against gambling here. Inge contends Ewald was lured to a house on a night last February, and there attacked and photographed.

WOMAN IS FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

Leaves Note Saying She Can't Live Without Son Who Died In Spring

Mrs. Connie Davidson, 30, of Hodge, was found dead in her room at Hotel Virginia here yesterday afternoon, and Dr. Irving J. Wolff, Ouachita parish coroner, said she had apparently died of a self-inflicted bullet wound in the left chest.

Mrs. Davidson was said to have registered at the hotel Friday night and her body was found about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Lawrence J. Hulin, assistant manager of the hotel, and a chamber maid. Dr. Wolff said the victim had apparently been dead from 12 to 14 hours.

Dr. Wolff said the body lay on the bed, with a 25-caliber automatic pistol lying near Mrs. Davidson's right hand.

According to reports, the hotel chamber maid had made trips to the woman's room on the third floor on several occasions during the morning and early afternoon, attempting to get in to clean the room. She found the door locked on each occasion, it was reported, and finally informed the assistant manager, who was on duty at the time.

In a report to police and Dr. Wolff, Assistant Manager Hulin was quoted as saying he had gone to the room with the chamber maid and knocked at the door, getting no response. He finally opened the door with the hotel key and discovered the tragedy.

Chief of Police Frank V. Reitzell and Dr. Wolff were immediately summoned to investigate the case.

According to reports, the pistol had

FEDERAL GRAND JURY OPENS NEW INVESTIGATION

Announcement Made After Body Holds Unexpected Session Saturday

Inquisitors Act On Own Initiative When District Attorney Reluctant

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 7—(AP)—The federal grand jury here is investigating an alleged "tax assessment reduction racket" that was described in charges made in February, 1939, by Hugh M. Wilkinson, attorney, federal attorneys officially announced today.

The announcement was made after the grand jury unexpectedly held a two-hour Saturday session which District Attorney Rene A. Viosca said was devoted to unfinished business and then adjourned until 9:30 a.m. Monday.

Viosca said that as soon as the jury's probe of the "racket" is completed he would present a large volume of reports from WPA investigators who have been combing the state for three months gathering data on WPA activities and projects under supervision of Paul A. Hansen, agent in charge of the WPA regional investigative unit.

Wilkinson filed charges before the State Bar of Louisiana on the alleged "racket," which he said cost the state and city a large sum of money, and the charges were referred to the district attorney. After an open court hearing it was announced that there was no evidence to substantiate the charges.

Payrolls of city departments are expected to be examined next week by the Orleans parish grand jury after it reconvenes Monday.

Court attaches said Charity hospital "salary sheets" had been furnished to the grand jury before its week-end recess while dock board and sewerage and water board rolls are expected to be turned over next week.

Court reports said some disagreement over procedure had developed due to District Attorney Charles A. Byrne's opposition to an investigation of dual office-holding, and the grand jury ordered the records on its own initiative.

Byrne and other city legal counsel held that in their opinions legislators on the city payrolls were not dual officeholders in violation of the city charter but were city "employes."

Yesterday, after handing down two indictments in the "double move" of a Charity hospital building charging embezzlement against three men, the grand jury conferred with District Judge George P. Platt on procedure.

The judge said the jurors wanted to discuss with him rules of law governing their body. Although there was no official comment on the conference, attended also by Assistant District Attorney Conrad Meyer, Jr., reports said a disagreement had arisen over certain interpretations of the law governing the grand jury's powers.

Federal grand juries here and at Monroe and parish grand juries at Shreveport and Baton Rouge which have been investigating the Louisiana political situation were in adjournment until Monday.

EARL LONG SAYS HE'LL 'BE FAIR'

Declares His Is 'Only Genuine 100 Per Cent Huey Long Ticket'

COUSHATTA, La., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Governor Earl K. Long, campaigning for the governorship here today, promised if elected to "be fair and honest," and said "I am not going to lie. I am going to economize."

He declared his ticket is the "only genuine 100 per cent Huey Long ticket.

"I am not going to sell you out, I will not let you down, I will not vilify the name of Huey," he yelled hoarsely. "If you loved Huey, put your shoulders to the wheel with the one and only ticket pledged to carry out his principles."

Long, in a speech denouncing almost all his principal opponents, and several of the state's leading newspapers, predicted the administration ticket would roll up huge gains in both city and country parishes in the January primaries.

At one point he screamed loudly that he would "knock hell out of Vincent Mosely (an opponent) if he was as big as an earthquake," and said "and I would do the same to any other vilifier of the dead."

"When they prove that I stole a dime, I will get out," Long said. "I have no desire to be rich. I couldn't be happy."

Long said he could not be blamed for crookedness of others, and said his job as lieutenant-governor gave him no control of affairs. "The lieutenant-governor is just a knot on a log," he said.

"No paper can find anything wrong with my record. If they could have, they would have done it long ago. I had no more to do with contracts, construction and shakedowns than the man in the moon." He said that the (New Orleans) Times-Picayune was going "to make me governor in spite of the devil."

Pointing to what he termed the benefits that the "poor people" had received from the present administration he promised, if elected, to improve and double the mileage of the farm-to-market road system, to provide free transportation to all Red River parish students of the State

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 7.—(AP)—W. A. Cooper, state collector of revenue, said today that tobacco tax collections in Louisiana have maintained a steady increase since the tax was levied in 1932 and in that period has practically doubled.

Collections for September, 1939, amounted to $383,926.93, and the tax for October, 1932, the first normal month under the present tax amounted to $193,303.59, he said. Total collections for 1938 amounted to $4,182,469.25.

With three exceptions, he explained, the tax every month has exceeded the tax for the corresponding month of the previous year.

Cooper attributes the increase in tax to increased consumption of tobacco, particularly by women.

Bryant Long, who is head of the tobacco tax division, Fred A. Blanche, attorney, and I. D. Meredith, Jr., auditor in the division, are in Atlanta attending the sessions of the National Tobacco Tax council.

SHREVEPORT AMENDS PARKING ORDINANCE

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 7.—(AP)—The city council today in special session amended the parking meter ordinance to meet with legal objections raised in recent opinions of District Judge E. P. Mills and City Judge Ruvian D. Hendrick.

The amendments abolished the traffic bureau, reduced the maximum fine for violations to one dollar and eliminated the referendum clause of the original ordinance.

The parking meter heads have been removed and will remain out of operation until after the validity of the revised measure is determined in court, Mayor Sam Caldwell said.

A hearing on the legality of the meters is scheduled for Tuesday before Judge Mills.

VALLEY FAIR IS CLOSING TODAY

Exhibition Proves Complete Success; Plan Broader Scope Next Year

Today will mark the closing of the Ouachita Valley fair of 1939, and with favorable weather conditions existing, a large attendance is anticipated.

The rodeo will be given for the concluding performance at 3 p.m. today. The fair exhibit buildings will be all open and no booths can be removed until Monday, according to the rules regulating the exhibition, stated E. S. Eby, secretary.

Saturday was a big day for the fair, it having been designated as 4-H day and as "kid" day, children being admitted at the gates for five cents or half the regular price. Also rides and concessions were operated at five cents a ride and school children and others from a wide area were in attendance from the time the gates were opened until far into the night.

The attendance for the week was far in excess of that of a year ago when it was estimated that 20,000 visited the fair. Figures for this year were not available last night but it will be possible in excess of 25,000.

All officials of the fair from C. C. Bell, president, John Birdsong, manager, to E. S. Eby, executive secretary, were highly pleased with the exhibition and declared that the encouragement received this year was such as to cause them to plan on a fair for 1940 that will be far wider in scope than any exhibition ever attempted in northeast Louisiana.

VETERAN ORLEANS RIVER PILOT DIES

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Captain Charles H. Cugle, 58, veteran river pilot and authority on navigation, died in Touro infirmary today.

A pilot on the river for 15 years, he wrote several books on navigation. He was a native of Baltimore, Md., but had lived in New Orleans since 1915. He served 14 years on vessels plying between New Orleans and New York and later was assistant inspector of hulls and manager of the sea service bureau of the United States shipping board here.

He is survived by his widow and two sons, Howard E. and Robert F. Cugle. Funeral services will be held Sunday.

DICTATORSHIP TO END, SAYS JONES

Candidate For Governor Promises To Restore 'Home Rule' Government

LAKE CHARLES, La., Oct. 7.—(AP)—A pledge to bring about "the end of dictatorship and the return of power to the sovereign people" was given tonight by Sam H. Jones, candidate for governor, speaking here in the courthouse square of his home town.

The speech was broadcast over a state-wide hookup.

Jones offered proposals to lessen the tax burden and restore "home rule" in local government.

"Under my administration," he said, "the sheriffs, police juries, school boards, towns, cities and municipalities, large or small, with no exception, will receive back their right to rule in their own localities, in their own way, with their own assistants.

"Let these local officials be responsible to their home folks—the people who elected them. This will end autocratic government in its entirety. No more absentee control."

Jones attacked "deadheads" and dual office holding and gave proposals to lessen the tax burden "placed upon the poor by the present administration."

"A just and equable tax system that will shift the weight of government expense from the poor and deserving onto the non-productive drones in our society, this I advocate. And how?

"Abolish the burdensome and unreasonable sales tax which has been placed upon the poor by the present administration, contrary to a campaign pledge, and do away with the token which operates as a burden on almost every necessity of life.

"Wipe out, or lower the nuisance license taxes that strangle every small business.

"Reduce all automobile taxes.

"Have a real homestead exemption, not subject to the tinkerings and wiles of politicians.

MAJOR WATSON STILL MISSING

Four Army Fliers Fail To Find Trace Of Unreported Airman

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Pilots of four army attack planes arrived here late this afternoon from Barksdale Field, Louisiana, to report that a search of the country between here and Shreveport, La., had yielded no clue to the fate of Major D. D. Watson, Randolph Field, Texas, flier.

Watson has been unreported since he took off from the Nashville municipal airport at 10:55 a.m. yesterday on a flight to Memphis.

Aiding the search for the missing flier were two Tennessee national guard pilots, Major J. L. Grisham and Lieutenant H. H. Jones of Tennessee's 105th observation squadron.

Watson's mother, Mrs. Jim Watson, who lives at Paris, Tenn., said there that her son had just been transferred from Randolph Field to duty on the Pacific coast and took off from Nashville intending to eat lunch with his wife in San Antonio and then fly on to Oakland, Calif., for dinner.

Grisham's search today covered an area from Paris, Tenn., 130 miles northeast of Memphis to Memphis and from Memphis to Nashville via Whiteville, Jackson and Jack's Creek. The section over which he flew is fairly thickly populated and one in which any forced landing likely would soon become known. The Hatchie river valley, or "bottom," in west Tennessee, was the only heavily wooded and sparsely populated area in the searched territory.

Officers of the Nashville airport said the search of Grisham and Jones so far had covered a restricted area and that with the four army fliers they would widen their search to cover all southwest and west Tennessee.

Watson was reported to be flying a low-winged, single-motored plane which could be landed in a good-sized

Little Chicago Absorbs Monroe And West Monroe

Little Chicago, the mythical municipality that extends eastward into infinity from Five Points, has absorbed the cities of Monroe and West Monroe. Or maybe it was vice versa and the Twin Cities adopted their rip-roaring neighbor.

It wasn't at all clear Saturday and even students of international law were at variance. But that wasn't causing many headaches, for never have students of international law been in accord.

Here's how the question arose: In a bloodless plebiscite Thursday afternoon at Hotel Virginia, with Mayor H. H. Benoit of Monroe and Mayor Harry Williams of West Monroe voting in the affirmative, the Twin Cities, represented by approximately 50 municipal, parochial, business and civic leaders, agreed unanimously to accept, for a couple of days each year, starting this year, the roistering rule of Little Chicago.

Everyone in attendance at the meeting heartily approved the expansion of the annual election and frolic in Little Chicago into a Twin City celebration. Words of praise were heaped upon Little Chicagoans for their past efforts and the assemblage pledged itself to work toward building the yearly parody on democracy into an attraction that will command attention throughout the state, particularly northeast Louisiana.

The motion favoring the expansion of the flamboyant frivolity into a Twin City affair was proposed by J. L. Ewing, advertising director of The News-Star and The World. It was offered by Jack Allen, chairman of the Little Chicago executive committee, and seconded by Mayor Benoit. The vote was unanimously favorable.

Mr. Ewing, who previously had pledged the support of the local daily papers to the proposal to enlarge the celebration, opened the meeting by introducing Mayor Allen Ritter of Little Chicago, who, after taking the

War In Europe Likely To Center In Air And On Sea

By Kirke L. Simpson
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Pending a more definite Franco-British rejoinder to the Hitler "peace move," neutral speculation centers on the extent to which the German leader's reichstag speech may indicate German war plans for the immediate future—if it is to be war.

Military minds found considerable of significance to interest them in Hitler's words. His speech may have furnished a missing factor without which the possibilities or probabilities of early ruthless war in the air in western Europe were not previously clear.

It is not lost upon such trained onlookers that Herr Hitler, in drawing his graphic word picture of what continuation of the "unthinkable" war in the west would mean, talked almost wholly of war of the air.

His picture of long range French and German guns pounding away at enemy towns and cities far behind the front argues against a German plan to attempt to crash through the deeply fortified French Maginot line. Likewise, it spells out German confidence that her own Seigfried line can hold out against any assault.

To the German leader, as to all military folk, it is the air power factor that alters the probable scope and nature of this war from any that the world previously has seen. It was the airways of attack he had in mind.

"Whatever cannot be reached by the long-distance guns will be destroyed from the air," he warned. . . . "And this battle of destruction will not be confined to the land. No, it will reach far out over the sea. Today there are no longer any islands."

There can hardly be a doubt that Hitler was calling up visions not only of German air fleets raining destruction upon the British Isles, but upon British merchant shipping and war craft as well. Submarine sinkings leave some hope that the crews may escape in ships' boats, even if the attack comes without warning. Air at-

HITLER CONFIDENT PEACE PROPOSALS TO BEAR FRUIT

Paris Reports 30,000 Tons Of Merchandise Stopped By Navy In Week

(By Associated Press)

French and German guns boomed along the western front last night in an artillery duel which topped a day of speculation by Europe's diplomats on the Allies' probable answer to Adolf Hitler's peace formula.

The French general staff in its night communique declared the artillery action occurred between the Moselle and Saar rivers, along with patrol activity in the region south of Zweibruecken.

The German communique, issued earlier, referred to the artillery fight as "only a sporadic barrage of fire." The Nazi generals, however, declared local scouting and troop actions of the enemy were repulsed and two French planes were downed.

Yesterday's reactions in Berlin and Paris on Hitler's reichstag speech were represented as varying widely.

The French and English were said in Paris to be playing a waiting game—delaying action on the western front until the blockade of Germany could be made more effective by winter.

Paris sources indicated the Allies were confident that if Germany was forced to go through a winter without sensational land battles to bolster her morale the Nazis would be much weaker with the coming of spring.

In connection with the blockade, the French reported their navy stopped 30,000 tons of merchandise destined for Germany during the first week of October.

In Berlin, the Nazi slogan was "out of the Siegfried line by Christmas."

Adolf Hitler was said to be confident his peace proposals would bear fruit. His leaders declared they saw no reason why the trenches could not be emptied by Christmas if the powers desiring peace acted immediately upon Hitler's formula.

A detailed reply by Prime Minister Chamberlain to Hitler's reichstag speech was expected in the house of commons probably Wednesday.

There was no further word last night from the British admiralty on what it said was an attack by German flying boats on two British minesweepers in the North sea. The announcement, however, said there were no casualties on either side.

Apparently confident that all of their reserve manpower would not be needed in the immediate future, Rumania, Yugoslavia and Hungary have begun partial demobilization of their armies.

A communique by the Rumanian government disclosed that the three nations began decreasing their forces September 30. Diplomats said the step probably pointed to solidification of a Balkan neutrality group.

Rumania was said to have had 500,000 men in her army for the last month, Yugoslavia about 500,000 and Hungary more than 300,000.

In the Baltic area, scene of swift moves by Russia in the last week, Finland announced the calling up of new army reserves while delaying a reply to a Russian bid for a Moscow conference.

Previous invitations to Finland's Baltic neighbors to conferences in Moscow have cost them concessions to Russian power—and northern capitals speculated whether Finland would attempt to stand against that trend.

RIDER OF RUNNING BOARD IS CRUSHED

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Victor Disher, 22, of Harvey, La., riding on the running board of an automobile, was crushed to death yesterday when the automobile sideswiped a truck near Sorrento.

Andrew Pampas and Malcolm Guidry, both of New Orleans, were also on the running board but escaped. The three were hitch-hiking a ride to New Orleans from the CCC camp at Alexandria, of which they were members.

State police said the driver of the automobile, listed as J. E. Baker of Atlanta, Tex., was placed in the Donaldsonville jail. Baker's companions, listed as Bruce Wilkins and Ralph Philby of Sewanee, Okla., and Oliver Higgins of Liberty, Miss., were held as witnesses.

Lord Halifax, the foreign secretary, indicated as much in the house of lords Wednesday when he said any peace proposal from Germany would be examined with care and allied.

"I certainly do not rule out the suggestion that there will be a possible and desirable opportunity for some reasoned statement of the position adopted by this country before the world."

In general terms Chamberlain has described the war aims as the removal of "Hitlerism" and the redemption of Europe from "the perpetual threat of German aggression."

Restoration of an independent Poland and Czecho-Slovakia also have been cited as war objectives.

But Allied proposals for creating a new order in Europe have been urged in political quarters and in the press since long before the outbreak of the war.

There was official silence on dispatches from Berlin suggesting that Hitler would agree to an armistice were it proposed by President Roosevelt or the head of any other important neutral power.

The admiralty announced that two British minesweepers were attacked by German flying boats in the North sea this afternoon. The announcement said no casualties were suffered by either side.

FRENCH AND BRITISH PLAY DELAYING GAME

PARIS, Oct. 7—(AP)—French and British sources indicated today that the Allies were playing a delaying game to prevent the start of major German operations on the western front in order to let winter weather give full effect to the blockade of Germany.

These sources indicated that Allied leaders were convinced that if Germany had to face a winter siege without sensational land battles to bolster the morale, the Nazis would be much weaker when weather cleared again for military operations in the spring.

French military observers set the end of October as the outside limit for the German offensive to start. While there often is "Indian summer" weather in Alsace-Lorraine through October, the weather turns bad with the beginning of November and stays bad through February.

Experienced French military men recalled that during the last war the weather was such that there never were more than two weeks in December and January when it was possible

SOUND TRUCKS MAY BE CURBED

Proposed Ordinance Is Approved At Chamber Of Commerce Meeting

A proposed ordinance to regulate the so-called sound truck nuisance, was given approval of members of the civic affairs committee of the Chamber of Commerce and five sound truck operators who attended a special meeting in the rooms of the chamber Friday afternoon. The ordinance would permit sound trucks to operate in the business section from noon to 1 p.m. and from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m.

In the residential section hours in which operation would be permitted are designated as 10 a.m., to 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. The proposed ordinance will be submitted to the commission council of Monroe and to the board of aldermen of West Monroe.

The hours when sound trucks will be permitted in the downtown section are so-called "flat hours" when there is a relaxation from business duties, as they come at a time when many are out for lunch or dinner. In the residence section the hours are selected with the view of causing the least possible disturbance to family routines.

No sound trucks at any time are to be permitted within one block of schools, hospitals or sanitariums.

In the choice of hours, the city of Shreveport was consulted and the time named in which to permit sound trucks is similar to what prevails there and in Waco, Tex. The residential section hours are not copied from any city but are proposed for Monroe and West Monroe as suited to local conditions.

A discussion of the subject was held and all present were given opportunity to express opinions with the result that all agreed on the plan as it was finally outlined.

During the course of the meeting, Mayors Benoit and Williams agreed to allow their cities to be absorbed by their mythical neighbor, Little Chicago, for a couple of days annually.

PLAN FOR MASS TROOP TRAINING

War Department Makes New Move To Reinforce National Defenses

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7—(AP)—In a new move to reinforce national defenses, the war department today ordered unprecedented mass training this winter for more than 70,000 troops —a procedure intended to weld new army divisions into a mobile fighting force.

At the same time an intention to ask congress to expand the regular army by an additional 53,000 men to its full peacetime strength of 280,000 was indicated by disclosure of plans for additional divisions when and if increases are authorized.

Approved by President Roosevelt, the announcement for organization of the fighting force came from Secretary Woodring. It omitted reference to the European war or to earlier defense measures taken since Mr. Roosevelt's proclamation of a limited national emergency.

There was no hint whether the request for further army expansion would await the regular session or would be presented to the special session of congress after conclusion of the neutrality debate.

The extraordinary winter training was described by Woodring as "essential" in view of "the extremely limited numbers available for the defense of the United States as an initial protective force."

In the most extensive war games in army history, some 60,000 or more troops of five new "streamlined" divisions and special units are to be moved in the next few weeks from scattered posts, first to different concentration points in the south and northwest, it was announced.

Then they will be massed late in the winter at a central point—probably at Fort Benning, Ga., officials thought—for training as the first actual American army combat corps organized since the World war.

At the same time two cavalry divisions of about 5,000 men each will be trained at Fort Bliss, El Paso, Tex.

The intensive training in large scale "combat team" tactics will continue for months, officials said.

MRS. BESSIE B. DICKINSON

OAK GROVE, La., Oct. 7.—(Special)—Mrs. Bessie Bartlett Dickinson, 63, member of one of West Carroll parish's oldest families, died this morning at 10:17 o'clock at the home of a son, Joel B. Dickinson, clerk of court of West Carroll parish.

Mrs. Dickinson has been praised as an example of motherhood. Her husband died early in life and as a young mother she was left with four small children. She continued, however, to operate her small farm and to educate her children. But after the work of rearing her children had been completed, Mrs. Dickinson refused retirement and opened a small lunch room, which she operated in the business district here until failing health finally caused her to retire some time ago.

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Oak Grove cemetery with Rev. E. B. Emmerich, assisted by Rev. Drummonds, officiating. Services will be under the direction of Catron and Golden Funeral home.

Mrs. Dickinson is survived by three sons and one daughter, Joel B. Dickinson, Lee Dickinson, Louis Dickinson and Betty Lou Holt.

At the presiding officer's table with Mayor Ritter were Mayor Benoit, Mayor Williams and Commissioner of Streets and Parks C. R. Tidwell of Monroe. W. D. H. Rodriguez, commissioner of finance and public utilities, was out of the city, but he was represented by Walter Mangham, superintendent of municipal transportation. Present, too, was Frank Reitzell, Monroe police chief.

The parish was represented by D. Y. Smith, police juror from Sterlington; John M. Breard of Monroe, Ward 10 police juror; R. D. Farr, clerk of court; John Atkinson, deputy sheriff representing Sheriff Milton Coverdale, who was unable to be present because of press of business in connection with the current session of the parish grand jury; and Bert Coverdale, chief deputy, representing the assessor's office.

Among the business and civic leaders present were Lucius Hughes, president of the Lions club; S. A. Moss, president of the Monroe Kiwanis club; Lee Hodges, president of the junior board of the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe; Hal Hodges, manager of Sears, Roebuck and company here and an active member of the Chamber of Commerce; Dr. C. C. Colvert, dean of Northeast Junior college of Louisiana State university; A. B. Clarkson, president of the Twin City Community Chest; George Holland, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; P. G. Rowe, local manager of the Sherwin-Williams paint company, and Jimmy Newburn of the Central Trades and Labor council.

Little Chicagoans present in addition to Mayor Ritter and Mr. Allen were John J. Spatafora, Tom Adams, Earl Speights and W. C. Holstein.

Virtually every one present offered words of commendation for the past efforts of Little Chicagoans and pledged their support of a bigger and better celebration. All were of the opinion that the Little Chicago election and frolic has unlimited possibilities as a good will builder for Monroe and West Monroe among the neighboring people of northeast Louisiana. All agreed that there was nothing like a couple of days of comic relief each year for cementing old friendships and creating new ones.

Following the meeting, Mr. Allen announced that the Little Chicago executive committee would immediately draw up tentative plans for this year's celebration and submit them for approval or alteration to an advisory committee of Monroe and West Monroe leaders.

Mr. Allen listed the following on the advisory committee: Mayor Benoit; Mayor Williams; Police Jury President J. L. Warren; A. O. Evans, president of the senior board of the Chamber of Commerce; Lee Hodges, president of the junior board of the Chamber of Commerce; H. R. Saenger, chairman of the retail merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce; Ed C. Apperson, commander of Barkdull Faulk post of the American Legion; J. W. Keene, commander of Rodney J. Hobbs' post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Mr. Hughes, president of the Lions club; Mr. Moss, president of the Monroe Kiwanis club; Dr. J. Q. Graves, president of the Rotary club; W. C. Fisher, president of the West Monroe Kiwanis club; H. T. Anders, president of the Y's Men's club; and Mr. Newburn of the Central Trades and Labor council.

Besides Mr. Allen, the Little Chicago executive committee is composed of Mr. Holstein, J. H. Birdsong and Mr. Rowe.

A note and the picture of a boy were found in the room with Mrs. Davidson. The picture was said to have been that of a son who had died with infantile paralysis last spring, and a part of the note found with the body was said to have read, "I can't live without my boy."

The body was taken to Davis-Lawhead funeral home here, but later was taken to Jonesboro where funeral services will be held tomorrow. Mrs. Davidson is survived by her husband, her mother and several brothers and sisters.

Lloyd George Wages Peace

[illegible]

Was it not this same Lloyd George who [illegible] with implacable Clemenceau jammed through the peace negotiations impossible reparations demands on Germany, and who helped to jettison President Wilson's Fourteen Points?

Was it not this same Lloyd George who pushed aside the advice of the American negotiators when they said that the harshness of the Versailles terms would inevitably lead to the rise of a German leader who would seek to throw off the oppressive treaty?

Yes, it was the same man, and not one whose record would seem to argue that he is best qualified to contribute to the question of a 1939 peace. Such a peace must be better than the peace of 1919, or it will have been scarcely worth making.

Lloyd George wants the United States dealt a hand in any new peace conference "because you have there a great power whose interests are not European interests and which has not been involved in any of these disputes and quarrels."

Whether the United States might have any interest in the making of a general peace in Europe would depend largely on whether it proved to be a mere military armistice or a real settlement going to the root of the economic, colonial, financial and armament problems in a truly international way.

That Woodrow Wilson once envisioned such a world settlement, and what happened to his hopes, and why it happened, no one is in a better position to remember than David Lloyd George. And if there should appear in the United States a certain reluctance to take another hand in that game, especially if there are any deuces wild, again Lloyd George is in the best possible position to understand.

WAR PRICES?

The advance in price of American commodities since the war has been marked, leading some people to talk about "war prices."

But the remarkable thing about the price, say, of wheat, is not that it has risen 20 cents a bushel and more, but that it is still far below not only the war levels of 1918, but even below the 1910-1914 normal. That was figured at $1.16. Wheat closed recently in Kansas City at 82 cents, whereas it was pegged by the Food administration during the World war at $2, and after those restrictions were removed, jumped to $2.76 in 1919.

Up to now, the war in Europe has not meant "profiteering" for the farmer, whose price is still well below the "parity" sought by the agricultural administration, and only a third of real World war prices. If there is going to be any "war bonanza" for American farmers, it isn't in sight yet.

FEEL SHEEPISH?

Are you one of the many people who have tried to woo sleep by counting imaginary sheep jumping successively over an imaginary fence? If so, it's time for you to feel sheepish.

It's the wrong approach to Morpheus, says Dr. Louis J. Karnosh, Cleveland physician. Counting sheep, or any similar dodge, says Dr. Karnosh, simply concentrates the mind on the expedient, thus keeping the insomniac wider awake than ever. Reading in bed, or any sort of mental gymnastics, simply defeats the whole plan.

The real thing to do is to relax as much as possible and then try to avoid thinking about anything in particular, thinks Dr. Karnosh. Trying to concentrate too hard on the sheep simply makes you the goat.

JIMMIE FIDLER In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 7. Dear Staff: Not nearly enough has been said about the voluntary forty per cent salary cut taken by Darryl Zanuck, head man at the Twentieth Century-Fox studio.

For years, the common Hollywood [illegible] has been: "If conditions are so bad [illegible] the little fellows always get it in the neck." Only a few weeks ago, I editorialized [illegible] while top officials continued to collect million-dollar salaries.

But now comes Zanuck to show the rest of the big fellows what it means to play ball with the industry that made him powerful and wealthy. After all, a forty per cent cut in Darryl's salary ain't hay. It's probably close to a quarter of a million dollars, which is a lot of dough for any man to surrender voluntarily. It means that about two hundred lesser studio employes may keep their jobs.

Zanuck's action calls for a spontaneous hurrah. It should lend confidence to theater men especially. I know, were I a theater owner, I'd feel mighty safe dealing with a man who had so forcibly proved his loyalty to organization and the industry.

Darryl's move should re-create new confidence on the part of Mr. and Mrs. Public too. When other producers (and stars and directors, too) come down out of the clouds with their salary demands—the movie business will be more soundly stabilized. Better pictures and pleasanter feelings between studios, theater and the public will follow. You mark my words.

JIMMIE FIDLER.

Dear Cheer Leader: While giving Darryl Zanuck that hurrah, shed a pitying tear for poor old Uncle Sam, who is likewise taking a cut—about $125,000 of that quarter of a million comes out of Samuel's anticipated tax revenue.

You can ready another hurrah for it looks like Janet Gaynor will be returning to work pronto. Several years ago, you'll recall she bought the rights of Mildred Cram's novel, "Forever." She is now considering offers from two studios which want both the story and her services as star.

And a footnote to the many stories about Marlene Dietrich's about-face. It's true that she's thrown overboard all her restrictions against interviews and publicity pictures, but one ban still stands. She absolutely refuses to sanction any pictures of her daughter Maria, ostensibly because she's still afraid of kidnappers, but possibly because Maria is now taller than mama and that might be de-glamorizing.

Here's a bird's-eye view of today's gleanings: Clark Gable has been invited to be King of the Akron, O., Rubber Ball, to be staged December 2, a news note that gains human interest when you recall that Clark used to do manual labor in one of Akron's tire factories . . . Jane Withers's mama reports that your item about her sponsoring the screen career of a neighbor girl has buried her under an avalanche of letters from screen struck parents who are offering her everything from a percentage of possible earnings to the profits of the old family farm if she will manage their spring-offs . . . Don't rule out that reported romance 'twixt Eleanor Powell and roller-skate-maestro Wes Aaronsen, just because he's left Hollywood—he's due back this winter to re-pop question. . . . Bob Benchley is staking his secretary, Jeanette Messeurier, to a course in the American Academy of Dramatic Arts . . . Standby for something new in the book line—Simon and Shuster have contracted to publish the complete behind-the-scenes story of the production of "Northwest Passage," as recorded by King Vidor in candid camera shots. . . . David O. Selznick was that impressed by Ingrid Bergman's work in "Intermezzo," so he's bought her German-owned contract and will bring her back to Hollywood come spring to star in "The Swan." . . . Boss, you ought to see the beard Errol Flynn is growing for his role in "Virginia City." . . . The Dick Powells, the Eddie Cantors, the Bing Crosbys and Burns and Allen will be honorary sponsors of National Better Parenthood Week, which takes off the 23rd.

This isn't news, but in the light of subsequent events, it's certainly interesting. Conning an old scrapbook one of the boys at Warner Brothers happened on an interview given by Jimmy Cagney in New York, just seven years ago, when he went back to receive the Big Stem's plaudits for his first hit in "Public Enemy." Asked to name the best actress and the best actor in Hollywood, Jimmy shocked the interviewer by naming two unknowns. Their names were Bette Davis and Spencer Tracy. Maybe some studio should hire Cagney to train its talent scouts.

Human Side Of The News

[illegible]

"I think it was around 1902 that I was at a show at Miner's Bowery theater. I know it was Friday night, because that was amateur night, and I and Slip Dugan always used to go on amateur nights. They called him Slip because he was a great cop-dodger but I should save Slip for a separate yarn. This Friday night there was a singer so bad he jarred your back teeth. We all hollered like we were in pain which was just how it was but the more we hollered, the louder he sang and his voice was like a calliope with the croup.

"Charlie Guthinger, the manager, was waving to this pest off the side of the stage, but he couldn't stop him and it got worse and worse. Then Charlie had a great idea. There's a cake-walker on the bill with a strutting act and he has a cane with a crook on it as big around as your leg. Charlie takes the cane and ties it to a long pole which was used by some acrobats.

"We don't see Charlie but this crook catches the big noise right around the neck and jerks him so fast you saw the soles of his feet as he shot into the wings. Everybody was so pleased they yelled their heads off and some visiting cops had to tunk a few heads with their nightsticks before they could go on with the show. One or two acts was pretty good and got a nice hand and then along came another quince.

"It was funny the way everybody in the house got the big idea all in the same second. There was one big roar, 'Get the hook!' And that hook was one of the great inventions of the age, I'm telling you.

"That was how that way of speaking started 37 years ago, and this brat behind me, who is not yet dry behind the ears, thinks he's pulling a nifty, as the old saying is. Take it from me, a lot of these gags of today are old stuff to anybody who has been around as long as I have.

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Football is the most hazardous of collegiate sports.

Records during one school year showed that in 22 universities and colleges among 44,000 participants in athletics there were 604 football injuries, 166 baseball injuries, 130 basketball, 80 wrestling, 74 boxing and 73 track and field injuries. Football had by far the greater number of injuries, even though there were 9,626 playing basketball as compared with 5,800 in football.

Most important in preparation for any kind of a game, but particularly for football, is a suitable physical examination of the participant. The examiner must find out what diseases the player has had previously.

Certain diseases, like scarlet fever, disturb the kidneys. Repeated infections of the throat are associated not rarely with disturbances of the heart. Tuberculosis in a mild form may not be visible or easy to detect, yet if a person with beginning tuberculosis undertakes to play football, he may bring about damage that may incapacitate him for life or even kill him.

Chief attention is always centered on the heart. There are many simple tests of the efficiency of this organ. The simplest are those which test the rate of the heart when the person is lying down or standing up, and which measure the length of the time that is required for the heart to return to its normal rate after slight exercise.

An increase in the rate of the heart after exercise and a reasonably prompt return to normal after the exercise is stopped indicate that the heart functions fairly well. If there is a long delay in the return to the normal rate, special study must be given to the efficiency of the heart.

Football requires more pre-season training than almost any other sport except long distance running. Wind and endurance are developed only by repeated exercising day after day, the period of exercise being gradually increased as well as its intensity.

Many men lose from 1 1-2 to 3 pounds during a game of golf. It is said that football players may lose from 7 to 10 pounds during a game. A man in good condition tends to regain his weight during 24 hours. If a player fails to regain his weight within a reasonable time and is constantly dropping away from his best weight, he certainly needs a physical examination to determine whether or not he is in condition to participate in such a strenuous game.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

THE NAIL-BITING HABIT

When the nails are broken and bitten off [illegible] the quick, the protection of the nail is lost and nature grows a thick skin over the finger ends to give this protection. But a thick skin is a dull skin. The fine sensitivity of the thin skin is lost. The touch is dull, the action of the fingers clumsy. Biting the nails is costly in terms of skin comfort, and general intelligence. We express our thoughts with our hands and if they are [illegible] expressions are [illegible] handwork [illegible] of a fine intelligence [illegible] have good handwork if the finger ends are injured by nail-biting.

What can we do to persuade the child to [illegible]? To forego the pleasure and comfort of placing his finger in his mouth while he reads or studies? Get him to understand why he should. Then get him to want to stop the practice. It is easier to get a boy to help himself this way than it is to get a girl to want to have good nails so much that she is willing to sacrifice the pleasure for the profit. The boy oftener than the girl, wants to do good work with his hands, and he is more sensitive about the appearance he makes in this respect—finger in mouth appears infantile and stupid and he responds sooner. Sometimes we can interest the girl in wanting to have pretty hands bad enough to take care of them, a little.

In any case, talk about the need for finely sensitive finger-tips, about the beauty of well-kept hands, about the value of efficient hands. Dwell on the point of use related to intelligence. There is such a thing as "dumb-looking" hands, and no child wants to own them. If he can see his hands in the light of intelligence, he will be led to develop them sooner.

It is wise and kind to teach young people that useful hands are beautiful. Care helps them to be useful. Care coupled with intelligent use makes them beautiful in the eyes of the world. This takes a deal of teaching, but it can be done.

The correction of bad habits will help your youngster, while he is still small, to feel a keener interest in life. Send for Angelo Patri's booklet, "Annoying Habits," enclosing ten cents in coin. Address Angelo Patri, care the Monroe News-Star, Postoffice Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y.

ROLL CALL STARTS

TALLULAH, La., Oct. 7—(Special)—The annual Red Cross roll call for Madison parish has begun under the leadership of Mrs. E. O. Edgerton, roll call chairman. Because of local conditions, the drive here preceeds [illegible] throughout the country and has [illegible] approval of Red Cross officials in this area, plans for the roll call and a report of the local chapter having been submitted at a regional conference recently held in Monroe. Mrs. C. H. Todd is the chapter chairman and Mrs. Charles Coltharp is the executive secretary.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

WASHINGTON—It sounds funny to hear reputable military scholars talk about battles and maneuvers in terms of the psychological effect they will have on one lone man well removed from the battle front, but that is the sort of talk most current in informed spots in Washington.

"Hitler is a mystic," we are told. "He has had phenomenal success with his guesses as to what will work for Germany and what will not. He has consistently outguessed his generals. He has convinced a large part of the German population that he is infallible. Also he has convinced himself, and that makes him vulnerable."

That is a composite quotation from several sources. It represents what certain skilled observers believe to be the basis of French-British strategy. Constant pressure of the blockade, of propaganda among the German population, of fighting on "German soil" on the west front—these and other factors are looked upon as likely to press Hitler into some decision which may turn out badly. The "myth" of infallibility will be shattered. Then might come a reshaping of German policy and an early end of the war.

Right

The thing sounds almost too slick but there is a substantial tracery of fact running through it.

It is generally accepted that Hitler moved into the demilitarized Rhineland four years ago in violation of the advice of his army executives. They thought France would fight. They were wrong. Hitler was right.

The same thing happened in Austria. The generals were wrong again.

Nevile Henderson, British ambassador to Germany, states in his report of conversations with Hitler that even General Goering [illegible] was surprised and [illegible] at the sudden move last spring into the rest of Czecho-Slovakia. Goering and the generals were wrong. Nobody made a fight about it.

Hitler was right again, also, in the speedy success of the drive through Poland. Again, reports here indicate, some of his generals had been mistaken.

Keep It Up

Now informed sources have it that there is real conflict once more between Hitler and some of his generals as to whether a drive against France should be launched in event no peace comes at the end of the Polish conquest. Strategists here say England and France would like nothing better than for Germany to try a break-through Belgium.

If such a drive were successful even in the beginning it might give Italy and Russia the incentive they need to come in with Germany for the final kill. In that event Hitler would be right again and the generals all around would be wrong, both in Germany and in the camps of his enemies.

But if things went wrong on the western front, collapse of the myth of infallibility might bring a quick end to the war.

The whole thing is [illegible] but this is a [illegible]. Even though the troops [illegible] battle line, [illegible]."

Grant's Six-Cent Lawsuit Almost Cost Army Career

A JUDGMENT of six cents won by U. S. Grant might have ended the military career of the brilliant Civil War leader at the battle of Shiloh. And the decision on Grant's future in the Union Army rested with the man who had termed Grant an idle loafer.

It was on a winter night in 1850 that U. S. Grant, then a lieutenant in station at Detroit Barracks, Detroit, Mich., slipped and fell on an icy, paved sidewalk in front of Zachariah Chandler's home. The injury incapacitated Grant for several weeks.

Grant demanded that Chandler, a wealthy merchant, pay his doctor bills. Chandler refused. Grant sued.

Chandler conducted his own case. He was an important figure in Detroit's business and political circles and he argued brilliantly, placing the blame for the accident upon whiskey, which, he alleged, Grant had imbibed too freely. The jury awarded Grant six cents.

Years later Grant was accused of having ruthlessly sacrificed hundreds of lives at Shiloh, relieved of his command. Chandler, now senator, headed the powerful Congressional Committee for the Conduct of the War.

Grant was reinstated to his command. The records fail to show Chandler's action. Probably, being a sincere patriot, he had forgiven Grant, in view of the general's military success.

Grant and Chandler later became close friends, Chandler remaining one of his most loyal supporters during his presidential term.

Appearance Of Noted Author To Be Sponsored By Sales Executive Club

Dale Carnegie, noted author, will be in Monroe for a personal appearance on November 1 at the Neville High school, it has been announced by members of the Sales Executive club which is sponsoring the appearance of the author.

Final plans for the appearance of Carnegie will be made at a meeting of the Sales Executive club tomorrow at Hotel Frances.

Carnegie, author of "How to Win Friends and Influence People," is widely known and considered one of America's outstanding speakers.

The Sales Executive club, organized here on a non-profit basis to promote good will and civic interest, has scored a triumph in their success in scheduling Carnegie for an appearance here, despite difficulty and expense encountered.

Tickets will be on sale at all drug stores and the Chamber of Commerce following tomorrow's meeting of the club. A flat rate of 50 cents per person will be charged.

Churches, schools and civic organizations are cooperating in bringing the noted author here, it was stated, and the Neville auditorium is expected to experience one of its largest crowds. Arrangements are also being made to provide bus transportation for children from various schools of the city.

FIRE PREVENTION IS URGED BY GOV. LONG

A proclamation calling on the people of Louisiana to cooperate in the prevention of fire waste has been issued by Governor Earl K. Long in connection with National Fire Prevention week.

The proclamation follows:

"Whereas, fires in the United States during the past and previous years are responsible for an enormous toll of human life and direct loss of millions of dollars in property, as well as indirect loss due to disrupted business productivity, and

Whereas, the continued appalling losses of life and property and economic losses have caused great concern on the part of our people, who have in the past observed a week in each year known as Fire Prevention week, and

Whereas, the statistical results of the education campaigns conducted during the past Fire Prevention weeks in the United States and the state of Louisiana show an appreciable reduction in the fire waste, conducive to lower cost of fire insurance and improved economic conditions,

Now, therefore, I, Earl K. Long, governor of the state of Louisiana, do proclaim the week beginning October [illegible] Fire Prevention week in Louisiana and ask the active cooperation of all in the prevention of fire waste and the consequent resulting [illegible] benefit."

Proclamation

WHEREAS, in the United States each year fires take an enormous toll of human life and cause direct loss of millions of dollars in property, as well as indirect loss due to disrupted business productivity; and

WHEREAS, such fires can to a large extent be prevented by the exercise of proper care and the putting into effect of fire prevention measures by our citizens; and

WHEREAS, it is highly desirable that every citizen have a full understanding of his individual responsibility in the matter of fire prevention and the curtailment of the needless waste of lives and property;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Harvey H. Benoit, Mayor of the City of Monroe, do proclaim the week beginning October 9th, 1939, as FIRE PREVENTION WEEK in Monroe, and do heartily urge the cooperation of all in eliminating existing fire hazards and in the exercise of proper care, not only during Fire Prevention Week but throughout the year, so that the disastrous consequences of fire may be prevented as far as possible.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the Seal of the City of Monroe at the City Hall in the City of Monroe on this the 7th day of October, A. D., 1939.

How to Safeguard Electric Service In Your Home!

1. NEVER PLACE PENNIES BEHIND FUSES.
2. DO NOT PLACE CORDS IN DOOR JAMB. Squeezing like this breaks the protective covering.
3. CORDS SHOULD NEVER BE RUN OVER RADIATORS OR STEAM PIPES. Insist on approved cords made for use in damp places and where contact with metal is likely to occur.
4. NEVER LEAVE HEATING APPLIANCES CONNECTED WHEN NOT IN USE. Fire is too frequently caused this way.
5. DO NOT DISCONNECT APPLIANCES BY PULLING ON THE CORD. This loosens the connections and is a frequent cause of trouble.
6. CORDS SHOULD NEVER BE USED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR PERMANENT AND PROPERLY INSTALLED WIRING.
7. CORD SHOULD BE EXAMINED REGULARLY. Worn-out cords should be replaced immediately to prevent short circuits.
8. INSIST ON APPROVED LABELED CORD WITH APPLIANCES, LAMPS AND CORD ATTACHMENTS. They wear longer and are safe.
9. BE SURE TO HAVE ALL ELECTRICAL REPAIRS AND WIRING MADE BY A LICENSED ELECTRICAL CONTRACTOR.
10. HAVE ALL WIRING INSPECTED BY AN ELECTRICAL INSPECTOR. This is your assurance that the work is properly installed and will give better service under safe conditions.
11. NEVER RUN CORDS UNDER RUGS. They become worn too quickly.

Machinery And Water Tanks Of Battleship Arizona Reported Damaged

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 7.—(AP)—J. Edgar Hoover's federal bureau of investigation agents are looking into reported sabotage aboard the United States battleship Arizona. Its machinery and water tanks were rumored damaged during gunnery practice off southern California.

Hoover also said his department is keeping close watch on the steamship Iroquois, en route to New York with American war refugees, because a German official advised that the vessel would be sunk before it reached this country.

The head of the F. B. I. said that what happened aboard the Arizona was "one of those things I can't discuss." One rumor told of damage and another mentioned a "casualty."

Hoover did not say sabotage had been discovered but explained an investigation had been ordered to determine whether there had been any. The Arizona is flagship of Rear Admiral Russell Willson's battleship division one.

Discussing the Iroquois, Hoover said the German report had been given him at Washington and he thought there were good grounds for investigating.

"It is a matter on which we could not afford to take a chance."

The implication of the German message, as announced by the White house, was that the Iroquois would be sunk by Britain or France and the blame placed on Germany.

TWO HAIRLESS PIGS ATTRACT ATTENTION

WINNSBORO, La., Oct. 7.—(Special)—Hairless pigs are attracting quite a bit of attention down on the farm of J. F. Guimbellot southwest of here, and Farmer Guimbellot figures the work at "hog killing time" would be much easier if all porkers were hairless.

Six weeks ago seven little black and white pigs became new additions on the Guimbellot farm, but while five were normal in every respect, two of the little porkies were hairless. Farmers in the area have watched for signs of hair, but the hairless pigs are as devoid of foliage as ever.

FORMER BISHOP GIVEN SENTENCE

Hayward S. Ablewhite Must Serve One To Ten Years In Prison

MARQUETTE, Mich., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Within two hours after he was indicted for embezzlement of church funds, Hayward S. Ablewhite, 51-year-old former bishop of the Episcopal diocese of northern Michigan, was sentenced today to serve one to ten years in prison.

The former dignitary of the church appeared in court shortly after Circuit Judge Herman Dehnke, sitting as a one-man grand jury investigating shortages of diocesan funds estimated at more than $100,000, issued a warrant for his arrest.

Ablewhite has been living in Marquette for the past two weeks since he came from his home on the campus of Kenyon college at Gambier, O., to testify before the grand jury.

Through his counsel he waived preliminary examination and entered a plea of nolo contendere.

Informing the former bishop that this amounted to a plea of guilty, Judge Dehnke asked:

"Have you anything to say as to why sentence should not be passed at this time?"

"I don't think so, judge," Ablewhite replied weakly.

The court then sentenced him and specified confinement at the state branch prison at Marquette. Court attendants took him to the Marquette county jail to await removal to the prison.

The arrest warrant charged specifically that Ablewhite had embezzled $624 from the Pointe Aux Pins mission fund which was turned over to him when the mission, on Bois Blanc island in the Straits of Mackinac, was transferred from the Episcopal diocese of Michigan to the diocese of northern Michigan.

The court said the investigation had disclosed that the bishop had appropriated the money for his personal use.

Judge Dehnke said the grand jury probe "included many other items of much larger sums in addition to the mission fund," but declared that the technical solution was to impose sentence on one specific charge.

NORTH CAROLINA EKES OUT WIN OVER TECH

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Jim (Sweet) Lalanne, North Carolina's superb piece of football machinery, provided the punch today which gave the Tarheels a close 13-6 decision over a battling Virginia Tech team.

The Carolina quarterback took quick advantage of two scoring opportunities, counting from the three in the second period to climax a 38-yard drive, and adding another touchdown from the two in the next quarter after a quick spurt from the Tech 34. Harry Dunkle, soph back, made one of two placement tries.

Tech, after playing around in Carolina territory all afternoon, finally reached the pay-off stripe 40 seconds before the end of the game when Willard Henderson shot a 16-yard pass to Garrett Taylor. Dunkle in attempting to smack the ball down tipped it into Taylor's arms on the goal line. Phil Demuro's placement attempt went wide.

OREGON DOWNS STANFORD

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Oregon defeated Stanford, 10 to 0, in a Pacific Coast conference game today before 20,000 fans. Duplicating their feat of last Saturday against U. S. C., the Webfoots scored in the last minute of the first half on a long pass from Smith to Graybeal. In the last quarter Graybeal kicked a field goal from the 15-yard line after a penalty had shoved the Webfoots back from the three-yard marker.

DELTA TEACHERS BEAT LOUISIANA COLLEGE, 7 TO 0

ALEXANDRIA, La., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Delta Teachers of Cleveland, Miss., defeated the Louisiana College Wildcats tonight, 7 to 0, although the Wildcats outgained the visitors from scrimmage, 123 yards net to 6 for the Mississippians, and made eleven first downs to Delta's one.

Delta took advantage of a break in the first quarter when Captain Earl Thompson grabbed a fumble in the air, ran 40 yards with it and then tossed the ball to Earl Buckley who lugged it 17 more yards to the Cats' 3 where he was brought down by Don Poole.

Billy Ballard on four tries at the line scored the touchdown and Joe Thomas kicked the point.

The score was made with the Louisiana B team on the field after the Wildcats had made a first down on the Mississippi 9 yard line. An intercepted pass stopped this drive.

The Cats reached the Delta 18 with a minute to play but another pass interception on the goal line staved off the final threat.

Louisiana college made 101 yards in the air on 37 passes, completing 13. Four were intercepted. Delta picked up 16 yards on one pass out of three attempted.

OTTO LUDWIG AND DICK SAMPSON IN MAIN MAT EVENT

Yaqui Joe, Indian, Will Meet Frankie Hill In Semi-Final At Arena

Dick Sampson of Toledo, O., who surprised fans in his first appearance here last week by defeating the tough "Sailor" Moran, will be matched Tuesday night against Otto Ludwig of Germany in the main event at Gus Kallio's wrestling arena.

In the semi-final, Yaqui Joe, Sonora, Mexico, Indian, will meet Frankie Hill of Waxahatchie, Tex.

Kallio believes that with these grapplers he has again succeeded in lining up an attractive program for this week.

Ludwig, an exceedingly durable German, is an old hand at the grappling game and hard for any light heavyweight wrestler to beat. He is said to be much on the type of Carl von Bromberg, who is also from Germany and who has appeared in mat matches here more times than any other wrestler since Kallio has been promoting, because of the fact that he always puts forth plenty of wrestling and the fans are pleased with his showmanship and confidence. Kallio says he thinks Ludwig is fully the equal of Bromberg.

This will be the first time Ludwig has appeared before a Monroe crowd but he wrestled in Arcadia several times a few years ago and Kallio has had an opportunity to judge his ability. Doubtless some Monroe fans also saw him at that time as a number from Monroe formerly attended the Arcadia matches.

Both Yaqui Joe and Frankie Hill are well known here and both are well liked as each prefers the clean style and devotes his time to wrestling instead of cuffing the other fellow around. Yaqui Joe, whose legs are insured for $10,000, has demonstrated many times that they are his most powerful asset.

The cup to be awarded to the most popular wrestler again will be on display.

Promoter Kallio has announced that in the future wrestling matches will be held on Tuesday nights, instead of Thursday nights so as not to interfere with other sports events.

Auburn's great halfback Dick Mcowen was a hero in defeat. His nts kept Tulane frequently deep in own territory, and his passes and nning were a constant threat.

MIZE CAPTURES BATTING HONORS

St. Louis Slugger Finishes With Unofficial Average Of .349

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Unless the statisticians find, some time next winter, that they have been making a tremendous mistake, Johnny Mize of St. Louis is the 1939 batting champion of the National league.

The final semi-official batting records, released today, served only to confirm what had been known since the end of the season last Sunday—that Johnny finished with a .349 average for 152 games. There were only four players with higher marks, but the only one who came near a regular's rating was another Cardinal, Don Padgett. He had a .399 mark, but played in only 92 games and had only 233 official times at bat to 564 for Mize.

These figures won't be official, of course, until a final recheck is made, but that seldom, if ever, makes an important difference.

Second place among the regulars is shared by Frank (Buck) McCormick of Cincinnati, another first baseman, and the Cards' Joe Medwick, with .332 averages. Behind them come Paul Waner, Pittsburgh, .325; Morrie Arnovich, Philadelphia, and Ival Goodman, Cincinnati, .324, Enos Slaughter, St. Louis and Zeke Bonura, New York, .319, Harry Danning, New York, .314, and Hank Leiber, Chicago, and Buddy Hassett, Boston, .309.

The season's only hitting records were made June 6, when the Giants went on a home run spree against the Reds. They hit seven homers, five in one inning and three in a row. They totaled 15 extra bases in that inning. That made two new one-inning records, while the three straight equaled a record. They duplicated that and the seven-homer total against the Phillies August 13.

The highest pitching honors went to the pair mainly responsible for putting Cincinnati's Reds into the World Series. Paul Derringer, with 25 victories and 7 defeats for a .781 average, topped the league's pitchers for the second time. Bucky Walters pitched 319 innings, 31 complete games and 27 victories—all high marks for the season. Derringer also had the longest winning streak on the mound, 13 straight.

Other leaders included Bill Werber, Cincinnati, 115 runs; McCormick, 209 hits and 128 runs batted in; Hassett, 162 singles; Slaughter, 52 doubles; Billy Herman, Chicago, 18 triples; Mize, 28 home runs; Lee Handley, Pittsburgh, 18 stolen bases; Claude Passeau, Philadelphia and Chicago, 137 strikeouts.

OKLAHOMA WINS FROM WILDCATS

Sooners Trim Favored Northwestern Eleven, 23 To 0, In Upset

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Oklahoma's Sooners, the boss team of the Big Six conference last year, did everything right today to fashion a staggering 23 to 0 upset triumph over Northwestern, in spite of some brilliant operations by Bill Decorrevont.

The biggest opening day turnout in Northwestern's gridiron history, numbering 45,000 spectators, saw the game.

Decorrevont went into action late in the first period and lost 13 yards on two plays, but he came back late in the third period to return a kickoff 40 yards, race 13 yards around an end, and give a dazzling exhibition of footwork in slipping through the right side of the Oklahoma line for a 28 yard gain. A fumble nullified his gains.

Oklahoma scored its first touchdown in the first period when Ollie Hahnenstein, Wildcat back, fumbled as he attempted to kick. John Shirk, Sooner end, recovered on the Wildcat six and after Jack Jacobs, the Sooners' Indian halfback, took it to the one, Fullback Bob Seymour rammed it over.

Beryl Clark led another advance a few minutes later and when Northwestern braced on its 15 Quarterback Dick Favor kicked a 24 yard field goal from placement.

Hahnenstein's second fumble on his own four yard line in the third period, led to the second touchdown. Clifton Speegle, Oklahoma's clever junior center, recovered and Seymour crashed over again. The final touchdown came as Northwestern staged a desperate aerial attack in the last session. The heaves had been clicking but John Martin snatched a toss from Chambers and skipped 53 yards across the goal line.

MISSISSIPPI STATE TRIMS FLORIDA, 14-0

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Mississippi State's up-and-coming football team jumped into the Southeastern conference championship race here tonight with a 14 to 0 decision over Florida.

A pair of fast-moving State backs—Jack Nix and Frank Chambers—gave the visitors the edge over an aroused 'Gator eleven which stayed in the fight all the way.

The 12,000 spectators were kept on edge throughout by long runs, fumbles and intercepted passes.

State—conquerors of Howard and Arkansas—pushed over its first touchdown in the second period, cashing in on a pass from Billy Jefferson to Nix. The play was good for 30 yards. Nix sent his place-kick squarely between the uprights.

Scoring stopped then until the final period, when Toxie Tullos went over from the one-yard line to end a 52-yard march started in the third period by the reserve backfield.

The point was place-kicked by Chambers.

Sanford's Kick Is Margin; Tide Outplays New York Eleven

By Bill Boni

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Hayward (Sandy) Sanford, who specializes in making good on vital place-kicks, came through as advertised this afternoon to boot Alabama's big red elephants into a 7-6 victory over what had been rated a highly-promising Fordham football team.

While Sanford lived up to his promise in adding the extra point to Sophomore Jimmy Nelson's first-period touchdown, Fordham fell far short of the mark it was expected to reach.

In full view of 41,454 customers at the Polo Grounds, the Rams showed a passing attack as antiquated as the Wright brothers' flying machine. They connected for one aerial that gained 28 yards in midfield but they threw 11 others that were far wide of their receivers.

Alabama, on the other hand, moving impressively along the ground, tried only four passes, completed two, and used only one on the way to its touchdown.

This came in the early minutes of the first quarter. Checked after moving 25 yards from the opening kickoff, the Tide came right back from an exchange of punts to go 40 yards for its score. The biggest gain and the scoring one was Nelson's 18-yard sprint around Fordham's right end. Charley Boswell first faked the ball to Fullback John Hanson, then fed it to the speedster.

As Nelson cut across the goal line, Sanford already was off the bench and on his way into the ball game. He stepped into position and kicked a placement.

From then until the final quarter, when it capitalized on a blocked quick kick to go 17 yards for its score, Fordham made only two threats. One fizzled out in the air in the first quarter, after a neat three-man punt return had covered 61 yards and given the Rams first down on Alabama's 19, and the other was stopped by an end zone pass interception after Fordham had recovered a 'Bama fumble on the southerners' 21-yard line.

That interception, by Herky Mosley, gave Alabama the ball on its 20. Held by the Ram line, the Tide tried a quick kick. Fordham Tackle Joe Ungerer broke through to block it and Fordham Guard Tom Bennett recovered the ball. In five plays the Rams went over, with Dominick Principe, regular fullback who was hurt in the first quarter, bucking through from the two-foot line. Alex Yudikaitis missed the try for extra point.

Otherwise, the game was all Alabama, which made nine first downs to the Rams' four, outrushed Fordham 152 yards to 79, and was helped enormously by the fine punting of Mosley and Boswell.

OLE MISS WALLOPS SOUTHWESTERN, 41-0

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Ole Miss uncorked a brilliant running and aerial attack here today to drub Southwestern 41-0 before about 12,000 spectators.

The Rebels, using three teams and sparked by fleet Jimmy Tillman and Les Dodson, swept through the Southwestern forward wall almost at will, scoring in each quarter.

With Dodson spearheading the offense, Ole Miss moved to the Southwestern 10-yard line early in the first quarter. Chick Gladding, 195-pound wingman from West Chicago, Ill., took the ball on a end-around play and dashed across the Southwestern goal line for the first score. Erm Smith's placement was good.

Rebel kickers kept the Lynx in hot water most of the afternoon, booting out of bounds several times near the Southwestern five-yard stripe.

Southwestern moved into Mississippi territory for the first time in the final period when little Icky Orenstein took the kickoff and raced to the 48. Jack Conn skirted right end for 21 yards, then moved to Mississippi's 9 on a pass from Orenstein. The Lynx attack bogged down when Smith intercepted a pass and returned the ball to his own 44.

Western Kentucky Team Trounces Techmen, 20-7

Louisiana Bulldogs Drop Lopsided Decision In Final Period

BOWLING GREEN, Ky., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Opening a powerful running attack in the final period, Western Kentucky Teachers scored twice to break a 7-all deadlock and take a 20-7 decision from Louisiana Tech of Ruston before 4,500 homecoming fans today.

Both teams repulsed opposition threats in a sluggish first half. A "break" aided Western in starting scoring fireworks in the third period.

After recovering a Western punt that struck a Louisiana player on the 26 yard line, the Hilltoppers made a touchdown on a 20-yard dash by Red Oliver and an end run over the goal line by Vernon Dulaney. Tom Zoretic kicked the extra point.

Tech capitalized on a break to tie the score 7-all in the fourth period. The Louisianians recovered a Western fumble on the Hilltopper five, and W. H. Hinkle carried the ball over on fourth down. Fred Michael's kick was good.

Western went back into the lead when Zoretic ripped off 28 yards for a touchdown, and John Magda gave the locals their final counter on a five-yard end run after he had set the stage with a 25-yard dash.

Western made 14 first downs, Louisiana Tech three.

Blue Devils Show Surprising Power In Walloping New Yorkers

DURHAM, N. C., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Duke university's Blue Devils showed versatility and deception today to surprise a crowd of 18,000 with a 37-to-0 football victory over Colgate.

George McAfee and his brother, Wes, and Frank Killian, sub for George, led the offensive play and either scored or helped set up a field goal and four touchdowns.

Duke had to be content with a field goal in the first quarter, booted from placement at the 12-yard line by Tony Ruffa after George McAfee had run 30 to Colgate's eight.

In the next period George passed to Bill Bailey for 26 to Colgate's eight and Steve Lach crashed the line three times, scoring on a half-yard smash at guard.

After the half Wesley McAfee passed to his brother for 39 and a touchdown, and a 34-yard flip by Wes McAfee to Roger Robinson, set Robinson up to hit right tackle for a yard and touchdown.

Killian broke away on a very deceptive Duke reverse to run 57 yards to score in the last quarter. Earlier he had returned a punt 38 yards to Colgate's 11. Duke couldn't crack the Red Raider line and Ruffa missed a try for field goal from the 14. George McAfee held the ball for Ruffa's goal and his miss.

Duke's other tally came when Carl Deane of the Devils spotted a sleeping end of Colgate's in the last minute of play, raced across the field in the nick of time, intercepted the pass and raced 30 yards to score untouched.

NEVILLE TO PLAY FARMERVILLE '11'

Tigers Meet Farmers For First Time Since 1932 In Class A Tilt

The Farmerville High school Farmers, returning to the Neville High school football schedule for the first time since 1932, will tangle with Coach Percy Brown's Bengals here next Thursday night at 8 o'clock at Brown field.

It will be a Class A conference battle, the second of the season for the Tigers who scored their initial conference victory over Mangham's Dragons here last Thursday night, 45 to 7.

Neville started the season with an inexperienced eleven that lost two games, each by three touchdowns, to non-conference foes, but they worked smoothly against an even more inexperienced Mangham team the past week and should have almost as good success against the Farmers. The Farmers, however, held the strong Jonesboro-Hodge aggregation to a 20-to-0 victory recently.

The Tigers, with good blocking, should not have to worry about ball carrying with R. C. Rivers and Guy Miller on the job. Neville should be able to polish off the Farmers and do likewise with the Winnsboro Wildcats here on October 19. The hardest conference battle for the locals is expected to be the Ruston game on October 26, and if Neville can get past that club they can almost be assured of a place in the Class A playoffs.

The only casualty of the Mangham game was the injury of Gus Petterson, tackle, who suffered a dislocated shoulder. Petterson will get light workouts the early part of this week, and it is probable that he will be able to play some in the Farmerville game.

MICHIGAN WINS, 26-13

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Fighting off a furious last-half assault, Michigan's powerhouse conquered Michigan State, 26 to 13, today to open the 1939 campaign. A howling throng of 68,618 alternately gasped and cheered as the Wolverines, apparently on their way to a smashing victory with a 26-0 lead at half time, had to fight every inch of the way to win.

OUACHITA MEETS VIVIAN ELEVEN

Parish Lions Seek First Victory Of Season Friday Night

The Ouachita Parish High school Lions go into action here again Friday night, when they face the Vivian High school Warriors at Brown field at 8 o'clock. The Lions experienced an open date the past week.

The Warriors, who were rated as a Class AA team last year, are campaigning in the Class A division this year, and as a result, win or lose, the game will not affect Ouachita's double A chances.

Vivian hasn't been experiencing such a good season this year, having already lost to Bossier City and Oil City, but the Lions also are seeking their initial victory of the season and a good game may be in store.

Coach "Lefty" Haynes has indicated that there may be quite a few changes in his Lion lineup this week.

Bruce Gregg, quarterback, will probably be moved to a halfback post, Coach Haynes said, and either Herbert Pace or H. B. Kimball will take over the duties in Gregg's old position. Clayton Brown will remain in the backfield but "Cotton" Hall, who looked like such a promising piece of material last year, has dropped below expectations and will be dropped from the first team.

Changes in the forward wall have also been promised. "Sonny" Foreman and Sam McInnis, second stringers, played such a good game with the Lion "B" team this week against the Dubach Plungers that Coach Haynes has about decided to work one or the other of them into Howard Griffith's place at right tackle. Griffith is not expected to leave the lineup, however. He was a regular guard last year and it is probable that he will oust either Bill Haynes or Bill Edgar for a guard job.

One of the fastest developing performers in the Lion lineup has been Bill Eason, center, who plays tackle on the defense. Eason didn't look so good at the beginning of the season but he has progressed at such a rate that he is now one of the best in the forward wall.

Coach Haynes said his charges would open up with everything they had against Vivian and even try some "razzle-dazzle" by way of preparation for Haynesville on October 27.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

CINCINNATI, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Scooparade: Frankie Frisch and Bill Terry are backing [illegible] Give Frank Leahy and his Boston college gridders till November 1, then hold fast to everything. . . . Cincinnati papers now say they're beginning to believe some of the things they read about the Yanks.

One of them just the same says the Reds haven't got a chance. . . . What's this about Dr. Ray Sermon going out as athletic director at North Carolina State? . . . One of the series specials they ran out here was called the "Stan Bordagaray Limited."

Greek bearing gifts?

Clarence Rowland, chief Cub scout, says Bill Terry drafted Paul Dean on the recommendation of the astute Branch Rickey. . . . Ain't he the same astute Branch Rickey who recommended brother Dizzy to the Cubs (for $185,000)?

Today's laff! Ned Irish, the demon press agent trying to sell Pittsburgh the idea that the football Giants fear the Pirates in tomorrow's tussle. . . . Mayor LaGuardia came west to help root the Yanks in. . . . So did Dorothy Arnold, Joe DiMaggio's sugar.

And she didn't like it much when a Cincinnati doll dragged Joseph out in front of the hotel for a candid camera shot. . . . Ohio State, which is figuring to take Cornell in stride, should get wise to itself in a hurry. . . . The Reds and Indianapolis Indians of the American association have signed a new working agreement for 1940.

Today's guest star.

Joe Cashman, Boston American: "The Florida Grapefruit league did all right this year. . . . It turned out the one, two, three clubs in the National league and the winner and runner-up in the American."

Frank Winchell, famed Florida hotel man, known to every ball player and newspaper man who goes south each spring, married Miss Janie Case of Cleveland here last night. . . . Paul Derringer was best man. . . . They planned to wed in New York but the 72-hour law would have stymied them for today's series game. . . . The Rev. Harold J. Martin, president of the Canadian-American league, is rated one of the finest baseball executives in the country. . . . Some of the game's higherups are worrying about reports that Father Martin's bishop

[illegible]

Thompson was retired at the plate on Lonnie Frey's grounder, but Ival Goodman made up for it with a base hit down the right field line scoring Werber and ending the Reds' run-making for the afternoon.

Altogether, Goodman was the Reds' hitting hero for the day, with three singles, two of them figuring in the Cincinnati scoring.

By the end of the second, Hadley had hit his stride, and for the last seven innings he gave up only three hits. In that stretch only two of the Rhinelanders reached third base, one of them, oddly enough, on Hadley's wild throw of Lombardi's grounder in the seventh for the first error of the series by either club.

The victory was Hadley's second in World Series competition. He won a game for the Yanks against the Giants in 1936, and two years ago was on the losing end, although going only an inning and a third.

With three straight decisions already locked up in his safe, Manager Joe McCarthy decided to give another of his "second string" hurling corps a chance in tomorrow's fourth game, so he will trot out Oral Hildebrand, 22-year-old right-hander who was rescued from the lowly St. Louis Browns last year.

Manager Bill McKechnie of the downcast National leaguers will shoot with Paul Derringer, his tall, right-hander who hurled a brilliant game in dropping a 2-1 decision in the first tilt of the series.

With his fearful flailing today, young Keller established himself alongside of Babe Dahlgren, the Yanks' "weak sister" hitting first baseman, as the surprise batting stars of the series. Dahlgren hit for eight bases in the first two games, but was unable to connect today. Keller had preceded his two homers today with a three-bagger that started the winning rally in the opening clash.

By his double four-bagger job, this Ex-University of Maryland student, a short, dark, hairy-armed slugger, went into the record books at the first crack out of the box. Although Babe Ruth holds the all-time high mark, with three round-trippers on one afternoon—against the Cardinals in 1926—Keller today became one of seven men to hit two in a game in all World Series history.

In addition, the four runs he drove in—two with each of his power drives—came within one of the record for that particular assignment.

Although the whipping was tougher to take than the others, the Reds were a different ball club today before the home folks, who packed this park, even to sitting in the aisles, for the return of their favorite sons. Dejected and listless before Pearson's

After a scoreless first half the Texas Longhorns smashed through the jittery Badgers for a pair of touchdowns and a safety in the third period to take a 15 to 0 lead. They added two points on another safety in the final quarter. Wisconsin scored three minutes before the game ended.

Eakin shot a pass to Sophomore O. N. Adams [illegible] on an end around.

Jack Odle's return kick in the first quarter was walted out of bounds on the T. C. U. 27. Southerland picked up one pass for a first down at the 17 and Adams grabbed the ball from Eakin on an end around and outsprinted the Christian secondary across the goal line. Simington converted.

The Christians scored on a beautiful pass play in the second quarter, Odle letting one fly for 25 yards down the middle that Durwood Horner picked up on the dead run and carried 25 more, unmolested, across the line.

Halfback Earle Clarke's conversion wobbled crazily but barely scraped over the bar for the extra point.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Leaders backed away in the stock market today, dropping fractions to around two points or more.

After a fairly fast opening dealings lagged. Transfers approximated 600,000 shares.

Most traders, it was asserted, refrained from taking positions pending official declarations by the French and British governments on Reichsfuehrer Hitler's peace proposals.

In the meantime the "war infant" shares were more or less neglected although most of the day's activity centered on the steels, and these, along with the chemicals, took the worst falls.

The Amsterdam bourse, only important market open in Europe, was irregular.

Off in the curb were Aluminum Ltd. preferred, Bell Aircraft, Colt Firearms and Niles-Bement-Pond.

In the course of the morning Wall Street was informed the British purchasing mission now in Canada would visit the United States after the close of the debate on the neutrality bill.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Wheat prices tumbled about a cent a bushel at the opening today, wiping away what was left of the extreme advance registered yesterday after the Hitler speech.

Lower securities prices and a forecast of scattered showers for most of the grain belt caused selling here.

Opening 1-4 to 1 cent lower, December 82 3-8 to 82, May 82 1-2 to 82, wheat later held near this range. Corn started 3-8 to 5-8 down, December 49 3-4 to 5-8, May 52 3-8 to 1-4.

Although rallying slightly from the season's lows, wheat closed 1 5-8 to 1 7-8 lower than yesterday, December 81 1-8 to 1-4, May 81 to 81 1-8; corn 1 1-8 to 1 1-2 down, December 48 3-4, May 51 1-2 to 5-8, oats 5-8 to 1 lower.

Parole Report Criticizes System Used In Louisiana

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 7.—(Special) Sharp criticism of the parole system of Louisiana for its "serious inadequacies" is contained in a recently published book entitled "Parole With Honor," written by Wilbur La Roe, Jr., a member of the board of parole of the District of Columbia.

The author, an advocate of independent and expert boards of parole, says in the book that [illegible] board members on a part-time basis is not desirable. The highest ranking states in the field of parole administration are, according to La Roe, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Wisconsin, Minnesota, California and North Carolina. Michigan and Georgia are also given high ratings. At the bottom of the list are Virginia, Florida and Mississippi, which have no parole laws. The author is extremely critical of [illegible] parole as it exists in Montana, Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Alabama and other states.

According to the author, the parole system offers the most modern and intelligent method of releasing prisoners [illegible] He says that society is best protected and the prisoner [illegible] a home and job. [illegible] to obey the law in the future.

The author characterizes the sentencing of prisoners by judges as "largely guess work" and "based on hunches." He strongly favors general adoption of the indeterminate sentence procedure under which a prisoner is released when, and only when, an adequate parole plan is ready for him and he is ready for it.

CORN-TOP BREAD IS REINTRODUCED HERE

To add to the enjoyment of the present generation, City bakery, 320 North Fourth street, maker of Mel-O-Toast bread, has reintroduced a loaf of bread for which it was famous some 35 or 40 years ago.

Because it is made and baked in conformity with a formula that has been in the McCarthy family for 150 years, the proprietors of the bakery, Lawrence and J[illegible] McCarthy, have named it Mrs. McCarthy's old-fashioned corn-top loaf. They decided to reinstate the bread because of the insistent demand of older residents of Monroe and West Monroe.

Before production of the loaf was launched Friday, the bakery went to considerable trouble to obtain baking pans exactly the size and shape of those used when the bread was in such demand a couple of generations ago. The loaf gets the name corn-to[illegible] from the fact that it is baked with [illegible] coating of corn meal on the top.

The crust of the bread is thick but tender and the texture is open and light. Rich honey, instead of sugar, is the sweetening used in the loaf.

The loaf is now available at groceries and food stores throughout Monroe and its trade territory.

Miss Bradley And Oren Atkins Wed

Sincere interest is centered in the announcement of the marriage of Miss A[illegible] Juanita Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Bradley, Coleman avenue, West Monroe, and Mr. Oren Atkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Atkins of Jonesboro, which was impressively solemnized on Saturday, September [illegible] in Bastrop with Rev. H. M. Bennett, pastor of the Baptist church, performing the ceremony in the presence of a few relatives and friends at the pastorium.

The bride was exceptionally lovely in an advanced fall model of dewberry crepe with accessories of the same shade. A shoulder knot of white carnations completed the ensemble.

Mrs. D. Warrington, cousin of the bride, was her attendant, and wore a becoming black tailleur.

Mrs. Atkins was graduated from Ouachita Parish High school and Monroe Commercial school. Mr. Atkins is a graduate of Jonesboro High school and Ruston Tech.

The young couple are now at home to their friends on Pine street.

Mrs. R. H. Frost Guest Of Honor

Among the crowded hours of last week was the charming interlude in the home of Mrs. G. B. Cooley, who introduced Mrs. R. H. Frost to the wives of prominent Monroe physicians.

The Cooley home, ideally suited to entertaining, was adorned with pink and blue asters overflowing from floor urns against a background of palms and southern smilax.

Mrs. Cooley in blue lace semi-evening gown and Mrs. Frost in black chiffon embroidered in white coin dots, stood in the vestible to receive the guests.

Courtesies were extended by Mrs. William Rodriguez, Mrs. Nelson Abell, Mrs. Julius Kugler, Mrs. DeWitt Milam, Mrs. A. G. McHenry and Mrs. C. P. Gray, Sr.

Katherine Kugler and Nan Drew, lovely young members of the younger set, assisted Mrs. Cooley in serving small sandwiches, pastries and other confections in the palm-banked dining room. Frosted frappe and coffee was also served.

Current Literature Club Holds Meeting

Mrs. R. L. Conway, Jr., was hostess to the Current Literature club members and their guests when they met at her home Wednesday afternoon.

The club was privileged to have Miss Sue Hefley, a gifted speaker, address them on the subject of Personality. It was a most refreshing talk on her conception of personality and delighted her audience.

Constructively given to the club by Mrs. G. D. Holland was "My Memoir" by Edith Bolling Wilson (Mrs. Woodrow Wilson). This book is the only autobiography written by the wife of a president. She does not write, Mrs. Holland stated, with the idea of revealing official secrets, instead it reveals the character of President Wilson and gives descriptions of social life in the White House.

Mr. Wilson, who is presented by the person who knew him best, was described as being warm-hearted, affectionate and playful. He was loyal, devoted, tender and generous. He depended upon Mrs. Wilson emotionally and intellectually. He shared with her his political problems, read to her his state papers and relied upon her advice.

The introduction of the book is over-sentimental. Over one-half is devoted to post-war years, the peace conference, the league campaign and the long illness.

Members who enjoyed Mrs. Conway's courtesies were Mesdames V. S. Garnett, G. M. Heidenreich, G. D. Holland, Mike John, Jr., R. G. John, Philip Benedict, William Whitfield. Guests were Miss Sue Hefley and Mrs. J. L. Ivy.

Miss Sandifer Weds Robert L. Moore

Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] S. Hester announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Alice Virginia, to Mr. Onar Graves Perry.

They take this means of inviting their friends to the wedding.

Review Club Holds Meeting

The Review club met in the home of Mrs. Henry Colbert on Monday afternoon. After a business session, presided over by Mrs. C. B. Braun, president, the afternoon's program was presented.

The topic of discussion was "Renovating Human Environment," and included a resume of Lewis Mumford's "The Culture of Cities." In presenting this book, Mrs. Henry Colbert and Mrs. D. M. Moore told of the author's criticism of the modern city life, his questioning of the validity of the city, his analysis of the manifold problems which confront a typical city, and his plan for abolishing the hideousness and human waste of metropolitan giants.

Members present were Mesdames C. B. Braun, Walter Rhodes, A. R. Holloway, C. V. McGargey, D. M. Moore, W. T. Davis, Reese Major, Sr., B. W. Leigh, Ben Bicard, W. J. Veazey, Fred Fudickar, E. P. Cudd, Roy Hale, Henry Colbert, C. A. Nenney and Dr. W. H. Henry.

Business And Professional Women's Clubs Will Observe Century Of Prog

Monroe Group Will Hold Own Program

Several Interesting Events Planned During Present Week As Part Of Local Observance

One hundred years of progress will be observed by Business and Professional Women's clubs in every section of this country during the coming week.

In Monroe elaborate plans have been made for the local club's participation. Today the week's program will be inaugurated with a boating party on board the "Weto." Later in the evening the entire aggregation will motor to the home of Mrs. R. N. Slator where they will listen to the radio address delivered by the national president, Dr. Minnie L. Maffett of Dallas, Tex.

Dr. Maffett insists that women must be alert to the daily need of free speech, freedom of religion, and all the other important factors of democracy. Dr Maffett's speech will be broadcast over the Columbia network, station WABC, at 6 o'clock, central standard time.

On Monday there will be a radio address by the local president, Bernice Wright, at 5:30 o'clock. She will talk on the subject of "100 Years of Women's Progress" and problems confronting the local community.

On Tuesday a radio address by Miss Sue Hefley, dramatics teacher at Northeast Junior college, will be heard at 5:30 o'clock. Her theme will be "Pioneer Women of Yesterday."

Wednesday's radio address will be presented by Miss Kate Perkins of the Ouachita Parish school faculty, at 5:30 o'clock. Her theme will be "Pioneer Women of Today." All of these addresses will be most interesting and instructive.

The highlight of the week's social activities will be the banquet at the Virginia hotel Thursday night at 8 o'clock with Mrs. Dorothy Lomax Lyon of Ruston the principal speaker. She has selected "Louisiana Business and Professional Women" as her subject. This was the subject of her thesis when she received her M. A. degree from Louisiana Tech this past year.

The club is particularly interested in this address, as Mrs. Lyon was awarded a scholarship by the Louisiana Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs to pursue graduate work and write this thesis. She was born in Ruston, received her elementary and secondary education at the teacher training school of Louisiana Polytechnic institute, graduating from that college with an A. B. degree in 1932.

She served for two years as a high school teacher in Franklin parish, resigning in 1934 to enter L. S. U. as a graduate student.

Mrs. Lyon was a member of the editorial staff of the Ruston Daily Leader at the time she received the scholarship award. She enrolled at L. S. U. in September, 1938, as a graduate student in the school of government and public affairs, and in the summer of 1939 completed the requirements for the master of arts degree.

Mrs. Lyon is a member of the Ruston Business and Professional Women's club. She is also a member of Pi Sigma Alpha, national honorary government fraternity, the American Political Science association, Sigma Tau Delta, national professional English fraternity, and Kappa Delta, national social sorority.

The Monroe club feels honored and privileged to have Mrs. Lyon as guest speaker on this occasion.

On Friday the club will go in a body to the Jewish synagogue, where Rabbi Hirsch will deliver an address fitting for this occasion. The club members are looking forward to this event, as it is always a pleasure to hear Rabbi Hirsch deliver one of his stirring addresses.

The local stores will cooperate this week with displays featuring clothes for the business woman, both of "yesterday" and "today," together with posters depicting the "woman of yesterday" and the "woman of today."

Mayor H. H. Benoit, who is deeply interested in the programs, on behalf of the city of Monroe, submitted the following open letter addressed to Miss Bernice Wright, president of the Business and Professional Women's club:

"Dear Miss Wright: It would seem to me that rarely in the past has national business women's week held as much significance as it does this year. The past century has seen American women step out more and more into the economic and social realms of life. As our nation evolved from a primarily agricultural country into one with a highly industrialized, economic system, women have moved into new roles in business and in the professions.

"Very few of the 25,000 occupations now listed in the United States census statistics do not have some women engaged in some of them. I have been informed that the 1930 census even discovered a woman railroad engineer. Through their imaginations and their skill, women have thus made many major contributions to our economic life.

"It would seem that as you mark 'One Hundred Years of Women's Progress' you might well give thought to increasing obligations and responsibilities placed upon women outside of business life. In the realm of political thinking, for instance, they can play a progressive and liberal role so that we can continue the progress made along many lines.

"As mayor of the city and in behalf of the municipality, I extend the heartiest greetings and good wishes to you all as you round out another important milestone of progress."

Life at the "Y" has taken on a colorful note since she has taken over the reins of leadership.

Monroe Literary Club Holds Meeting

The Monroe Literary club met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. A. B. Colmer at her home on Pine street.

The president, Mrs. R. L. Ross, presided over the business session and introduced the officers as follows: Mrs. P. F. Massey, vice-president; Mrs. A. M. Allbritton, secretary; Mrs. D. N. Barron, treasurer; Mrs. A. B. Colmer, reporter; Mrs. Carl Couch, parliamentarian.

Leaders of various committees were called upon for brief reports. Plans were formulated for the customary programs, which give outstanding significance during the year.

The guest speaker, Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, Fifth district federation president of the L. F. W. C., who was introduced by Mrs. A. B. Colmer, praised members of the Monroe Literary club on their selection of "These United States" for the subject of this year's study.

Mrs. Tisdale has worked among literary minded women for four years, inspiring them toward a higher standard of living, and is thoroughly acquainted with the subject of club work. She said in part:

"The value of federation to an individual and what a club woman has done for the community is the history of America today. The general federation is a keystone in bettering health conditions, public welfare and have a great deal to do with forming laws that not only help women but others as well, and that adult education is responsible for 80 per cent of all libraries."

Mrs. Tisdale told of the first anniversary of the club women which was held in New York City in 1889 with 67 clubs participating.

Calhoun Study Club Holds Meeting

Heath, Jr., explained the provisions of and opinions concerning the neutrality act. The members argued these happenings pro and con in a general round table discussion.

Mrs. Hausherr Discusses Pottery

Members of the Monroe Art association feel that they are greatly benefitted by the splendid talks various members contribute to the semi-monthly meetings.

Especially interesting was Mrs. M. R. Hausherr's talk on "Pottery" at the last meeting. She said in part:

"The making of pottery is oldest of the arts known to man. In fact, when prehistoric man learned to mold crude vessels of clay and bake them hard in the fire he put savagery behind him and rose one long step in the slow advance to civilization. It was not until the historic age, however, that there is evidence that the potter's wheel was used alike by Mexicans, Peruvians, Egyptians, Greeks, Assyrians, Romans, Gauls, and Teutons. Much of our knowledge of the ancient people has come down to us through their clay work that has been preserved.

"After the barbarian invasion the fine arts died in Rome and Greece. The ceramic work that was done in the Middle Ages was very crude, except that of the Moors in Spain. In the rebirth of pottery, Italy led. Among the most beautiful Italian wares was Majolica, a decorated enameled pottery. It is one of the most beautifully decorated potteries that was ever extensively made during the Christian era.

"It was learned long ago that if clay is baked at a sufficiently high temperature it becomes almost as hard as rock, and men soon learned to mold the bake pottery to hold their food and drink. From primitive uses have developed many others, and today clay plays a big part in modern life. All our pottery, from the heaviest mixing bowls in the kitchen to the most fragile and delicate porcelain tea service, is made of clay. Everybody knows you can make mud pies and roll marbles out of clay. But how often do we think of the wide range of manufactured articles for which we have reason to be grateful to this dust of Mother Earth?

"Our schools are giving great prominence to the study of pottery and its value—likewise women's clubs are devoting a great deal of time and study to the delightful study of art pottery. Pottery is no longer a cherished luxury for the wealthy few. It is considered a cultural necessity for the many—for those even of moderate means.

"In Colorado Springs, the mecca for all cultured travelers, there is no more sought-out spot than the home of the world-famous Van Briggle pottery. Throughout the season, the rooms of the pottery fairly buzz with the throngs of people who have, like Jeremiah of old, come down 'to the potter's house.' And after all these years, people today are just as amazed as was Jeremiah when he exclaimed 'and behold he (the potter) was making a work on the wheels.'"

Miss Ellen Kent Millsaps and brother Fred Millsaps, Jr., and Percy Sandel returned home last week from a two weeks' motor trip in the east. While attending the world's fair in New York City they were the guests of Mrs. Fitzpatrick, formerly Miss Adelia Sandel of this city.

Friends will regret to learn of the illness of Mrs. J. A. Perry of Perryville, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. E. McKenzie, on St. John street.

Helen Lingle Weds Duane Warrington

Friends will learn with interest of the marriage of Miss Helen Lingle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Lingle, and Mr. Duane Warrington, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Warrington, on September 8, at the home of Rev. L. T. Hastings with only relatives and intimate friends attending.

CHURCHES

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
St. John And Grammont Streets
L. T. Hastings, Pastor
D. C. Black, Pastor's Associate

All departments and classes of the Sunday school will meet at the usual time and in their usual places, but the worship services will be held in the church auditorium. Additional seats have been placed, new carpet laid in the aisles and on the speaker's platform and other touches given to it that will make it more like a place of worship than the place in which we have been meeting for some time. The only question is will we be able to seat the crowds? We will do our best. Mr. E. H. Murrell will have extra ushers to facilitate the seating and look after the comfort of the congregation. At the close of the morning service the Lord's Supper will be observed, and the ordinance of baptism will be administered at the close of the evening service. The Baptist Training Union and Brotherhoods will meet at 6:15 in their usual places and the evening worship begins at 7:30. Hear the pastor both hours Sunday.

The Adult union is doing great things under the leadership of its new president, K. A. Calhoun. A fine social was had last week, and surely great good is coming to the church through this training union.

The church will ordain two new deacons, J. R. Freeman, 702 South Third street, and W. M. Cummings, 311 Holly street, Wednesday at 7:15 p.m. We expect to have a great service at this time and will invite an ordaining council to be with us at that time.

"The Son of God goes forth to war
A kingly crown to gain;

Who follows in His train?
Who best can drink his cup of woe,
Triumphant over pain,
Who patiently bears his cross below
He follows in His train."

The STORY OF Sam Jones

FATHER AND SON: Sam Jones with his baby son, Robert, age 4 months.

FAMILY GROUP: Mr. and Mrs. Jones in their Lake Charles home with their daughter, Carolyn Jelks Jones, baby Robert Gambrell Jones, and Mr. Jones' step-sons, Jimmy Boyer, 10 (left), and Billy Boyer, 8.

THE CAMPAIGNER: ". . . we must return old fashioned, piney woods honesty to the State government at Baton Rouge . . ."

Calcasieu Candidate For Governor Worked Way While at L.S.U.

Born in Log Cabin, Lake Charles Attorney Served in World War, Spent Nine Months as Prosecutor, Was Head of Louisiana American Legion; Is Known as Able, Courageous Citizen-Leader

By DON EWING

THE STORY OF SAM JONES of Lake Charles, candidate for governor, is as simple from birth to manhood as the name itself.

Birth came in a two-room cabin—actually one main room and a lean-to—on a piney-woods farm in Beauregard parish, near Merryville, which his ancestors settled 90 years ago. He went to the DeRidder public schools—grade and high—stood well in his classes, won debating medals in winters and worked on the farm in summers. He waited on tables at Louisiana State university to pay his way there for a little less than two years, quitting to enter the army in the World War. His youth ended with 17 months in service at Camp Beauregard and he returned to civilian life just after he reached the age of manhood—21.

Everybody knows him simply as Sam Jones, but the story of his life after manhood began is best typified by his full name—Sam Houston Jones—for it is a fighting name and his career has been a fighting career.

"As I look back," his younger sister, Phoebe Jones, said a few days ago in DeRidder, where she now lives, "Sam was always doing one of two things as a boy: fighting with someone or reading a book."

He has kept on doing both. He educated himself and he keeps on pursuing his education now. He studied law day and night without benefit of college after the war ended and was admitted to the bar in 1922. While studying law he worked in the office of his father, court clerk at DeRidder at the time, but now dead, and later he served an unexpired term as city judge there. He practiced law in DeRidder and then for nine years he was assistant prosecutor at Lake Charles for a judicial district made up of five southwest parishes.

During that period, Sam Jones also became state commander of the American Legion and devoted much time to establishing a policy of keeping the Legion out of state, partisan politics. He doesn't intend to change that policy now and he has flatly refused to permit publication for campaign purposes of any picture showing him in a Legion activity or in a Legion uniform.

"During the years I watched him from the bench, and when he was prosecuting," former District Judge Thomas F. Porter, Jr., told me, "he never quit fighting to convict a guilty man, but he always made sure that every defendant got every legal right and break to which he was entitled under the law. I never saw him take a note in a courtroom, yet I never saw him overlook any point in a case in summing up. His memory was amazing."

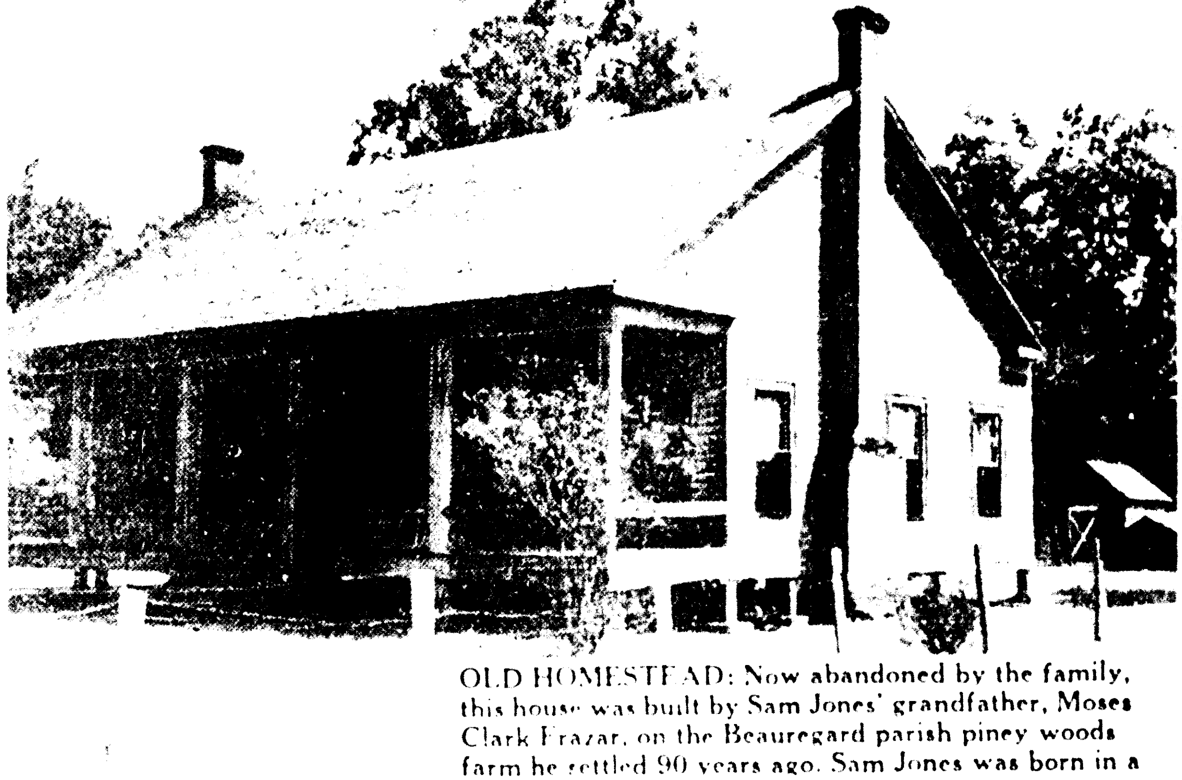
Sam Jones has fought many battles for poor people without pay, and he's given his own money to help those who needed funds. He's not a rich man, but he could be if he kept out of this campaign. There are law cases in the offing which would mean good fees—but he turned them down. The houses in which he has lived have improved progressively from the two-room cabin of his birth. His present abode in Lake Charles has a good mortgage on it, which he is paying off regularly. He hasn't hesitated to go against his own personal or financial interests to campaign for a cause he thought was right—and he hasn't let danger to his own life interfere with that.

A few years ago he campaigned in a local election in Southwest Louisiana for a friend—and a cause—against the state machine. He was given word that if he went to DeQuincy to make a speech he would be killed—that he'd have to keep out of the campaign. He fixed up as hot a speech as he could concoct and went to DeQuincy and made it. Friends say an effort to take his life was made once. He won't talk about it.

"SAM JONES has been a constant crusader for causes in which he believed, but always without being a mere "anti" or a mere reformer. He's a powerful speaker without being an oratorical phrase-maker. A fast thinker, he prefers a give-and-take extemporaneous debate to making a prepared speech. He doesn't have to swing to "tough" language, but he never turns to fancy phrases, over the heads of his listeners.

During several days in Southwest Louisiana I several times overheard him privately tell friends of his intention to keep his campaign for governor on a high plane of issues,

WORLD WAR: After 17 months service as private, corporal and sergeant at Camp Beauregard.



OLD HOMESTEAD: Now abandoned by the family, this house was built by Sam Jones' grandfather, Moses Clark Frazar, on the Beauregard parish piney woods farm he settled 90 years ago. Sam Jones was born in a two-room cabin a few yards from this house.

BIRTHPLACE: Dr. F. R. ("Uncle Bob") Frazar of Merryville, his uncle, and Sam Jones talk things over on the spot where once stood the two-room log cabin in which the candidate was born. Taken a few days ago.

The Story of Sam Jones

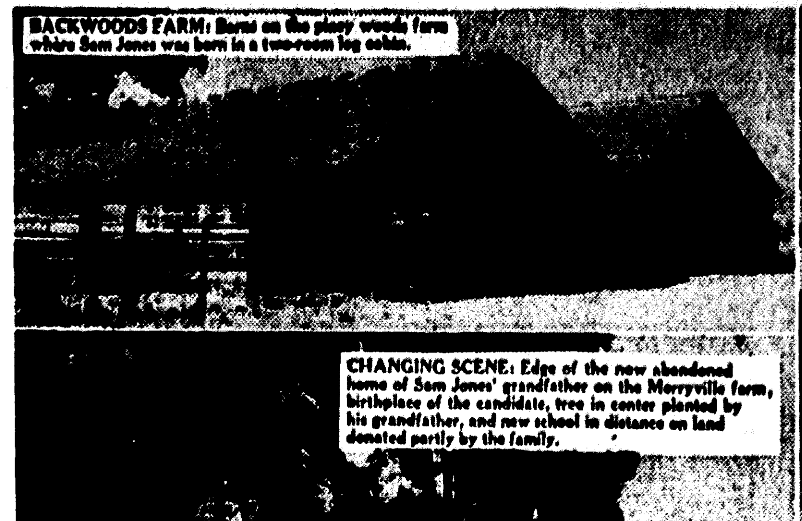
and to avoid personalities. These friends said afterward that he means it 100 per cent—but, that if anyone wants to get "dirty" with Sam Jones they're in for plenty of trouble.

One of his gubernatorial opponents referred to him a few days ago as "the best campaigner, the best stump speaker, the state of Louisiana ever has known."

Yet never until this campaign has Sam Jones sought a political office. He's always been fighting for someone else. Now, in a campaign in his own behalf for the first time in his life, he's still fighting for someone else—"for honest, clean government for the people of Louisiana"—to use his own words.

In 1934 Sam Jones quit as assistant prosecutor at Lake Charles to enter a private law firm there as junior partner. In the same year he married Louise Gambrell Boyer, whom he had known as a girl in DeRidder. Her father used to have a store there. He is now a city councilman in Tucson, Ariz. She had been married before and had two children—Jimmy, 10, and Billy, 8. Now there are four children in the family, the additions being Carolyn Jelks Jones, two and one-half years old, and Robert Gambrell Jones, four months old. The four children and Mrs. Jones form a home background that is exactly what it seems to be—one of happiness, comradeship and love. Someone recently suggested that Sam Jones was inclined to spoil the children a bit.

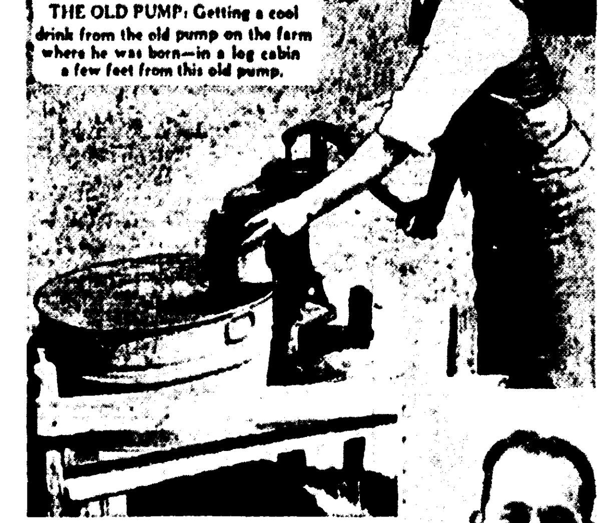
"Why shouldn't I?" he replied. "I've waited 40 years for them."



BACKWOODS FARM: Barns on the piney woods farm where Sam Jones was born in a two-room log cabin.

CHANGING SCENE: Edge of the now abandoned home of Sam Jones' grandfather on the Merryville farm, birthplace of the candidate, tree in center planted by his grandfather, and new school in distance on land donated partly by the family.

MEMORIES: On the steps of his grandfather's now abandoned farm home, Merryville, Beauregard parish, scene of his childhood.



THE OLD PUMP: Getting a cool drink from the old pump on the farm where he was born—in a log cabin a few feet from this old pump.

FRIENDS EVERYWHERE: In every community someone knows him personally and calls him Sam. Here he is visiting Mrs. M. E. Dolen, De Ridder.

TRAVELING through many of the southern parishes, it seemed that Sam Jones must have at least 1,000 volunteer campaign managers, all at work even before the ink on the statement announcing his candidacy was dry. At almost every crossroads, in almost every small village, inquiries for this person or that person brought such replies as:

"Well, he's out campaigning for Sam Jones," or "He went over to see someone about Sam Jones." It was amazing the way people in all walks of life, of every religious belief, were going into his campaign voluntarily—without even consulting him or waiting to be asked. It brought back a simple phrase in his opening campaign radio speech:

"In every parish, in almost every community, there is someone who knows me personally and who calls me Sam."

He gave this multitude as his "references"—people you can ask about me, he said. But few of them seem to be waiting to be asked.

Simple Wishes For Success

Simple wishes of luck and success in the campaign have come from high churchmen, from small and large business men, from a man he sent to the penitentiary as prosecutor (but who thought the prosecution on the level) and from a patient in the state leprosarium whom he once befriended.

As these high spots in the life of a candidate for governor were gathered from friends, from mere acquaintances, and from political enemies, too, two other statements were made public, one from Gov. Earl K. Long and one from State Rep. N. Smith Hoffpauir, both terming Sam Jones a "corporation lawyer." The implication obviously intended by the phrase didn't seem to fit with the story of the man, so on a later day, while driving through pine woods with him to his birthplace, this question was asked him:

"What about the corporation lawyer business — what corporations have you represented?"

"Perhaps those shouting 'corporation lawyer' don't know it," he said quickly. "But they happen to be the same corporations Alvin O. King represented, and King was made governor of Louisiana with the approval and consent of Huey P. Long."

Leaves Firm to Campaign

"A law firm," Mr. Jones said later, "is about like any other business firm. It sells its ability, its services, its wares. Our law firm had about every conceivable client. You might as well call a grocery store a 'corporation grocery' because some of its customers are corporation people."

One of the stipulations made when Mr. Jones joined the law firm was that he would not at any time, while a member of it, engage in politics. He resigned from it to enter this campaign.

The corporations whose legal business was handled by the law firm in which Sam Jones formerly was a junior partner are mostly insurance companies. There are a few oil concerns, chiefly the smaller and independent type, none of the well known, nationally and internationally active oil corporations. They are the type of corporations which most any law partnership of repute anywhere has among a varied clientele.

Wins Victory For Farms

THE biggest court victory in Sam Jones' career in his own opinion was persuading the State Supreme Court virtually to reverse a previous decision in favor of corporations and render one in favor of small, taxpaying farmers. That was in 1925 when he launched a legal drive against lumber corporations to put an end to a land assessment system in southwest parishes that favored the corporations and tended to make unfair assessments of pine woods farmers. He won that fight and he thinks more of it than of any other victory because it directly saved money for almost every pine woods farmer in southwest Louisiana.

Perhaps the second most important victory, in Sam Jones' own mind came only a few days ago. The so-called "corporation lawyer" was counsel for rice farmers of southern Louisiana against a milling corporation which retained State Senator Percy T. Ogden of the state political organization in defense of charges by farmers that it violated a price contract with the farmers. Jones won the case and it meant 98 cents a bag more for rice for the farmers involved than the corporation had been willing to pay.

Born at Old Homestead

Sam Jones' maternal grandfather, Moses Cook Frazar, settled the Beauregard parish pine woods farm on which the candidate was born near Merryville. It now is owned by Dr. F. R. Frazar of Merryville, a country doctor, whose practice extends up and down southwest Louisiana and into Texas. He is the brother of Sam Jones' mother. When the mother, who was born in Sugartown, Beauregard parish, married Robert Jones, they went to live in the two room cabin, now destroyed, where Sam and other children were born. Robert Jones kept a store and taught school and later was clerk of court for Beauregard parish. There were seven children, with five now living and Sam the oldest of the living five.

After becoming clerk of court, Robert Jones lived in De Ridder where he also was mayor at one time. The De Ridder home, somewhat remodeled, now is occupied by Miss Phoebe Jones and John Paul Jones, sister and brother of Sam. Two other sisters are married — Mrs. Sam W. Wallace and Mrs. Edward F. Heyne, both of Houston. The house built on the place by Moses Cook Frazar 90 years ago burned about 50 years ago. The one which replaced it still stands, but has been abandoned by the family. Within the past year, both the mother and the father of Sam Jones died—within a short time of each other.

SAM Jones was born in the old cabin on the Merryville farm on July 15, 1897. He was only three years old when his father and mother took their family to De Ridder and he finished high school there in the spring of 1915. That fall he went to L. S. U. and got a job waiting on tables to help pay his way, for times were rather hard with his father, Robert Jones, trying to rear a big family. He left L. S. U. to go into the army. After the war, during which he served 17 months in the ranks, he became deputy court clerk at De Ridder. He was elected delegate to the state constitutional convention — the youngest delegate in that body. He was 23 years old at the time. He left De Ridder for Lake Charles in December, 1924, and has lived there since.

That covers the chronology and some of the high spots in the life of Sam Jones. What it does not cover is that he has always been a liberal in politics — a sincere one — even when liberalism was not as popular as it is now.

An Early Liberal

It was as a very young man back in 1921 that Sam Jones in a public statement — a matter of record — advocated a "mothers' pension" which was the forerunner of the present old age security system. It was a year before that event that he advocated exemption of homes from taxation. During that same period he advocated election law changes to increase the number of citizens entitled to vote. Many things which Sam Jones advocated as a young man since have been put into effect with great acclaim and pronouncement of being something "new" and "liberal." He has always been friendly and sympathetic with labor, has been invited to address labor conventions and has in turn brought about invitations to labor leaders to address other organizations.

His interest in the state's school system is intense, for all of his "school learning" came in state institutions and his father was a teacher in them. He has a similar deep understanding of farmers and their problems, particularly the piney woods farms, for there is little pine land settled over 90 years ago by Sam Jones' grandfather and on which he was born. He knows what it is to "break ground" and the farming which he watched and took part in as a boy was that of the small farmer on poor land.

Has Broad Legal Training

His training as assistant district prosecutor has given him long practice in sifting complex problems to the bottom, in absorbing and understanding details and the need to consider every angle in any problem, large or small. His private law practice has given him a close view of business and its interests.

In his first address of the campaign he gave some inkling of what some individual planks in his platform, to be announced later, may be. He told of broken sales tax promises, saying he had always consistently opposed that tax. He told of pensions, of imposition of 27 new state taxes by the present administration and of promises of relief for big and small business which have not been carried out.

"IT IS ridiculous," he told me, "for anyone to think that I, as governor, would seek to take away from the people such things as homestead exemption, old age pension, free school books for I publicly advocated such things either specifically or as general propositions up to 20 years ago and long before those now in power ever thought of them.

"What I do mean to do is this: I mean to see that every single cent of public money dedicated to some specific purpose goes to that purpose — and not into the pockets of the 'big shots' who have permeated our state government with stealing, thievery, crookedness and corruption until they have given us an administration not surpassed by any in the union for rottenness and graft."

Is Preparing Platform

Sam Jones knows what he's up against in a gubernatorial campaign. He's not the type that sits back and "knows" — but says nothing about it. He came right out into the open the past week in a speech to farmers at Jonesboro when he told them:

"You've been trying to get some roads here a long time. Now — and I know all about it — you've recently been given some promises of roads if you vote right. Well, you take those roads, take every one of them, for you've waited a long time. But when you get in that voting booth, you vote your conscience! And, I'm pretty sure you'll remember they promised you $30,000,000 worth of farm-market roads years ago and you haven't gotten them yet."

Shortly a complete platform will be announced by Sam Jones. He's going over it carefully, for he means it to be specific, affirmative and aggressive. He doesn't intend to duck anything. With it will come announcement of complete campaign organization — in every parish. The state chairman of his campaign is Francis Whitehead of Port Allen, former state senator, a sugar farmer and a man whose living is made primarily from Louisiana soil. As co-chairman is Vance Plauche, Lake Charles attorney, of full French descent.

He's Aware of the Issues

It was easy to see after talking with Sam Jones that there is hardly a conceivable issue likely to arise in the campaign on which he has not clearly thought out his stand — or on which he will fail to state his stand in plain, simple words. He talks freely of all of the state's problems, of how they can be faced and how he will face them.

HE SPENT a long time deciding whether he'd be a candidate—when friends from all parts of the state began urging him to put his hat into an election contest for the first time in his life. He was not certain what his answer would be even when a committee came to his home to get the final answer, which he had postponed for days. As they came into the yard the telephone rang. It was one of Sam Jones' oldest friends, a man whose opinion he respects above all others.

"Don't give your answer until you've seen me again," this man said over the telephone.

A Time For Sacrifice

Sam Jones went out the back door as the committee members came to the front door and they were left waiting while he went to his friend's home. The latter, an older man, talked briefly and simply, as if to a son. The tenor of his talk, as he related it to me privately later, was that no man justly can be asked to sacrifice a newly-developed law business, to give up income and possibly his future, to risk unjust attack on himself and family—all merely for what glory might come in being governor of a state.

"But," the older man went on, "There are times when all must be risked and every sacrifice must be made. This is one of them. I have thought about it a lot, too, before being willing to urge you. I urge you now — you must run."

To Drive The Crooks Out

Sam Jones went back and told the committee he would make the race. The decision was made in a friend's home, as other friends waited at Sam Jones' own home for the answer. Within a matter of hours, almost, he had resigned from his law firm, had told another close friend to "get your business fixed up so you won't need to be at your office until the middle of January because you're going to be with me all the time," was attending to organization preliminaries and going over in his mind what he's going to say and do the campaign. He plans to speak everywhere, and to speak as often and as fast as dates can be arranged. About a dozen already have been set for the first part of October and there'll be that many a day later. He will speak at the State Fair in Shreveport.

"What," I asked him at the end, "is your fundamental objective in seeking the governorship; what is your fundamental plan if you are elected?"

"To drive ALL the crooks out," he said. "To bring back honesty. That's the main thing."

The Leaders to Blame

After a moment, he continued slowly:

"Don't get the idea that because a person works for the state there is something wrong with that person. It isn't the state employees that are to blame for our present conditions. Many of them, most of them, are honest and conscientious. They are flocking now to my support. I need them and want them. It's the bosses, the rascals, whether they're big bosses at the top or just underlings, that must go. ALL of that group have got to go and they can be ousted only by ousting the machine which makes them what they are.

"Honesty, plain, common, piney woods honesty of the kind of our ancestors who broke poor ground in order to make even a poor subsistence, that's what is needed and that is what I promise above all. This campaign is one of honesty versus dishonesty, of clean government versus unclean government."

The highest compliment ever paid him in southwest Louisiana, perhaps, came from a newspaper publisher down there whose paper is not politically partisan. It was, in effect:

"Whatever Sam Jones promises to do — he'll DO!"

HARVEST DAY IS TO AID ORPHANS

All Methodist Churches Will Contribute To Ruston Institution

Today will be "Harvest day" in all Methodist churches of Louisiana when special offerings will be received for the support of the Methodist orphanage in Ruston, the only institution of the kind in the state. This orphanage secures its entire financial assistance from donations that are made in all churches of the denomination twice yearly, at Easter and on "Harvest day" in October.

Rev. C. B. White, orphanage superintendent, stated Saturday:

"We all realize, I'm sure, just what we are face to face with. From the appearance of things now the coming winter months will be severe in every way. With prices constantly advancing and the cost of living higher day by day, what shall become of the 175 homeless and helpless children if we do not receive the best offering at this time we have ever received?

"Our children have been in good health during the year, and have enjoyed a happy summer. School began this week. We have 54 in high school, nine in the seventh grade and 90 in our own school through the sixth grade; we have 10 in Louisiana Tech. Besides these there is a group too small to attend.

"The European war will not be a brief one. Such a war is sure to reach out its evil power and influence our country in many ways. Already we are realizing this in higher prices for foodstuff. Under normal conditions it is hard for the orphanage to operate on its income, and unless each of us does his best, and unless those who have been blessed with riches, give bountifully, we cannot possibly carry on. May every church and church school endeavor to receive the best offering in years."

J. L. HENRY ESTABLISHES LIFE INSURANCE AGENCY

J. L. Henry, recently appointed a special agent of the Union Central Life Insurance company, has established offices in room 304 of the Bernhardt building. Mr. Henry, a native of Union parish, moved back to Monroe from Shreveport to take over the agency.

Mr. Henry came to Monroe as a young man and worked in a local department store for 14 years before moving to Shreveport. There, for 10 years, he was associated with the Prudential Insurance company.

Services will be held at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., and white persons are invited to attend the night sermon, Rev. Hayward said. A special choir program will be rendered in connection with the night service.

CHAPTER XII

[illegible] She had hoped that he might be the answer to Carma's [illegible] problem.

Randy and Dolly and Carma, however, were among her minor worries. Dan had somehow escaped her, she could not reach him. It was as if his spirit had gone away, leaving his familiar person behind. Never putting it into actual words, she had considered him as putty in her hands. All of a sudden the putty had gone hard and unmanageable. A sensation of helplessness and futility added to her feeling of abject defeatism.

A dreadful lethargy weighted her limbs, a wish to sink and sink and never rise again caused weak tears to gather behind her heavy eyelids.

"I'm sick," she thought. "I'm really sick. Where is Dan? Why doesn't he come?" Aloud, she called, "Dan—Dan!"

Suddenly she threw the covers back and sprang from bed so quickly that her head swam and she pressed both hands to her temples, swaying. Sick? She wasn't sick—she couldn't be sick. The party had been a strain, it had been almost morning before she slept. That was it—she needed rest—she'd rest all day—be fine tomorrow.

She washed her face in cold water, brushed her hair until it lay in a soft swirl of curls on her neck. Touching her pale cheeks with rouge, she smiled into the mirror.

"You ought to wear your hair that way," she said, addressing her reflection. "It takes 10 years from your age."

Stepping into the velvet robe, she zipped it up the front. A flat little collar suited the curling locks. Slipping her feet into mules she went to the living room. A flat, dead smell of cigaret smoke made her close her eyes. She put one hand quickly to her throat. She needed coffee, needed it badly. Opening a window, she leaned out, drawing a long breath.

She looked between apartment buildings at a narrow strip of Lake [illegible]

[illegible] separated from Dan. Marian had been glad about so many things in those days.

Gradually Sundays had become intervals of rest, times when Marian could catch up with her sleep, when she could dawdle over small tasks connected with her appearances. She had often said that it was a one woman's job to keep another woman's clothes in shape. She had often sighed over the happy state of women whose clothes were taken care of by a maid.

On the lazy Sundays Dan had always been there, reading, talking when she wished to talk, suggesting a movie or a ride or a walk in the park. Suggesting, but never insisting. Movies bored Marian, she hated to ride in the Sunday traffic, and especially in Dan's rattly car, a walk seldom appealed to her.

"Be back sometime." What had Dan meant by that? It was too casual, too prophetic that he had got away from her. But wasn't he always casual and indifferent these days? Suddenly the apartment was desolately empty, echoing with Dan's voice, his laugh. A suffocating loneliness drove her across the hall to Dolly's open door. She went in and dropped into a chair, groaning.

Dolly said, "Good morning. What have we here—a faded flower or something?"

"I feel like the last few days of a misspent life, Dolly. Have you a cup of coffee to spare?"

"No, but I can make some in about a minute and a half," Dolly smiled cheerfully. "Where's Dan?"

"Golfing with Bill Sands. They made arrangements last night."

"That's fine." Dolly's voice came from the tiny kitchen. "It'll be good for him to play around with other men. Contacts, you know. They tell me that more business is transacted on the golf links than in the offices."

Marian brightened. Dolly always said the right thing. It just might be a turning point for Dan—it just might.

The campaign is scheduled to start October 23.

It is the task of the committee to determine the size of gifts large donors will be asked to make to the chest. It is composed, besides Mr. Touchstone, of Ben Downing, John M. Breard, Sam Smith, Courtney Oliver, Sam Davis, Wheeler Mitchell, T. C. Drew, W. R. Hatchell, H. A. McDonald, F. Jack Selig Sr., Abe Blumenthal, Joe Marx Sr. and J. G. Hicks.

HONORED WITH CHEVROLET RIDE

These two dogs had their day during National Dog Week a short time ago. And Miss Evelyn Busby of Detroit had her hands full when she started out to observe the event by giving an automobile ride to Thor, a giant great Dane, and Bressy, a miniature pinscher. Thor usually rides with great dignity on the back seat of Miss Busby's Chevrolet, while Bressy proudly perches with his back feet on the front seat and his front paws on the open door of the glove compartment. The Chevrolet dealer here in Monroe is Lee-Rogers Chevrolet company, 223 Walnut street.

The tractors are 20 and 30 horsepower units.

Corn, oats, hay and sorghum have thus far been ground in the hammer mill demonstration.

Lane Wilson Seed Company Place To Get Your Bulbs

The finest and largest selection of bulbs it has ever had is now being displayed by Lane Wilson Seed company, 113-115 North Grand street. They include both domestic and imported varieties.

As a result of the European war, the United States got the cream of this year's crop of bulbs from Holland and France. There was no market for them in Europe. Everybody was preparing for the conflict.

Now is the opportune time to buy imported bulbs. What with all land being utilized for food crops throughout Europe, bulbs will be scarce next year—even if the war lasts only a few months longer. If the conflict extends into years, the cost of shipping will become prohibitive.

Considering the quality of the bulbs, the prices asked by Lane Wilson are extremely moderate. Visit the store and be convinced.

The Bulbs include daffodils, the King Alfred and 13 other varieties; hyacinths, Dutch, Roman and grape; 16 varieties of tulips; Iris, Spanish and Dutch; scilla; lilies, madonna and creole; ranunculus; anemone; and crocus.

Lane Wilson Seed company suggests bone meal as the best fertilizer for bulbs. You can get it at the firm in any quantity desired. Moreover, it has ideal pottery for bulbs.

Incidentally, now is the time to plant bulbs—this and next month.

DICK TRACY
CHESTER GOULD
AFTER FINALLY LOCATING THE FUR THIEVES' CAR, DICK TRACY WATCHES PATIENTLY TO FIND OUT WHERE THE THIEVES ARE SELLING THE STOLEN PELTS.
NO, PAT, WE DON'T WANT TO PINCH THE DRIVER OF THE CAR — YET.
I SEE. YOU WANT TO FIND OUT WHO IS BUYING THE STUFF, EH?
AUTO LICENSES
YOU SEE THIS GIBBONS FOX FARM BRANDS A TINY "G" RIGHT INTO THE ANIMAL'S HIDE - IT NEVER DISAPPEARS.
G
AFTER WE LOCATED THE FUR THIEVES' CAR WE SAW THEM PULL UP TO THIS OLD WAREHOUSE AT 5TH AND OAK STREETS AND TAKE A BUNDLE OF FURS INSIDE. I'M GOING THERE TODAY AND GET ONE OF THOSE PELTS.
IMPOSSIBLE! WHY, IF THAT'S HOT STUFF, THEY'LL HAVE THE PLACE GUARDED BY A DOZEN GORILLAS.
I THINK I'LL MANAGE OKAY, PATRICK.
HALF-HOUR LATER.
WHAT DO YOU MEAN, YOU'RE GOING INSIDE?
MY NAME'S WOLLEF. I DO A LITTLE FUR JOBBING. A FELLOW NAMED JOE TOLD ME TO COME HERE.
YEAH? WE DON'T KNOW ANY JOE - AND I NEVER SAW YOU BEFORE.
I'VE GOT A BIG CONNECTION DOWN EAST - AND IF YOU'VE GOT WHAT I WANT, I CAN HANDLE ABOUT FIFTY GRAND WORTH OF FUR.
HUH! WELL - SHOW HIM AROUND, NICK, BUT KEEP YOUR EYES ON HIM.
HAVE A STICK OF GUM?
NAW, NEVER USE IT.
BRRR..R.! IT'S A LITTLE COOL IN HERE.
YEAH... GOTTA KEEP IT REFRIGERATED. THIS IS ALL FOX IN THIS ROOM.
REMOVING THE WAD OF CHEWING GUM FROM HIS MOUTH, TRACY PRESSES IT FIRMLY INTO THE BACK OF HIS COAT.
CHEWING GUM
PRETENDING TO STUMBLE HE FALLS HEAVILY AGAINST THE STOCK OF FOX SKINS.
WHAT THE -! ....ANKLE MUST HAVE TURNED ON ME!
THE GUM IMBEDS ITSELF IN THE FUR
LOOKING FOR MINK, EH?
BRR-R-R .. THIS PLACE IS TOO COLD...I'D BETTER PUT THIS TOP COAT ON.
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.: Copyright, 1939, by The Chicago Tribune

TELL YOU WHAT I CAN DO. I CAN HAVE SOME MINK IN HERE FOR YOU BY TOMORROW MORNING. HOW'S THAT?
GREAT! I'LL BE IN THEN - ABOUT TEN O'CLOCK.

THE VILLAIN'S CHANCE

AS HE PICKED UP MATEA'S TRAIL, TARZAN SAW THAT A MAN'S FOOTPRINTS WERE MINGLED WITH HERS.
AN HOUR LATER HE AND GROOT CARLUS OVERTOOK THE PAIR. CARLUS WAS OVERJOYED; TARZAN WAS PUZZLED.
THE APE-MAN GAZED SEARCHINGLY AT THE STRANGER "WHO ARE YOU?" HE DEMANDED.
"THIS IS MYNHEER VANGER," MATEA ANSWERED PROUDLY. "HE SAVED ME FROM THE SAVAGES."
"YES," VANGER BOASTED. "I WAS TRAVELING NEARBY WHEN I SAW HER BROUGHT IN A CAPTIVE."
"IS IT YOUR CUSTOM TO TRAVEL THE JUNGLE AT NIGHT?" TARZAN ASKED COLDLY. THE MAN BEGAN TO STUTTER.
UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE Inc
HOGARTH
"RUN!" TARZAN CALLED TO THE OTHERS AS HE DASHED FORWARD TO MEET THE CHARGE. BUT VANGER STOOD HIS GROUND. HERE WAS HIS CHANCE TO KILL HIS FOE, WHILE SEEMING TO AIM AT THE LEOPARD.
THE BEAST SPRANG AT TARZAN. VANGER FIRED---AT TARZAN!

OUR BOARDING HOUSE
MAJOR HOOPLE
DOES THE ROOM YOU'RE RENTING HAVE A BATH?
THE ROOM IS THIS WAY, CAPTAIN NICHOLS — HAR-RUMPH! ODD THAT HEARING YOUR NAME SHOULD RECALL MY ACTIVITIES IN THE BOER WAR! YAS! BUT THERE WAS A CAPTAIN NICHOLS IN OUR BATTALION!
T. M. REG.
IN ONE FORAY, CAPTAIN, TEN MOUNTS WERE SHOT FROM UNDER ME! AFTER RECOVERING FROM SABER WOUNDS I WAS DECORATED BY HER MAJESTY FOR VALOR!
VERY INTERESTING, MAJOR, VERY!
THIS IS THE ROOM, VERY COOL AND COMFORTABLE — BY THE WAY, HMP — KAFF — AFTER HOSTILITIES I HEADED AN EXPEDITION INTO THE RIVER OF DOUBT COUNTRY, SEEKING RARE ANIMALS AND REPTILES FOR THAT MASTER SHOWMAN, P.T. BARNUM!
EGAD, I WAS CAPTURED BY BUSHMEN, BUT I TEMPTED THEIR CURIOSITY BY THREATENING TO MAKE MYSELF GROW TO FOUR TIMES MY HEIGHT! — THIS IS THE CLOSET —
— WHEN MY GUARDS RELAXED VIGILANCE, I CUT TWO LONG SAPLINGS, MOUNTED THEM AS STILTS, DREW A TENT ABOUT ME AS A SKIRT AND STRODE AMONG THEM!
SEEING ME TOWER 20 FEET ABOVE THEM, THEY FELL UPON THEIR FACES IN AWE AND MADE ME A WITCH DOCTOR! AHEM! LATER I ESCAPED!
BUT, CAPTAIN, PARDON MY LOQUACITY! YOU SAID YOUR NAME WAS CAPTAIN NICHOLS — WHAT SERVICE, MAY I ASK?
ME? OH, I'M AN INVENTOR, AND JUST PERFECTED THIS LIE-DETECTOR I BROUGHT ALONG! SIMPLY TURN THIS LITTLE KNOB AND THE MACHINE RECORDS THE SLIGHTEST VARIATION FROM THE TRUTH!
BY NEA SERVICE, INC.
SPUTT-T-T- FUFF! MY WORD! IT WOULD NEVER DO TO HAVE A LIE-DETECTOR ABOUT THE HOUSE — HOW COULD I EXPLAIN TO MARTHA WHEN I WISHED TO GO OUT FOR AN EVENING?
I JUST MET A MAN COMING OUT OF THE HOUSE LAUGHING — DID HE WANT TO RENT A ROOM?
AH-ER-UM! YES, MY DEAR, BUT THE ROOM WAS NOT TO HIS LIKING — HAK-KAFF!
